John Van Buren boasted, upon this, that he had Collector Bronson's head in a basket, and as John filled up his basket with more heads, bodies and souls were expected to cry, "Save me," - "Spare me, oh thou mighty John." The National Democracy, in the midst of all this commotion, bid defiance to Mr. Secretary Marcy and his headsmen, and they have gone out and voted against them with a will and a rush. It is a grand spectacle—nay, it is an inspiring one, to see a State vindicating the State Right principle, as this great State is vindicating it, —and it is a great tribute to a principle, des-pite a Federal Administration which has failed to be true to the National principles on which

CONGRESS.

The meeting of Congress at Washington will from next Monday. In some respects, it will he the most interesting session of that august trays, baskets, cuddies and kettles are not want-body that has been held for many years. The first session of Congress, after the incoming of a new Administration, is always looked forward to with a onsiderable degree of anxiety, but the accession of President Pierce to power has been attended by circumstances both at home and abroad, which are likely to occasion a series of the most violent debates that have ever been heard in the national councils. The disorganization of the Democratic party in this and other states, and the bitter dissatisfaction with which many of the executive appointments have been received by the various factions of the coalition which clevated Mr. Pierce to the highest degree. The hair brushes are made Presidency, are indications that there is to be an opposition in Congress, aside from that of the Whig party.

Congress, however, will have to discuss great questions of domestic and foreign policy, which, from their vast importance, it may be hoped, will over-shadow and subdue mere party squab bles and dissensions, in which the country has really no substantial interest. The projected railroad to the Pacific, the surplus revenue in the Treasury, the enlargement of the navy. the proposed reciprocity of trade with the British provinces on our Northern frontier, the interrunted demarcation of the boundary line between our terrritory and that of Mexico, the Garay and Teliauntepec grants, the rights of naturalized Americans travelling in Europe, the proposed purchase of the island of Cuba, and the course to be pursued in our relations with China and Japan-these are a few of the interesting subjects which will probably be debated and enlarged upon with the utmost vigor. We think there is every probability of a long and stormy session.—N. Y. Commercial.

"The truth cannot be dissembled that the present law has proved ineffectual and inadequate to restrain the use and traffic in intoxicating liquors; and the fact that the Legislature in one part of the new law divest it of the character of property, and in another recognise it each town for medicinal purposes, should inspire us with distrust of any enduring reformation founded solely upon municipal law. If, however, such laws should eventually accomplish the objects expected from them, they will afford a most ready way to extirpate the evils which affliet the community: but religion has been generally understood to inculcate a different theory for the reformation of the race, and intemperance and other like vices have heen denounced by a higher and more omnipo-tent tribunal than that of any State Legisla-

THE TRAGEDY AT LOUISVILLE-THE ACCUSED COMMITTED FOR TRIAL. Matthew Ward, who shot Prof. Butler at

Louisville, a few days ago, has been committed to jail to answer the charge of murder. His brother, Rob't J. Ward, Jr., who accompanied Matthew to the school-room where Prof. Butler was shot down, was also committed on the charge of aiding and abetting in the murder. The Wards, it appears, became offended in consequence of Prof. Butler inflicting on one of his pupils (a younger brother of the accused) seven or eight blows, with a leather strap, over his back, with his clothes on, because he violated the rules by eating chesnuts during school hours, and denying it when charged with the offence. Immediately after the punishment, the boy left the school-house in a sullen mood, and shaking his head. Subsequently, the two Wards appeared, went into Prof. B.'s room, and according to the testimony, demanded to know why he had whipped their brother. A few words ensued, and were quickly followed by the discharge of a pistol, when Prof. B fell mortally wounded. Dr. Thompson testified that Mr. Butler, previous to his death, informed him that Matthew F. Ward cursed, and then struck him, and they of the pistel sticking to his coat. Prof. Sturges, one of the teachers, who was in an adjoining room at the time, also testified that on the discharge of the pistol, he saw some one, supposed

He subsequently traveled in Kurope, and three years ago was a delegate from the American Peace Society to the World's Peace Convention at Frankfort on the Maine. After his return and since he established the Louisville High School, in association with Prof. Sturges, he was again offered the situation of private tutor in Mr. Ward's family, and a liberal salary was proposed as an inducement for him to accept the place. The desire to be more widely useful, however, had caused bim to undertake the establishment of a first-class school here, for boys, and the same desire now induced him to decline the offer made by Mr. Ward in a spirit of generosi ty and from personal regard. #### WARLIKE RESOURCES OF THE UNITED STATES.

During the session of the Peace Congress in Edinburgh, Mr. Cobden addressed a large publie meeting, in which be alluded to the small military and naval force of the United States, and asked, whether, if a quarrel should arise between America and France, the French goverement would measure the resources of the American government by the number of its armed men, or by its prodigious industry, its enormous exports, its gigantic mercantile marine, and the other resources which make this country a great maritime people? A very per tinent question, though we do not agree with 2,000 lbs. -[Int. Mr. Cobden that it is wise policy in any great commercial people, to leave its commerce inad equately guarded, while other nations are prepared, not only for defensive, but aggressive warfare. Still, it is pleasant to our vanity to near Mr. Cobden talk in this wise : "Look at the Emperor of Austria-the boy Emperor-who had been wasting his time ever since he came to the throne in galloping from one review-field to another, to review his troops, reviewing squadrons and regiments of sometimes 56,000 or 60,000 men at a time, and surrounded by a staff of 60 generals. If a single frigate were sent from that plain man in a black suit of clothes in the Capitol at Washington, to Trieste, with a hostile message, would not that boy Emperor's heart be in his jack-boots? (Loud laughter and cheering.) Notwithstanding that, he commanded 350,000 or 400,000 men."

Nevertheless, "circumstances alter cases," and while the light taxation, expansive industry, and high intellectual and moral force of our people, make us a formidable enemy to provoke, we are devoutly thankful that the young gentleman in the jack-boots, and his 400,000 men, do not reside on this continent .- Rich. # PLANTING TREES.

Now is the time to transplant shade trees .-

As soon as the leaf falls, as soon as the tree appears to the eye as dead as nature ever intended it to be, then is the time to remove it. I speak of decideous trees; that is, those whose leaves fall in the autumn. There has been great carelessness upon this point. It has been tomary to take up trees at any time, as soon after Fall as possible, or to defer it to the latest possible period in Spring. There can be little error in the first provided proper precautions are made. The last is almost always a fatal of the Hards in New York.

Take your trees, intended for planting, carefully from the ground, retaining as much of the tap and sap roots as possible. Bring them carefully to the places where they are to be placed. Dig the holes large and deep. Have well pul-verized earth at hand, and well rotted manure. In setting the trees, put them down gently, and let the earth which touches the fibrous roots come upon them gently, but closely. That is all-important, and the neglect of it has caused the loss of many efforts at transplanting. Above all, in planting in town, the distance between trees should be never less than twenty feet. A few years will show the wisdom of this renark. Trees only attain size and majesty, by opportunity to expand, and that cannot be counerbalanced by the tendency for a quick and a close shade. There are too many instances in Raleigh to refer to as examples. If every other tree on the streets were cut down, in five years we would have a beautiful shade, not equalled by New-Haven. As it is, our trees will die of consumption, before they are matured.
