POLITICAL EQUESTRIANSHIP. It was no impeachment of Gen. Pierce's courage that his horse fell with him at Chepultepec, and we do not allude to it with any such view. We allude to it for the sake of analogy. If the horse he now bestrides dosen't serve him the same trick, set us down hereafter neither as a prophet nor the son of a prophet. If our memory is true to us, he got a downfall on that occasion, and could not extricate himself. If the analgy dosen't prove good in this particular, call us a ninny and him one of the luckiest of General Pierce rode but one horse at Chepultepec, and proved himself unable to manage him. He is now trying the equestrian feat of straddling three or four. He may manage the Secession colt by coaxing, but it is manifest from the experiment already made that the Coalition nag of Massachusetts cannot be lashed into docility, nor the Hard Shell dray horse of New York be forced into any other road than he chooses to travel. THE WASHINGTON SENTINEL AND THE PRESIDENT. If any man ever had cause to cry out from the bottom of a lacerated heart, "save me from my friends," President Pierce, when he reads the Washington Sentinel, is the man. The most scathing comments on his Administration, and the most dire predictions as to its fate, it present courses are further persevered in, are invariably wound up with a plaster of "soft soap," clapped on the President's individual back, as if it were possible in this Government to separate the President from his Administra tion, and condemn the latter while the former is extolled. Is this "Granite President," as he is called by his pretended admirers, literally nothing but a block of granite in the hands of Guthrie & Co. to be cut, dressed and shaped ac cording to their interests or caprices? For the information of our friend of the Raleigh Standard, we state that the grading on the N. C. THE U.S. SENATOR PROM MARYLAND.-Hon. James Pearce, now put up by his friends for re-election, is objected to, we see, by an "Eastern shore Whig," on the ground that "he has had the place long enough.

Mr. Pearce, now it so happens, is one of that class of men who can never be long enough in public life for the public good. Now thoroughly trained in the Senate—conversant with all its rules, orders, and precedents, and well im-bued in all the political knowledge of the country, it would be a calamity to the whole country to lose him, but more especially a calamity to the Whig party.

A knowledge of public affairs comes not by inspiration, no more than any other species of knowledge. The public man has to be educated just as any other man, -and hence, when it is proposed to roust a Senator only because he has had the place long enough, the proposition is to ship off experience and education for inexperience and, if not for ignorance, at least for some one who has to be trained and educated. in a hovel in Albany, N. Y., for many years, in apparently the most abject poverty, subsisting entirely upon the charity of the citizens, died a few days ago. Previous to his death, he sent for a gentleman, to whose surprise he bequeathed various sums of money, amounting altogether to $3,700, to children and grandchildren, residing at Newark and Albany; and confidentially informed him where his property was deposited. He also stated that about twenty-five years ago, he was porter to a mercantile house in Hamburg, and having been long in its employ, was frequently entrusted with considerable sums he invested the greater part of it in the purchase of two houses, which were consumed fire before they were insured. Considering this etermined to devote the remainder of his life to a severe course of industry and parsimony, with the single object in view of making full restitution to the persons whom he had injured, or to their descendants. He commenced a retail tobacco store, and in five years raised sufficient money to accomplish his object. Ascertaining that the house in Hamburg had an agency is Philadelphia, he proceeded thither, and paid the sum of $14,000, being equivalent to the original sum he had embezzled, with a certain rate of interest. The latter, however, was generously returned to him by a son of one of the partners, and this, together with some surplus money, he has be-queathed as above stated. The $3,700, princi oally in doubloons, was found concealed in his pantaloons. The remainder was found under the patches of his jacket, with the exception of a small sum in shillings and sixpences discovered in an old snuff jar.

1260 ACRES, . nearly one half of which is open arable land and the balance is in original growth and well timbered with various kinds of oak, hickory and cypress.— The open land consists in part of rich bottom, recently clesred, and produces from twelve to fifteen bushels of corn per acre. There are nearly one hundred acres of the same quality already drain-ed and ready to be cleared for cultivation. The crop upon this year's shift will make from a thousand to twelve hundred harrels of corn. There are upon the premises a framed dwelling-house, new barns and negro-houses, and other necessary buildings; and nearly the whole of the land, both open and wood-land is enclosed with a strong new fence, affording good pastures and an excellent range for hogs, cattle and other stock. The said tract of land is eligibly situated, being about five miles from Jackson, on the Halifax road, three miles from a landing on Roaneke river, and about seven miles from Garyshurg, the junction of the Petersburg and Roanoke and Seaboard and Roanoke Rail-roads. Persons wishing to examine the land can be shown it by applying to Mr. Baldwin, the Overseer, Mr. Nicholas Peebles, or to myself. A credit of one and two years will be given the purchaser by his entering into bond with approved
