NOTHER BRILLIANT VICTORY !--While on my recent visit to the Old Dominion, I had the good fortune to procure from an old riend a demijohn of Rose Cordial of the most delectable flavor-a splendid and invigorating article for the sick Call, by all means, and get some before it is gone; price 25 cents a bottle. Among the choice variety of other things too tedious to mention, to which the attention of the public is respectfully called, I have a fine lot of the best Hair Brushes. If you want to feel good and poetical in these gloomy times, just call around, procure a brush and a bottle of cordial, and I

WEDNESDAY MORNING, APRIL 2, 1862.

THE SPIRIT OF THE LADIES OF BAL-TIMORE. A Baltimorean, who recently came South, via the Undergound Railroad, and in whose statement we have full confidence, sends us the folly took place at Fort McHenry a short time ago :

and red." Bonnets are so constantly - trimmed nor, we are confident of the future !" with a red, a white, and again, a red rose, that even the manufacturers have been prohibited from making these rebellious flowers, in order to support the Government." Yet, the ladies, who are ven out of his own State, and seaking refuge in done in this matter. The insulting Yankee sol | dent of the future, what ought to be the feeling desmoiselles, and even went so far as to tear the spirit, self-poised, patient, hopeful, unconquerable, trimming from their bonnets.

on the subject. Now, it is a fact, General Dix is | the ship? really in awe of the Baltimore ladies. The sight ladies were seated until the colloquy was over .- | tell the story of their misfortune. The clergyman was from the South, had been

"I have heard of an underground railway," said the clergyman, "Possibly you could give me some knowledge of its operations," etc. "I, too, have heard of the same, sir," said commander, "But with all my vigilance and or the conductor. Apply to any of the re-

The General utterly confounded, made no reply, when the lady continued: "Do not keep us in suspense, Gen. Dix. Let us know your decision at once. You know we cannot trust the miserable poltroons that now infest our beautiful city. I hear, sir, in case Gen. Beauregard attempts to relieve us, you have made arrangements to shell Baltimore. Do you know why this fort was built? For our protection, not destruction. How you have hated us! how jealous the Yankees have always been of us! even the Yankee ladies could never speak of the ladies of this city otherwise than invidiously. You know the Baltimore ladies are noted for a rare refinement and beauty, foreign to the daughters of your soil, hence their envy. You would like to destroy this "new Sodom," and fear is all that prevents you, for you think the Confederates would retaliate upon your "big Babylon," and other cities. If I had my way, I would send every Southerner away, and set fire to the city rather than have it, as it is, under Yankee rule. Since the 19th of April, that memorable day, when your Massachusetts troops were so enthusiastically driven back by our unprepared citizens, the Northern press has styled this city the "headquarters of mobocracy." We like the name; indeed any remembrance of the day that proved to the South we were theirs, though taken by surprise, and without arms, we were ready to shed our blood for their cause. Yes, and allusion to that day fills my heart with generous eathusiasm. Then we were free, now we are but galley slaves of the Abolition Administration .-If we, the 'rebel ladies,' as you are pleased to style us, could have been armed, I believe the city at this time would be rid of the hostile troops that now surround it. But I have digressed, Gen. Dix. Why do you not speak to me about the bonnets?" Before the General could answer, two sable maids came forward, one with some samples of red and white ribbon. Her mistress had sent to ask Gen. Dix if her little infant might be dressed with such trimmings; the other came on a similar errand relative to some red and white socks which little master Harry wished to wear. The General, overwhelmed by these weighty matters, sank back in his chair in utter hopelessness. The young lady aroused him by inquiring, 'Do you not feel debased when you reflect upon the miserable cause you have espoused? No wonder you dislike to see ladies here. They are agt to tell you of the shameful character of a government that causes infants to be arrested and taken to that diabolical stand—the office of the LERY Extracted from GILHAM'S MAN- WOOD AND WILLOW WARE. The young lady's criminative attack proved too much for the veteran officer. He was carried to his private apartment, put to bed, and kept his room for a forinight afterwards. The young lady would now be in custody with

Mrs. Greenhow and other lady prisoners, but that her father bappens to be an Englishman. Since the Trent affair, the Yankees are very circumspect in their treatment of British subjects. The clergy man called to see the lady next day at the appointed hour. She actually sent him South with the recruits to which she had referred. and, thanks to her daily mail, the Maryland soldiers constantly hear from their friends.

CONFIRMATION OF A YANKEB OUTRAGE. -The DINE GOLD JEWELRY .-- THE SUB-Goldsborough correspondent of the Petersburg Express writes:

The greatest outrage and cruelty that ever was committed in any part of the civilized world was witnessed at Newbern last Friday. The Yankee Hessians, without giving any notice to remove women and children out of the town, after passing the batteries, came up with their gunboats and fired bombshells into the town for two hours, apparently trying to kill as many helpless wo-men and children as possible.

"GOVERNOR, WE ARE CONFIDENT OF THE FUTURE."

Such is the inspiriting language of the heroic Price. Fie penned these glorious words on the 25th of February, at the end of a long retreat before a largely superior force. He had fallen back from St. Clair county to Springfield, from Springfield, Springfield to Cassville, and from Cassville below the Arkansas line. His force was small when he began his retrugade movement, and reinforcements did not meet him as rapidly as he had expected. The enemy pressed upon his track, and as he retired deeper into the country, it was with lowing sketch of an amusing scene which actual- the consciousness that a far superior torce was tundering at his heels. WEEKLY, One Year, THE DAY BOOK HAS NOW BECOME THE newspaper of the South. The very latest Northern and European News appears in its columns, one, two, and three days in advance of all other papers in the Confederacy.

We submit the following extracts from what others have to say of us . D. T. Bissin, Esq., who has lately returned from Europe, with important dispatches to the Confederate States Government, says in a recent letter: "While in London and Paris, I saw several quotations from the NORFOLK DAY BOOK, and sivce my return I have also noticed extracts from the same sprightly journal in the newspapers of New York, Charleston, and other cities."

The Norfolk Day Book, which is so fast gaining popularity broughout the Southern Confederacy, comes to us greatly enlarged and improved, and gives us Northern and Foreign News in advance of any of our other exchanges, and is, therefore, perused with awidity."

tary of War to raise a Battalion of Mounted Men, armed with the LANCE, that fit weapon for Southern chivairy and heroism. All desiring to enlist under me will please forward their names immediately.

This is no time for North Carolinians to dally. The enemy is on us! and already our own soil is the des-ecrated tramping ground of his unhallowed feet.— Shame on him! who now lays down his musket for the distaff and the apron, and leaves the battlefield of the brave for the home where indolence reigns and cowardice skulks. War—war to the knife—the knife to the hilt, should be the battle cry of every Carolina brave, till the fiends who invade us are whipped back to the foul dens from whence they came.
