of the Western Extension.

Mr. McKesson said he rose to thank his friend from Cumberland for his generous effort on he-balf of the bill. He went on to remark that and noes. Ayes 63, Noes 47. this was not a Western, but a State bill ; that if the House fail to pass it, we will defraud not only our children who are to follow us but thousands of people whose hopes are bound up in this work. As yet, not a stone had been to-ken nor a spade full of earth turned, west of Salisbury. The march of internal improvement had not reached above one fourth of the counties of the State : which was not just dr patriotic. The people of that section wished to be identified with the interest of the State as they mere a portion of her children.A. 1.)

Mr. Phillips concurred with his triend from Bertis (Mr Outlaw) and gave his reasons in a short, furcible speech. He proposed to recom mit the bill and moved accordingly.

Mr. Gorrell opposed the motion to recommit, and strongly advocated the passage of this bill. He considered North-Carolina to be struggling in a race with her sister States, and all the States on the Atlantic border, for the wealth of the Miss suppi valley, towards which they were all stretching outtheir arms. Thatif North Carolina be de prived of this road, which is intended to connect with that valley, she cannot compete with other States. The people expected this road, had instructed their representatives to vote for it, and were willing to be taxed for it. Mr. Outlaw followed in opposition. Ile re-iterated the arguments he had used previously and urged that the State, in prosecuting these works in so lavish a manner, would bring herself to the constitution in which Pennsylvania tound herself some years ago - forty millions in debt and on the verge of repudiation. He ex pressed himself the warm friend of internal improvements, but he desired some kind of guaranty that these works would not prove a failure. Several other gentleman took part in the debate, gending which the hour arrived for taking a recess.

NIGHT SESSION. The following Engrossed Bills from the Sen ate were read the first time : A bill concerning the Fayetteville and Central Plankroad Company. A bill concerning a Ship-Canal to connect the waters of Currituck and Pamlico Sounds.

A bill to incorporate the New River Navigation Company.

A message from the Senate was read. The Senate refused to accept an amendment added by the House to the Usury law. Some discussion arose. Messrs. Singeltary and J. G. Bynum thought that it was not strictly within the rule to take up this matter. The former gentleman moved to postpone the matter till some gentle men who were interested is it could be present.

Mr. Jenkins moved to suspend the rules, and extravagant schemes, and prayed it might be that the House recede from its amendment .- | withered. WESTERN EXTENSION.

The question before the House was an amendment offered by Mr. Singeltary, providing that there shall be no further appropriation without further legislation. On this question, Mr. Baxter demanded the ayes and noes. Ayes 51. Noes 60.

Mr. McKesson replied to Mr. Singeltary, and said if Mr. S.'s constituents were opposed to internal improvements, they should ever look back upon him, with grateful recollection, and with proud and heart felt satisfaction. hoped, however, the amendment would be voted down.

Mr. Singeltary replied to Mr. McK., and said if Mr. McK.'s constituents were in favor of internal improvements, they ought to be grate-ful to him for defending the bill postically and zealously.

On the passage of the bill the ayes and noes were demanded. Ayes 71; Noes 38. (When Mr. J. M. Leach's name was called, he rose and expressed his regret that, under the peculiar circumstances in which he was placed, he could not support the bill ; but that he had not, and would not, throw any obstacle in the way of its passage.) A bill to establish a military school in Duplin co. was read the first time.

A bill to incorporate the Dan River and Yadkin Railroad Co. was taken up, it being a spe-cial order. Mr. Amis addressed the House on the merits of the bill. Mr. Phillips opposed it. The fifteen minute rule out him short. Mr. Amis replied and was also out short. The vote on that rule was re-considered by the House, on motion of Mr. Jenkins. Mr. Amis again addressed the House. At the conclusion of his remarks, the House took a recess till 3 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. Neal, of Bockingham, sook the floor on the question before the House, the Dan River Railroad. Mr. Nesl supported the bill. Mr. Winston followed in opposition. He argued that this road would not be any benefit to the State that it would not carry produce into any part of the State ; that the Central Road was as near the constituents of Mr. Amis and would answer every purpose as well as the proposed road. Mr. Settle made some remarks in support of the bill. D. F. Caldwell opposed the bill in a very earnest manner. He thought it useless to build a road parallel with another. He classed it amongst the reckless and

THE STANDARD VS. THE NEWS. We observe that the last Warrenton News praises in glowing terms D. A. Barnes, Esq., iederalist, of Northampton, and refers to him as the probable opponent of the Hon. Henry M. Shaw, for Congress. Now, Mr. Barnes is a gentleman and man of talend, but he is a federalist of the old school, and we do not see what is to be gained by complimentary allusions to him by a Democratic paper, to the neglect or prejudice of Dr. Shaw or any other Demograt. The News has recently also been eulogising Mr. Badger. Why is this? Do leading Democrats ever receive justice even at the hands of Whig Editors? We do not seek a controversy with the News, but we ask leave to remind that paof the fact that Demo

THE FRENCH SPOLIATION BILL - We are gratified at the passage of this bill by Congress. The House amendments, which are slight, are still before the Senate and will doubtless be concurred in. There is no doubt, whatever, that Congress will pass the bill in an acceptable form. It then depends on the President for his assent. We will not allow curselves to entertain a doubt that he can overlook, or disapprove, a matter

R NEW YORK CORRESPONDENCE.

NEW YORK, January 30th, 1855.

In my hat communication, allusion was nade to the efficient administration of our present Chief Magistrate of the City, Mayor Wood. le has opened a " Complaint Book," in which avery one is entitled to record his grievances. or such violations of law as come under his notice. We read of such books in the history f ancient kings, who would maintain a wise upervision over public affairs, and give to every individual the benefits of the law, in both respects-that the wicked might repent, and the righteous rejoice. A strong government is always the best government in the end, provided its strength is arrayed on the right side. Our Mayor has declared war, not only on the groggeries, but against gambling establishments, and houses of ill repute. It has become quite common now. for adventurers, seeking to improve their fortunes on the cast of the dice, to odge complaints against the gamblers, if they ose-but to say nothing if they win. Pharo would fare badly-Whist would not be silentand Roulette would rebel under such an unequal system as that. But virtue and justice are sometimes so helpless, that it is well that even their worst enemiessometimes turn State's evidence in their behalf. Yesterday, a great crowd of affenders, of both sexes, and of all nations, thronged the apartments of the Mayor. They were arraigned for having violated the law, in retailing epirituous liquors on the Sabbath. A number of them were deprived of their licenses, and others were fined. They were, perhaps, without a single exception, all foreigners, chiefly Dutch and Irish, who interpret a free country to mean a country without law, and the rulers and law-makers of it to be sourvy politicians, who are to be put into office for encouraging these foreigners in their vices and ignorance. Although we have had, this winter, more than a dozen snow-falls, so far, yet they have been badly got up by the Clerk of the Weather, and all of them proved to be failures, until the advent of yesterday, when there was really what the British call a white world-the only really white substance besides which all other blanch things look dingy. The sleighing was good, for twenty-four hours-and the 40 feet sleighs, with six horses all plamed, and the two-horse, and the one-horse runners, with their merry tinkling bells, were all in motion At night, it became, as usual, a kind of public carnival, with shouting, singing, and snow balling, so that it would seem providential that the merry mad-caps have so few snowy chances of showing themselves off. Usually, a great many accidents happen, but, as yet, there are no accounts of them. Sleighing, like any other stranger that visite New York, is apt soon to be used up. But the rain stepped in to finish Te-day, a heavy Newfoundland fog, with drizzling rain, broods over the city,-and many beaux and belles, and fast young men, and young women, are disappointed in their expeced excursions. To those, however, whose des tiny is toil-not recreation or pleasure-the snows and the sleighs are alike indifferent.

Let us bestow a word or two now upon our ingenious and pious Yankee brethren. Living in a part of the land which produces nothing except granite and ice, without immense labor, for which they have no natural love, there are no people in the universe, that are more thrown upon their own resources, or who struggle harder against cold and starvation, than they do. it has adopted in this respect. N. C. Standard. Whilst it is foreign to our nature to seek or desire "a controversy" with the Standard or with any other paper, we must be permitted to remark that, in the faithful and independent discharge of our duties to the public, as an editor, we shall exercise perfect freedom of thought, and pursue our own line of policy, unswayed by dictation, come from what quarter it may. None who know us question our devotion to the principles of the Democratic creed. Our support of those cherished principles is of no recent origin. Itdates back from our earliest boyhood.

We have now grown grey in the service of De-mocracy. Its battles we fought, if not ably, at least boldly and manfully, in the darkest days are now the honored leaders of its forces, either grew weary of the strife, or ignobly joined the standard of its foes. Thus devoted, as we have uniformly been, "through good report and though evil report," to the fortunes of the Democratic party, and believing, as we most firmly do, that the welfare of the country and integri-ty of the union depend chiefly for their maintenance and safety, upon the promulgation of its principles and the adoption of its measures, sued. we have, nevertheless, the intelligence to discover, and the frankness to acknowledge, merit and ability in a political adversary, whenever and by whomsoever possessed. This we have always done, and shall continue to do, whonever the cause of truth or the promotion of virtue reuires it at our hands ; and we do not believe that Democracy may lose something, while it can gain nothing," by such a course. On the contrary, we entertain the opinion that in politics, as in ethics, "honesty is the best policy ;" whilst we are free to confers that the man whe is honest because and only because "honesty is the best policy," is himself destitute of that virtue. We think that "the course adopted" by the News, of commending the talents and virtues of political opponents, so far from dimin-ishing, has a tendency to increase its efficiency in support of Democratic men and Democratic measurers : and we would beg leave "to remind" the Standard "of the fact" that, with its admitted ability, its influence is, to some extent, circumscribed by the illiberality of " the course it | cial gratification. has adopted in this respect" towards its political adversaries.

The Standard asks : "Do leading Democrats ever receive justice even at the hands of Whig editors ?" Suppose they do not ; does the poli-cy pursued, by the Whig editors, make it right and proper? Or must we do wrong, because they do? But we do not agree with the Stand-ard in its sweeping denunciation of "Whig editors." We have known some of them to manifest not only "justice," but liberality to-wards "leading Democrate," and, in some in-worth. To go no farther back, the Register of the same date with the number of the Standard which contained the extract under consideration complimented the course of Mr. Fisher. one of the most prominent members of the present Legislature. The Whig papers, generally, of the State, commended the eminent abilities and patriotic efforts of Judge Saunders, exerted a few years ago so successfully in behalf of the Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road, which owes its existence at this time to his energy and talent. But a few weeks ago, we published a chaste and beautiful eulogium, pronounced by Mr. Badger, in his place in the United States Senate, on the talents and virtues of Chief Justice Taney, of which the Richmond Enquirer is now availing itself, most efficiently, in support of Mr. Wise and against the Know Nothings of Virginia. We know that Mr. Badger is not an editor, but he is a Whig, and, with the Standard's permission, we will add, a man of extraordinary ability and excellent private character. Mr. Barnes we have known well, for if any man in the State ought to know him, morally, socially, and intellectually, we claim to be that man, and confess that we take at once pleasure and pride in the well-merited disting-

Sultan the formal recognition of the various Christian communities.

It was in all Indian Territories. Mr. Shields was in favor of volunteers. He provided with 360 balls, or Knuckles, which believed 3000 volunteers as better adapted to the seized and squeezed the unpurified linen, in service of the Indian country and less expenquite an original way, and soon prepared it for sive than regulars. A long discussion ensued on the other Great Knuckle, upon an entirely new and different principle. Another original genius has arrived here, with a new kind of burning fluid, which he calls "Sylvic Oil." This is certainly a taking Houss .- Reports from committees were made of its adversity, when not a few of those, who and referred. eulogy passed upon shad, by the speech to which we have referred, the gallant effort to vindicate their privileges to useend the rivers, will be grateful to the reader. Indeed, there is an exansiveness in the character and dispositions of the shad which the crator has not too strong-ly characterised. He knows no distinctions. It is true, when he first appears, he is chiefly courted by the wealthy, who put a price on his person beyond the reach of the humble; but the shad soon vindicates the claim of all stances, even to process their talents and private to his association; by coming in such numbers as to find his way into every house and frying pan. His appearance is indeed an event of great importance in the calendar and should be signalized with such pomp as is observed in some foreign seaports upon the breaking up of ice and the opening of navigation. But to the speech. A bill was pending in the North Carolins House of Commons, on the 22nd, for the construction of a dam across the Neuse river. It was gallantly opposed by Mr. MORDECAI :

"Mr. Mordecai spoke of the plentiful supply of fish before Dr. Watson's dam was srected. He showed how the Dr. had evaded the provisions of the act, and said that he (Dr. W.) put the shad money in his pocket. He said the dam was twelve feet high and the shad could never get over the dam unless they had claws. He said he desired the dam should tifice to the frying-pans of all." It will be gratifying to the reader to learn that the bill was so amended as to require that the dam should not obstruct navigation or the free passage of the shad. Richmond Despatch.
