

THE RALEIGH REGISTER. WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUG. 24, 1853.

Mr. Madison remarked to me, that the United States had been "useful in proving things, before held impossible." — Wm. Matthews.

Up to the present age, politicians have labored under the delusion that great empires could only be held together by Monarchy, in some form, while the domain of Republics must necessarily be comprised within a very narrow compass.

But it is the glory of the republican form of government, that it can only exist where the people are enlightened and virtuous, and not prone to excess.

In a Republic (using the term in its modern sense) the governing power is co-extensive with its territorial limits.

Such is the rapid and certain progression of this country, in wealth, power and population, and industrial achievement, that our strength, numbers and resources, at any given future day, may be calculated with almost mathematical accuracy.

The feature of our Government, which, when it comes to be understood, is to exert a magical influence upon the nations, is that of Federal Union.

But our admirable system is as yet only known to the enlightened few: when it quietly, honestly and peacefully becomes the overshadowing "Power on Earth," which it requires no prophet's ken to predict as certain in the most distant future.

The difference in the amount of commerce between the two countries before the war, and that of the present day, would perhaps be twenty fold in favor of the latter.

An enlightened Protestant, Christian nation of freemen, such as England, will never retrograde in civilization, wealth and power; our faith in Christianity, in freedom, and in the glorious destiny of humanity, which the past half century, more than any other, has revealed to us, includes a hope, amounting to certainty, that her career will be upward and onward.

But the United States, an offshoot of the British stock, with ample space, if not a richer soil to cultivate, in a few years more, far transcending the mother country in wealth, power and population.

Such is the rapid and certain progression of this country, in wealth, power and population, and industrial achievement, that our strength, numbers and resources, at any given future day, may be calculated with almost mathematical accuracy.

The feature of our Government, which, when it comes to be understood, is to exert a magical influence upon the nations, is that of Federal Union. Leagues or Unions have existed in all ages, but so imperfect in their nature as barely to resemble that of the United States.

But our admirable system is as yet only known to the enlightened few: when it quietly, honestly and peacefully becomes the overshadowing "Power on Earth," which it requires no prophet's ken to predict as certain in the most distant future.

Table with columns: Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday. Rows: Total, 7072, 17,907, $8586 00.

what they may. The cry of "stop the paper" will have to be heard many a great many times, before it will frighten our pen out of our hand, while it may be employed in so good a cause.

Is there no remedy, no way of protesting the public against these frequent and terrible rail road collisions? Must travellers always be at the mercy of those who value not their own lives, much less the lives of the hundreds of thousands entrusted to their tender mercies?

The catastrophe of the HENRY CLAY cannot have been forgotten, and surely the public indignation at the time ran high against the officers and directors of that ill-fated boat, as might justly have been expected; but what single individual responsible for the lives of those who were then, apparently, wantonly sacrificed?

New Orleans, and it may be said, the whole State, received their first impulse from Northern men and capitalists, and they have not yet quit their hold. Louisiana was peopled by the French, who were more allured by the softness of the climate, and the richness of the soil, than by any prospect of wealth.

The St. Louis "Intelligencer" comments, with what we regard great mildness, upon the course of certain men, who aim to suppress freedom of religious opinion by orders "to stop the paper."

These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church. These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church.

When the fall returns from all the Congressional Districts shall have received, we will publish a revised and corrected Table of the vote in each.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

Is there no remedy, no way of protesting the public against these frequent and terrible rail road collisions? Must travellers always be at the mercy of those who value not their own lives, much less the lives of the hundreds of thousands entrusted to their tender mercies?

The catastrophe of the HENRY CLAY cannot have been forgotten, and surely the public indignation at the time ran high against the officers and directors of that ill-fated boat, as might justly have been expected; but what single individual responsible for the lives of those who were then, apparently, wantonly sacrificed?

New Orleans, and it may be said, the whole State, received their first impulse from Northern men and capitalists, and they have not yet quit their hold. Louisiana was peopled by the French, who were more allured by the softness of the climate, and the richness of the soil, than by any prospect of wealth.

The St. Louis "Intelligencer" comments, with what we regard great mildness, upon the course of certain men, who aim to suppress freedom of religious opinion by orders "to stop the paper."

These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church. These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church.

When the fall returns from all the Congressional Districts shall have received, we will publish a revised and corrected Table of the vote in each.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

Is there no remedy, no way of protesting the public against these frequent and terrible rail road collisions? Must travellers always be at the mercy of those who value not their own lives, much less the lives of the hundreds of thousands entrusted to their tender mercies?

The catastrophe of the HENRY CLAY cannot have been forgotten, and surely the public indignation at the time ran high against the officers and directors of that ill-fated boat, as might justly have been expected; but what single individual responsible for the lives of those who were then, apparently, wantonly sacrificed?

New Orleans, and it may be said, the whole State, received their first impulse from Northern men and capitalists, and they have not yet quit their hold. Louisiana was peopled by the French, who were more allured by the softness of the climate, and the richness of the soil, than by any prospect of wealth.

The St. Louis "Intelligencer" comments, with what we regard great mildness, upon the course of certain men, who aim to suppress freedom of religious opinion by orders "to stop the paper."

These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church. These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church.

When the fall returns from all the Congressional Districts shall have received, we will publish a revised and corrected Table of the vote in each.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

Is there no remedy, no way of protesting the public against these frequent and terrible rail road collisions? Must travellers always be at the mercy of those who value not their own lives, much less the lives of the hundreds of thousands entrusted to their tender mercies?

The catastrophe of the HENRY CLAY cannot have been forgotten, and surely the public indignation at the time ran high against the officers and directors of that ill-fated boat, as might justly have been expected; but what single individual responsible for the lives of those who were then, apparently, wantonly sacrificed?

New Orleans, and it may be said, the whole State, received their first impulse from Northern men and capitalists, and they have not yet quit their hold. Louisiana was peopled by the French, who were more allured by the softness of the climate, and the richness of the soil, than by any prospect of wealth.

The St. Louis "Intelligencer" comments, with what we regard great mildness, upon the course of certain men, who aim to suppress freedom of religious opinion by orders "to stop the paper."

These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church. These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church.

When the fall returns from all the Congressional Districts shall have received, we will publish a revised and corrected Table of the vote in each.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

Is there no remedy, no way of protesting the public against these frequent and terrible rail road collisions? Must travellers always be at the mercy of those who value not their own lives, much less the lives of the hundreds of thousands entrusted to their tender mercies?

The catastrophe of the HENRY CLAY cannot have been forgotten, and surely the public indignation at the time ran high against the officers and directors of that ill-fated boat, as might justly have been expected; but what single individual responsible for the lives of those who were then, apparently, wantonly sacrificed?

New Orleans, and it may be said, the whole State, received their first impulse from Northern men and capitalists, and they have not yet quit their hold. Louisiana was peopled by the French, who were more allured by the softness of the climate, and the richness of the soil, than by any prospect of wealth.

The St. Louis "Intelligencer" comments, with what we regard great mildness, upon the course of certain men, who aim to suppress freedom of religious opinion by orders "to stop the paper."

These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church. These are not the words of a man who is granted and permitted by the (Catholic) Church.

When the fall returns from all the Congressional Districts shall have received, we will publish a revised and corrected Table of the vote in each.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.

The Editor has returned to his post, after a short absence.