WEDNESDAY MORNING, OCT. 30, 1861.

ARTEMUS WARD SEES THE PRINCE NAPOLEON.

Notwithstanin I hain't writ much for the papers of late, nobody needn't flatter theirselves that the undersined is ded. On the contry, "I still live," which words was spoken by Danyil ded now, howsever, and his mantle has probly fallen into the hands of some dealer in 2d hand close, who can't sell it. Leastways nobody peers to be goin round wearin it to any perticler extent now days.

The regiment of whom I was kurnet finerly concluded they was better adapted as Home Guards, which accounts for your not hearin of me ere this, where the balls is the thickest and where the ornnon doth roar. But as an American citizen, I shall never cease to admire the masterly sevance our troops made on Washinton from mind. Besides, I think it improves a while. Bull's Run, a short time ago. It was well dun. I spoke to my wife 'bout it at the time. My wife said it was well dun.

It having there4 bin determined to purtect Baldinsville at all hazzurds; and as there was no apprehension of any immelit danger, I thought I would go orf onto a pleasure tower. According-Washinton. I went there to see the Prints Napoleon, and not to see the place, which I will here take occasion to obsarve is about as uninterestin a it so warm for him that he will si for his summer close. It is easy enough to see why a man goes

I put up to a leadin hotel. I saw the landlord and sed, "How d'ye do, Square?" "Fifty cents, sir," was his reply.

"Half a dollar. We charge twenty-five cents for lookin at the landlord and fifty cents for speakin to him. If you want supper a boy will show you to the dinin room for twenty-five cents .-Your room bein in the tenth story, it will cost you a dollar to be shown up there."

this equinomikal tavurn?" sed I. "Ten cents a breth," was his reply. Washinton hotels is very reasonable in their charges. [N. B.—This is Sarkassum] I sent my kred to the Prints, and was immejitly ushered before him. He received me kindly,

"How much do you ax a man for breathin in and axed me to sit down. "I have cum to pay my respecks to you, Mister Napoleon, hopin I see you hale and hearty. "I am quite well," he sed. "Air you well, sir?" mound as a cuss !" I answered.

He seemed to be pleased with my ways, and we entered into conversation to cnct. "How's Lewis?" I axed, and he sed the Emperor was well. Eugeny was likewise well he sed. Then I axed him was Lewis a good provider? Did he cum home arly nites; did he pering the future. For, let our home demand be foom her bed room at a onseasonable hour with | what it may, it cannot bring trade to the flourishgin and tanzy? Did he go to the "Lodge" on ing position it occupied prior to the outbreak of nites when there wasn't any Lodge? Did he of hostilities in America. The many thousands who ten hav a extensiv acquaintance among poor young widders whose husbans was in Californy? To all of which questions the Prints perlitely re- hardships next winter, and unless we can by some plide, given me to understand that the Emperor was behavin well. "I ax these question; my royal duke, and most noble highness and imperials, becaws I'm anxious to know how he stands as a mana I know he's smart; he is cunnin, he's long-hedded, he is depe -he is grate! But onless he is good, he'll come down with a crash one of these days, and the of any such change being made; but it is upon a Bonyparts will be bustid up agin. Bet yer life!" "Air you a preacher, sir?" he inquired, slitely sarkasticul. "No, air. But I bleeve in morality, I likewise bleeve in Meetin Houses. Show me a place where there isn't any Meetin Houses, and where preachers is never seen, and I'll show you a place where old has air stuffed into broken winders, where the children air dirty and ragged, where gates have no hinges, where the wimin air slip-shod, have no hinges, where the wimin air slip-shod, and where maps of the devel's 'wild lands' are the Hessians thought the blockade would deprive painted upon men's shirt bosums with tobacco er what the preachers do for us before we aboose He sed he didn't mean to aboose the clergy. At present, about a barrel of pegs or more can be successfully turned out in a day by the aid of this Not at all, and he was happy to see that I was interested in the Bonypart family. "Its a great family," sed I. "But they seconed the old man in." "How, sir ?" "Napoleon the Grand. The Britishers scooped him at Waterloo. He wanted to do too much, and he did it. They scooped him in at Waterloo, and he subsequently died at St. Heleny. There's where the greatest military man the world ever produced pegged out. It was rather hard to consine such a man as him to St. Heleny, to spend his larst days in catchin mackeril, and walkin up and down the dreary beach in a military cloak, drawn tightly round him, (see picter books;) but so it was. 'Hed of the Army!' Them was his larst words. So he had bin. He was great! Don't I wish we had a pair of his old boots to command some of our brigades!"

This pleased Jerome, and he took me warmly "Alixander the Grate was punkins," I continnered, "but Napoleon was punkinser! Alic wept becaws there was no more wurlds to scoop, and then took to drinkin. He drowned his sorrers in the flowin bole, and the flowin bole was too much for him. It generally is. He undertook to give a snake exhibition in his boots, but it killed him. That was a bad joke for Alic!

"Since you are so solicitous about France, and the Emperor, may I ask you how your own country is getting along ?" sed Jerome, in a pleas-"It's mixed," I sed. "But I think we shall cum out all right." "Columbus, when he diskivered this magnificent continent, could have had no idee of the grandeur it would one day assoom," sed the Prints.

"It cost Columbus twenty thousand dollars to fit out his explorin' expedition," says I. "If he had bin a sensible man he'd have have put the money in hose railroad or a gass comppany, and left this magnificent continent to the intelligent savages, who, when they got hold of a good thing knew enuff to keep it, and who wouldn't have seced d nor rebelled, nor knockt Liberty in the hed with a slung-shot. Columbus wasn't much of a feller after all It would have bin money in my pocket if he'd staid at home. Chris. ment well, but he put his foot in it when he sailed for Americar." We talked sum more about matters and things, and at lust I riz to go. "I will now say good bye to you, noble sir, and good luck to you. Likewise the same to Clotildy. Also, to the gorgeous persons which compose your soot. If the Empsror's boy-den't like living at the Tooleries, when he gits older, and would like to imback in the show bizines, let him come with me and I'll make a man of him. You find us somewhat mixed, as I before observed, but come agin next year, and you'll find us clearer nor ever. Mind what I say. You've heard the showman !"

Then advisin'him to keep away from the Peter Funk suctions of the East, and the proprietors of corner lots in the West, I bid him farewell and Went away. There was a levee at Senator what's-his-name's and I thought I'd jine in the festivities for a spell. Who should I see but she that was Serah Watkins, now the wife of our Congresser, trippin in the dance, dressed up to kill in her store close. Sarah's father used to keep a little grocery store in our town, and she used to clerk in it for him, in busy times. I was rushing up to shake Webster, who was an ab'e man. Even old line hands with her, when she turned on her heel, and whigs of Boston will admit that. Webster is tossing her heading contemptuous manner, walked tossing her headin a contemptuous manner, walked away from me very rapid, "Hallo, Sal," I hollered, "can't you measure me a quart of them best molasses? I may want a codiish, also!" I guess this reminded her of the lid red store, and the days of her happy childhood.

But I fell in with a nice little gal after that who was much sweeter than Sally's father's molasses, and axed her if we shouldn't glide in the merry dance. She sed we should, and we glode.

I intended to make this letter very seris, but a few goaks may have accidently crept in. Never

> Yours Muchly. WARD, (ARTEMUS.)

A GOOD ONE ON GENERAL MAGRUDER Everybody on the Ouachita river, and especially in Monroe and Trenton, Louisiana, knows Ned Phelps, former clerk of the magnificent steamer, "Pargoud." Ned is a private in com-pany A, of the the "Cresent R'fles," First Louisiana Battalion, better known as the "Charley Dreux Battalion." This battalion was, and is on locality as there is this side J. Davis's futer home, if the peninsula, under Gen. Magruder. For a ever he does die, and where I reckon they'll make | while Gen. Magruder used to take the troops under his command, and carry them on long and wearisome marches through the peninsula. On one of these expeditions he had marched—so the to the poor-house or the penitentiary. It's be-caws he can't help it. But why he should wolun-boys'say—the Draux Battalion sixteen hours, tarily go and live in Washinton is entirely be-through a drenching rain, when finally, morning yond my comprehension, and I can't say no fairer came, with the "boys" broken down and nearly famished. No particular hardship in this as it is occasionally the fate of all soldiers -so to supper. Gen. Magruder, being "General," went to a farm bouse, near his encampment, and ordered a bot breakfast. It was soon forthcoming, and the General had just begun to enjoy it, when Ned Phelps walked in and, without saying a word to the General or anybody else, commenced eating very heartily. The General leaned back amazed, as at him gazed," and laid down his knife and fork, with just breath enough to ask: "Sir,do you know whom you are eating with?" No! replied Ned Phelps, still helping himself. "No, I don't know who I am sating with, Since I came soldiering I havn't been at all particular whom I ate with, so the victuals were clean !"

GLOOMY FUTURE FOR ENGLAND. A short cotton supply in England is contemplated with gloomy forebodings. The London Chronicle, of the 19th ult., says : The bountiful harvest has saved thousands from utter want, and it would be impossible to over estimate the advantages it will be the means of conferring on the poorer classes during the remainder of this and the greater part of next year. But depend upon iron and cotton manufactures for their daily bread must inevitably undergo many means obtain supplies of cotton, still greater calamities will surely overtake us. We do not perceive any means by which this end can be gained—unless, indeed, the Confederates change their determination, and all impediments to our commerce be removed. It is need. less for us to point out the extreme unlikelihood slender foundation such as this, that we must build our hopes, or accept this alternative of looking forward to a "cotton famine," abandoned mills, and starved opera ors.

SHOE PEG INVENTION.

The Columbus (Ga.) Sun, of the 18th, says: Mr. A. D. Brown, Sr., of this city, has invented and put into practical operation a machine for us of. The machine can be worked at any rejooce! That's what I'll show you. Let us consid- quisite guage and the pegs can therefore be made of any size and the points any desired angle .-

CAVALRY DRILL AND REVIEW .- Col. Ransom's splendid regiment of North Carolina Cava alry was out on the field adjacent to Hollywood, Sunday morning, for the purpose of drill. The movements were finely executed, particularly the order to "charge," which was a sight worth going a long way to see.

The regiment was reviewed yesterday afternoon by President Davis, who expressed himself high-ly pleased with the efficiency and unexceptionsble appearance of the command. A large throng of persons, tucluding many ladies, took advantage of this opportunity to witness one of the most imposing of military spectacles. The horses of the regiment are not only remarkable for their quality and condition, but their training is excellent. To North Carolina belongs the honor of sending forth the finest body of eavalry now in the service of the country .- Richmond Dis-
