for poisoning the mice in their burrows. Mouse control is not just as easy as that, and it is a persistent, continual fight. First, determine whether the mice are present; then how heavy the infestation and then plan the campaign to a finish. Place the baits, then observe if the mice are taking the baits. If not, maybe a different bait is necessary. Maybe they don't want apple. If so, let 'em try grain bait, or carrot or sweet potato. If its freezing weather, grain is the best bait as it won't freeze. Try some board slabs, here and there to attract them, then bait under these places. Pull trash away from tree trunks, to avoid crown injury. In other words, try everything necessary to rid the orchard of mice. One grower yanked out a young tree showing injury and the dogs got eight-mice from under that tree. That's too many mice to have around. Maybe there are more cases like this, and it's possible that it's in your orchard.—(From the November issue of the "Maryland Fruit Grower.")
Small cans of zinc phosphide mouse poison may be obtained at the county agent's office in the courthouse at Wilkesboro.

CHRISTMAS STAMP BAN IS LIFTED

Christmas, Fla.—Letters from Christmas will have the familiar little green tree stamped on them again this year.

The Post Office Department, which had ruled out the familiar practice earlier this year, reversed itself. Several appeals by Postmistress Juanita S. Tucker and a plea from Senator Spessard L. Holland (Democrat, Florida), helped high officials change their minds.

For years people have sent their letters here to be mailed with the "Christmas" postmark. Mrs. Tucker had dressed them up with the Christmas tree cachet—175,000 of them last year.

Then her boss said it was against the rules. After the flood of protests, they have decided the practice may be continued if there is a specific request from every person sending a letter to be mailed and provided there is no extra expense for the government.

W. C. Toney of Henrietta, Rutherford County, reports that he will make 30 bales of cotton from the 28 acres he planted this year.
