POSITION IN SLEEPING.

It is better to sleep on the right side, for then the stomach is very much in the position of a bottle turned upside down and the contents are aided in passing out by gravitation. If one goes to sleep on the left side, the operation of emptying the stomach of its contents is more like drawing water from a well. After going to sleep, let the body take its own position. If you sleep on your back, especially soon after a hearty meal, the weight of the digestive organs, and that of the food, resting on the great vein of the body, near the back bone, compresses it, and arrests the flow of the blood more or less. If the arrest is partial the sleep is disturbed, and there are unpleasant dreams. If the meal has been recent or hearty, the arrest is more decided, and the various sensations, such as falling over a precipice, or the pursuit of a wild beast, or other impending danger, and the desperate effort to get rid of it, arouses us; and sends on the stagnating blood, and we wake in fright, or trembling, or perspiration, or feeling of exhaustion, according to the degree of stagnation, and the length and strength of the effort made to escape the danger. But when we are not able to escape the danger, when we do fall over the precipice, when the trembling building crushes us, what then? That is death! That is the death of those of whom it is said, when found lifeless in their bed in the morning: "That they were as well as they ever were the day before," and often it is added, and ate heartier than common! This last as a frequent cause of death to those who have gone to bed to wake no more, we give merely as a private opinion. The possibility of its truth is enough to deter any rational man from a late and hearty meal. This we do know, with certainty, that waking up in the night with painful diarrhea, or bilious colic, ending in death in a very short time, is properly traceable to a late large meal.—The truly wise will take the safer side. For persons who eat three times a day, it is amply sufficient to make the last meal of cold bread and butter and a cup of sense warm drink; no one can starve on it, while a perseverance in the habit soon begets a vigorous appetite for breakfast so promising of a day of comfort.

Hall's Journal of Health

THE RICHEST COMMUNITY IN THE WORLD.—Lo! the Poor Indian! A day or two since we had occasion to mention that the result of the late sale of the Delaware (Indians) trust lands was $470,000. The lands sold were only those comprised in the eastern division of this great reservation. The western division is now advertised to be sold. That contains some 350,000 acres, and will undoubtedly bring an aggregate of at least $600,000. The tribe are also the owners of a home reservation almost immediately adjoining Leavenworth City, forty miles by ten broad. That would sell to-morrow readily for $10 per acre; or an aggregate of $3,000,000. Thus their total wealth, independent of personal property—and some of them are men of considerable individual means—is about $4,070,000. They number in all some nine hundred souls; and from the real estate described above are worth an average of $4,410 per soul, or $22,220 to each family of five persons among them.—Wash. Star

VALUABLE FURNITURE.—Dr. E. L. Magoon, recently in a lecture on "Mind Your Business," tells the following good one

A young man went from New York city to the West, where he commenced business on his own account, and married. His friends, in the city were interested in his welfare, and when a merchant was about to journey to the place where the young man had located, he was requested to visit the emigrant and ascertain how he lived, what sort of a wife he had chosen, his prospects, &c. Accordingly, the New Yorker ascertained the residence of his young friend, and called upon him quite early in the morning. He found him in a small, neat cottage, just taking his breakfast. The introduction of the New Yorker to his wife was quite on hand and unceremonious, and he was requested to be seated and partake of the morning meal.

The young wife had prepared the steak, biscuit and coffee with her own hands, and for a table had used her kneading board, over which a napkin was spread, and the "board" placed on her lap. The New Yorker discovered a seat at the table, and took his leave. On making his report to his New York friends as to how he found his young friend living, he described the style as "magnificent,"—and for explanation of the superlative he said, that were he the owner of that young man's furniture, he would not take ten thousand dollars for the legs of his table!

DEATH OF THE REV. DR. COLTON.—The Rev. Calvin Colton, well known throughout the country, died at Savannah, Ga., on Friday week, and his remains have been sent to Massachusetts for interment. The deceased graduated at Yale College in 1812, was ordained a Presbyterian clergyman in 1815, and was settled at Batavia, N. Y., until 1825, when he partially lost the use of his voice. This induced him to devote his time to writing for periodicals, but in 1835, after a visit to Europe he took episcopal orders. Subsequently, however, he turned his attention to political matters, and from 1838 to 1842 wrote many political pamphlets. His "Jesuits" letters, written during the Harrison campaign, are thought to have had much influence in promoting the election of Gen. H. In 1842 he commenced editing a paper in Washington called the "True Whig," which he continued until 1844, when he went to Ashland to obtain materials for a life of Henry Clay, on which work together with the volumes of Mr. Clay's correspondence, he has since been engaged. The volumes have been published at intervals and the author was engaged on the last volume of his work when summoned away. The published works of Doctor Colton are numerous. Many of them are on political topics, but he has written much on theological matters. His last published work was entitled—"The Genius and Mission of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States," designed to show the regular descent of this church from its apostolic age.

MR. PEABODY'S MILITARY SERVICE.—The Augusta Evening Dispatch has the following anecdote of the great London banker

"Mr. Peabody was a soldier in the war of 1812. During his recent sojourn in Washington, he was solicited to put in his application for a bounty land warrant, and to gratify the desire of the Department to present him such a testimonial of his early devotion to his country, the records were searched, when it was found that he had served only twelve days, when the law required fourteen to entitle the applicant to a bounty.—This was about to turn the joke on Mr. Peabody, but the Department were anxious to get over the difficulty, and at his suggestion examined the records three years later, where his name was again found as a volunteer for two days, at Salem, Mass. This entitled him to the land warrant, and the singular incident was the subject of much merriment among his friends in Washington."

HEALTH OF ANIMALS.

To keep animals in health, is more important than to cure sick ones, and for this purpose a few leading rules should be always observed, and which cannot be out of place here.

1. Always feed regularly as to time and quantity. Many animals are made sick by starving at one time, and stuffing at another. Especially never overfeed.

2. The same rule must be observed with watering—and let the water be pure.

3. Never overwork an animal; regular and moderate exercise will enable a working animal to do more the year through, by all odds, than any hurried driving at one time, and resting and overfeeding at another; and he infinitely less liable to disease.

4. Allow a regular supply of salt; it is useful; but an observance of the preceding rules without salt, will be incomparably better than their infraction with it.

5. Never feed musty or bad food. If musty fodder must be used, pass it through a rapid cutter, and moisten, salt and meal it.

6. Avoid unwholesome and poisonous plants in pastures and in hay.

7. All changes of food must be gradual. If from hay to grass, let the grazing be but one hour the first day, two hours the next, three hours the next, &c. The same caution must be carefully observed in beginning to feed with roots, grain, &c.

8. Be careful that animals always have sufficient exercise, and plenty of pure, fresh air. Stables must be well ventilated.

9. Lastly, and by no means least, let strict cleanliness be observed. All animals, even pigs, kept clean and curried, are found to maintain their flesh better, or fatten faster, than when dirty and neglected—and cleanliness is more important to health than for flesh.

☞ A LETTER has been received at Washington from W. W. Drummond, United States Supreme Judge in Utah Territory, by the administration. It gives a sad and deplorable picture of matters in that Territory. The following is taken from the letter:

The leading men of the church are more traitorous than ever. Only a few days since all the papers, records, dockets, and nine hundred volumes of the laws, were taken out of the Supreme Court Clerk's office and burned, and this is not the only instance of the kind. I say to you again, and through you to the President, it is impossible for us to enforce the laws in this Territory. Every man here holds his life at the will of Brigham Young and here we are without protection. I am firmly of the opinion that Babbitt was murdered by Mormons, under direction of Brigham Young, and not by Indians. Murder is a common thing here, and Mormons cannot be punished with a Mormon jury, witnesses, officers, and Governor to pardon. It is too cruel, and must not be endured. A man, not a member of the church, is murdered, robbed, castrated and imprisoned, solely for questioning the authority of the church. Persons are now in the penitentiary, convicted before the Probate Judge, who are wholly innocent of any crime. Is there any other country where this abuse is or would be endured? Let all, then, take hold and crush out one of the most treasonable organizations in America.

A GOOD STORY.—Bev. Tucker is a trump, as the following story will show. It is related of him by the Washington correspondent of the Baltimore American:

"A good story is told of "Bev." Tucker, formerly editor of the Sentinel. It will be recollected that this paper was the first to bring forward Mr. Buchanan for the Presidency; and in that behalf battled manfully till the day of its death against its more fortunate rival, the 'Union.' Tucker is an applicant for the marshalship of the District of Columbia, a position now held by Josiah D. Hoover, Esq., who is a candidate for renomination. A few nights ago, when Mr. Buchanan, Hoover, Tucker and others were present, 'Bev.' said, 'Mr. President, I wish to inform you that it is the general expectation of our friends that my appointment as marshal is a fixed fact.' 'Hist,' said the President jocosely, 'before you can be appointed you must show your qualifications for the post.' 'Certainly' said 'Bev.,' 'I will do so,' and instantly turned around and taking Marshal Hoover by the hand, said, Mr. President allow me to present to you Josiah D. Hoover, Ex-Marshal of the District of Columbia." When it is recollected that one of the principal duties of the Marshal is to act as master of ceremonies at receptions, and introduce visitors to the President, the force of the joke will be appreciated."

PARODY.—We find the following parody upon McKay's "Tell me, ye winged winds" going the rounds:

"Tell me, ye winged winds,
That round my pathway roar,
Do ye not know some spot,
Where women fret no more?
Some lone and pleasant dell,
Some "holler" in the ground,
Where babes never yell,
And cradles are not found?"

The loud wind blew the snow into my face,
And snickered as it answered—"Nary place."

"Tell me, thou misty deep,
Whose billows round me play,
Know'st thou some favored spot
Some island far away,
Where weary man may find
A place to smoke in peace;
Where crinoline is not,
And hoops are out of place?"

The loud waves, sounding a perpetual shout,
Stopt for a while, and spluttered—"You get out."

A MALIGNANT WIFE.—A respectable Virginia farmer named Babb and his son were arrested in Petersburg, Va., on Monday, for fraud practiced upon a merchant in selling him lard with stones embedded in the centre of the firkins. It was in evidence that the wife of the elder Babb, and step-mother of the young man, had placed them there in furtherance of a malicious threat to get her husband, with whom she did not live happily, in trouble. The money was thereupon refunded and the case dismissed.

PORTS OF JAPAN OPEN.—It is stated in a foreign journal that the Emperor of Japan has resolved that two ports of the empire, those of Nangasaki and Hakodadi, shall be open to the vessels of all nations. There they might repair, take in provisions, establish depots of coal, &c. The other ports of the empire, moreover, are to be accessible to vessels in distress, which may take refuge in them, but which will have to put to sea the moment the danger is over. No foreigner is to be allowed to penetrate into the interior of the country without a special permission from the chief of the State.

THE LATE S. ZIMMERMAN, who was killed by the railroad accident in Canada, constructed four locks and an aqueduct on the Welland canal, which involved something like $10,000,000. Subsequently, he built, under contract, 120 miles of the Great Western Railway, the contract price for which was about $600,000. His property is valued at $3,000,000. He was married twice and leaves two sons, but both wives are dead.—His four elder brothers reside in Pennsylvania, and two younger ones lived with him. His residence at Niagara Falls was a magnificent one. The Rochester Democrat says:

Fifty-two acres on the cliff, directly opposite the American Falls, are enclosed with an iron fence and privet hedge. The topography of these grounds is diversified and picturesque. That part nearest the river is level, and this is laid out in graveled walks, with shubbery, forest trees and fountains.—One fountain was constructed at a cost of $15,000.

These groves and shaded promenades are lighted during the summer evenings with gas. The proprietor's residence stands on a bluff some sixty feet high, midway of the ample grounds. In the summer it is nearly hidden by the foliage of the surrounding trees.

He had perfected the most extended and elaborate plans for the establishment near the same spot of an elegant mansion-house, with the proper accessories and surroundings. The foundations of a building of Cleaveland sandstone and Canadian brick, to cost $175,000, were laid last year, and the work was to be done immediately. His lodges, of which there are four, the conservatory and tenements for his servants are models of taste. His stables, completed last year cost $48,000. From the terraces on the grounds and the portico of his dwelling a splendid view of the American Falls is obtained.

A SCHOOL GIRL'S LOVE.

There is both truth and poetry in the following lines, written by a school girl, and we dare say the recollection of those early dreams, so strangely different from the actual experience of life, are still the most pleasant of all memories. There is no sunshine like that of childhood.—It gleams through the clouds of disappointment, and smiles upon us till the river of life mingles with the ocean of eternity.

I could na' get my lesson,
Wi' the book before my een,
For the thought of Cannie Willie
Came a bobbin in between.

THE ARCTIC REGIONS.—It has been determined by the British Government to abandon all further search for the remains of Sir John Franklin. In the House of Commons, on a recent occasion, Mr. Napier invited attention to an appeal in favor of another search, and urged the Government to send a new expedition. Captain Sobell seconded the movement. It was opposed by Admiral Abbott, from a conviction of its fruitlessness, and Sir Charles Wood considered that any further search would be a useless destruction of human life.—He thought now no hope was left of discovering any of the party. It had been decided upon the best evidence that none had lived after the year 1853. The ships were lost, and the most valuable articles that could be found were discovered, and he thought that was sufficient evidence to conclude that all were dead; as those valuable records would never have been abandoned. For those reasons, feeling nevertheless great regret that many would be disappointed in the result, he could not take upon himself the risk of despatching a new expedition to the Arctic Regions. Mr. Whiteside took a similar view, and the motion was withdrawn.
