James H. Hurlburt, belonging to the First Connecticut regiment, who was taken prisoner at Bull Run, was unconditionally released at Richmond in , consequence of the services he rendered He has returned home and brought with him a number of maps of the country and of defences of Richmond, which were drawn by a Union man in that city. He had them concealed in the lining of his pantaloons. WOOD AND FREMGAT.

A correspondent of the Atlanta Southern Confederacy, who has seen New York papers of quite a recent date, writes as follows of Fernando Wood and John C. Fremont:

NO 4.

Fremont and Fernando Wood are still intrigang for their respective schemes for the dismemberment of what remains of the United States .--If England engages in war with the United States Government, its speedy destruction is uighly probable. The whole North would instinctively perceive the folly of trying to stand up under the burden of a double war with Engente in Congress to persuade that body to 'put a land and the Confederate States. The almost termination to the war, and in convincing old certain overthrow that would stare them in the Abe of the impossibility of conquering the South ; face would greatly fabilitate Fremont's schemes but they say that they have little hope that for a Western empire. It would also add powerhe can succeed in that. Mr. Ely, of course, has fully to the strength of Wood's intrigues in New made no such promise. His release is uncondi- | York. Small cots are placed in the room at night, and taken out in the morn- ing. The hostages at Richmond and Charleston will certainly be hung if the Savannah privateers- men are executed. Mr. Ely is strongly impressed with the impor- tance of making a regular exchange of prisoners, although he disclaims any intention of criticising the policy of the administration in that matter. He says that the rebels are well informed of our strength and movementsmuch better than we are of theirs. He left Richmond at five o'clock in the morning, and was surprised and somewhat alarmed at seeing an immense crowd at the depot. He was assured by Mz. Sage, of Louisians, a gen- tleman connected with the rebel government, that he should not be injured. The morning paper at Petersburg had announced his expected arrival, which drew the crowd together.
