SATURDAY MORNING, OCT. 19, 1861.

THE EXPEDITION TO SANTA ROSA IS-LAND.

The Montgomery (Alabama) Advertiser of Fri-Amid the confusion and uncertainty of conflicting reports brought by passengers and letters by this morning's train from Pensacola. we had almost desprired of obtaining anything approaching reliability. We fortunately, however, found Dr. Manly, who happened to be at the scene of action on a peaceful mission, from whom we received a connected account. Dr. M.'s well known Remember, corner of Fayettevitle Street and Mar- accuracy of judgment will, we trust, be a sufficient for at least one hour, and, as far as I can learn, apology for the unwarranted use of his name. Everything was still in confusion when Dr. M. left at 9 o'clock last night, and the statement he gave us was, of course, made up from the sifting of the personal narratives of persons, more or less reliable, whom he heard relate them yesterday. His account is substantially as follows:

On Tuesday night, about 12 o'clock, sometwelve or fifteen hundred of our men, under command every description, will find me prepared this SPRING of Brigadier General Anderson, crossed the bay to furnish them with BETTER GOODS, at more in two small steamers and scows attached to them. The men were picked-generally from fourteen to seventeen in number -from the companies of the regiments from Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, and Mississippi, no full company being taken, except, perhaps, the Clinch Rifles, from Georgia. The party disembarked from a point opposite Pensacola, near Santa Rosa Island, about five miles from Fort Pickens. The men had to wade, and some of them to swim, to reach the beach. Some of their cartridges, &c., got wet. Landed on the Island, they were divided into two squads, one proceeding directly across to the southern beach, beyond Billy Wilson's camp, and the other marched down the northern beach, opposite each other. They killed the sentries as they went, some six in number, spiked the guns, set fire to the cabins in which the Zouaves were camped, and shot them as they ran out. All agree that the Zouaves ranincontinently for Fort Pickens. They rarely looked back or stopped to fire at our boys, but shot as they ran. They had thrown up some sand banks, but none of their big guns were mounted. Our men took over a goodly quantity of rat-tail files, with which they securely spiked every gun except two. They burnt all the houses and stores, except the hospital.

The only formidable resistance was from some U S. regulars, sent out from Fort Pickens to redeem abandoned. The regulars, however, finding our the North, says: force larger than they had expected, seemed to have become panic stricken, and retreated until 50 Overcoats with large capes, price 16, 18, 20 and our men were in the act of returning from the island, in obedience to the signal from the Navy Yard. They then advanced and fired deliberately at our men, huddled up in the boats, and did them more damage than they had received during the fight on the island. It was at this time that Gen. Anderson was wounded in the arm, Two or three guns were also fired at them when crossing from Fort Pickens, without effect. Our men supplied themselves well with small arms that they took from the enemy. They also killed one negro and captured another. Seventeen prisoners were seen that they brought back : how many, if any more, is not known. One account said the notorious Colonel, Billy Wilson, had made a straight run from his marque to the Fort. Another account from one of the captured prisoners stated that he had not slept at camp that night as usual, having remained at Fort Pickens. All statements from our men who participated agree that they killed between two and three hundred of the Yankees Our loss in killed and missing is forty, and thirty-five wounded, five of whom died yesterday. Most of our losses in the skirmish are attributed to cross firing, when our men were shooting at the Zuaves from opnosite sides, and to their not being able to distinguish the badge of their comrades in the dark. ness of the night, and shooting one another. Lieut. Sayre, when seen last, was on the beach, in a wounded condition, His friends who had him in charge had carried him two or three miles, and were finally compelled to leave him to save themselves. He had requested them to do so previously, but they clung to him to the last moment, and then put a coat under his head for a pillow. He was shot in the thigh, and was much exhausted from bleeding. He fought gallantly as long as he could. It is supposed he was taken prisoner in this helpless condition by the Yankees. Capt. Nelms, of one of the Georgia companies, was killed, whose death was greatly regretted. Notwithstanding the unfortunate accidents referred to, occasioning the death of so many of our brave soldiers, the object of the expedition was completely accomplished, and the result was highly satisfactory and inspiriting to the the officers and men of our army. The only object contemplated was the breaking up of Billy Wilson's camp, and not the taking of Fort Pickens. This was done completely. No artillery was taken over—only small arms, pick axes, fire balls, and files. A reserve force, composed of the remainder of the 5th Georgia Regiment, had started over to reinforce our men, when the signals were fired by General Bragg for the body on the island to return. It was about 9 o'clock in the morning, they had been entirely successful, and being in danger of being surrounded by the fleet and the force at Fort Pickens, it was thought prudent for the troops to recross the Bay. Major Vodges, one of the "distinguished" Yankee prisoners taken, told our officers that Colonel Brown, the commander at Fort Pickens, would open his batteries or them yesterday or last night; but, up to 9 o'clock when the train left no demonstration had been 45c. made. Our wounded were being well cared for by the ladies of Pensacola. The following is the 'correspondence between

Gen. Bragg and Col. Brown: HEADQUARTERS, DEP'T FLORIDA, Fort Pickens, Oct. 9, 1861.

U.S. Navy as the military hospital of this station, and you could not help knowing that it is now us d for that purpose.

Dealing with one who had been an old brother soldier of high reputation, I had hoped that our intercourse and conduct to the heatile attitude in which we are placed would be marked by all the courtesies and amenities of civilized warfare. But it seems from your communication that you claim the right to violate the hospital flag, because it may be abused. Admit this principle and we revert to a state of barbarism. The sick, the women and children, and the prisoners, must bebe abolished. Beauty and besty," "rape and rapine," must follow in the track of a victorious commander. I decline your invitation to make these the subjects of war. Your hospital flag has been, and shall be, respected. In the affair of Tue-day night, your nospital, with its inmates, was in our possession my orders to scrupulously respect both were rigidly enforced. Our hospital and the two adjacent buildings occupied by aredical officers, will continue to be used for legitimate purposes. Nothing has been or will be done to attract your fire. If, under these circumstances, you should put your threat into execution, which would be only in accordance with the acts of some of your brother commanders, of little experience in the custom of war, I shall take care that the fact shall be made known, that it may receive as it will deserve, the execuation of the civilized world.

WHY THE NORTH WAGES THIS WAR. It has been not unplausibly conjectured that one of the principal reasons why the North is so resolved upon the continued vigorous prosecution of the war is, that her people now know by experience the inestimable value to them of the Southern trade. If they knew this before, they affected to deny it, and sought parsistently to disparage our wealth and resources. The North fancied the subjugation of the South a mere holiday task, and fondly imagined that in a few months they would be enabled to conquer us hold us as subject provinces, and compel us to resume the former channels of mercantile communication. The New Orleans Bee, speaking of " the ground which the cowardly Zouaves had the sauses and effects of this war, on the part of

Since the commencement of hostilities they have gradually lost the entire commerca of the South, and they are well aware that if for all future time this vast source of opulence is forfeited by them, the mercantile marts of New England and the Middle States will be hopelessly ruinel. Nothing can possibly save them except the recoverv of that magnificent trade which has enrighed New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and create i millionaires and merchant princes in those cities. It may be urged that the South can never be again induced to maintain important business relations with the North. Probably this would be the case were the South permitted quietly to accomplish the work of separation. Hence, the people of the North think their only chance of getting back Southern trade-or making our country once more tributary to their growth and aggrandisement, is to conquer us, hold us as subect provinces, and compel us to resume the forper channels of mercantile communication .-They freely acknowledge that the war injures them terribly, but they argue that the sacrifice, inmense as it is, will be more han compensated by the return of the Southern States into the Union. Moreover, they affirm that to give up the strongle would entail upon them irretrievable pecuniary di-aster, and that they cannot loss more by continuing it, especially as they hold that it must prove in the end successful.

This, it will be admitted, is but shallow reasoning; but when did sectional hatred, fanatical zeal. baffled rapacity, and the fierce spirit of vengeance ever pause to listen to the dispussionate coursels of reflection? Doubtless, had the people of the North, when they went crazy at the capture of Fort Sumter, even remotely conceived the maynitude of the enterprise which lay before them. they would sooner have deposed and hanged Abe Lincoln and his Cabinet than have engaged in a war so fruitful in calamity to them, and so uncertain in its curation. But they were hurried on by the last of revenge, and were buryed up by the encouraging thought of their numerical suporiority. They fancied the subjugation a mere holiday task, and fondly imagined, that in a few months, they would be enabled to glut at once their avarice and their animosity. Now, although they have discovered, with bitterness of spirit, how fearful is the error into which they have fallen, so much is at stake that they dare not retreat. With the guilty usurper of Scotland's crown, they may say : "We are in blood Steps in so far, that should we wade no more,

Return'ng were as tedious as go on."
