A ROCKET'S 'EYE VIEW' OF EARTH

HURTLING SKYWARD after being launched at the White Sands Proving Ground, New Mexico, a V-2 rocket (top), installed with a special camera, begins its speedy trek into the heavens. Reaching a maximum velocity of 2,985 miles per hour, the camera-carrying rocket photographs the earth (center) from a height of 30 miles. In the air slightly more than three minutes, the rocket (bottom) gives the camera a "lens-eye" view of the earth from an altitude of approximately 75 miles. Note the earth's curvature. 14-week series will tell the story of a community within range of the radio voice of the Journal-Sentinel Station.

Next Sunday, Mr. Essex says, the program will tell the story of the Wilkesboros and Wilkes County. It will consist of interviews with prominent citizens of those communities and music by the choir of the colored First Baptist church of North Wilkesboro, under the direction of Leonard Haughton.

People who will be interviewed on the program are: Mayor R. T. McNeil, of North Wilkesboro; Richard Johnston, a prominent manufacturer and civic leader; Mrs. Paul Green, Wilkes County home demonstration agent; J. B. Williams, first president of the Wilkes chamber of commerce; Tom Jenrette, chamber of commerce manager; and Mrs. B. R. Underwood, of the U. S. Employment Service.

Radio Station WSJS is at 600 (AM) and at 104.1 (FM) on the radio dial.

Mr. Essex says the idea for this series of programs was spawned during a WSJS staff conference, when the conversation turned to the many interesting communities, historically, industrially and agriculturally, that are found in this area of Northwest North Carolina and Southwest Virginia. Staffmen Harvey Dinkins, Johnny Comas and Leon Laslye were assigned to the series, and they have spent many weeks touring the communities of this area to make the necessary arrangements.

The first of the "Let's Go Visiting" programs, an introductory one, was broadcast last Sunday. Following the broadcast of the Wilkes County story next Sunday will be programs about Statesville on Sunday, March 19, and Mount Airy on Sunday, March 26th.

Clingman Club In February Meeting

The Clingman Home Demonstration Club held its regular monthly meeting at the Clingman Luncheon on Thursday afternoon, February 23, having 12 members present. The meeting was opened with devotionals by Mrs. Millard Mathis, followed by the business meeting. A committee was appointed to make plans for a chicken supper to be held in the near future.

Miss Ruth Thompson, assistant agent, gave an interesting demonstration on "Yard Beautification." She showed several pictures of things we can do to improve the looks of our homes and yards to make them more attractive. She suggested we clean up those unsightly scenes, such as trash piles and wood piles and to screen off our barns and outbuildings with evergreens, so as to make them more attractive. Miss Thompson also made some special announcements. One is our Spring Festival to be held in Elkin on March 9th.

During the social hour refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. R. H. Green and Mrs. Alene Redding.—Reported by Alene Redding.

Two new home demonstration clubs were organized in Nash county last month. They are located at Strickland and Cockrell's Cross Roads.
