During the last thirty years there has been no important public measure in which this active and distinguished Statesman has not taken an able and decisive part, and been familiar with the influences, whether secret or public, which have urged forward or opposed each. And now at the decline of a long and eventful life, he pens for future geuerations his lessons of wisdom, and presents them with his experience in such a manner as to illustrate, with great clearness and force, the practical working of our novel system of Government. Since the announcement of the above work as in press, the greatest desire has existed amongst all parties to secure copies of the work.
