LATEST FROM THE NORTH. RICHMOND, Dec. 29.

The New York Herald of the 25th, contains details of recent military operations in N. and claims a splendid success for the Union

In a despendent editorial the Herald urges mour to call a convention of loyal States indinvite rebel States to co-operate. Unless the rebettion is crushed before the pring, the rebels will have Napoleon for an ally. A dispatch from Cairo says it is reported at Memphis that the rebels have gone towards irand Junction, but nothing is known positively. A small rebel force made a raid on the suburbs of Memphis, on Sunday night, pillaged several stores, and carried off 100 cattle and 180 mules. Gold in New York 24th, 132.

LATEST FROM THE NORTH. PETERSBURG, Dec. 29. Northern dates to the 26th received.

Christmas was a dull day with the army of the Rappahannock. The depletion of sutler's stores rendered the day dreary. No movements whatever have taken place on either side of the river, nor is there any indication of an immediate renewal of hostilities.

The Herald says the campaign in the Mississippi s assuming an important shape. It may not be long before two severe battles will have to be recorded in that region-one at Vicksburg, another at Jackson. Perter's grand naval expedition is to surpass all others in magnitude. According to a register just published, the abotion army embraces over a million of men. A fire involving a loss of sixty-five thousand dollars occurred in Washington street, New York, on Thursday.

The Baltimore American's Suffolk correspon dent is satisfied that the army in that vicinity is capable of marching into Richmond. He says the roads leading to the rebel capital are good and ess protected than any other route, and the soldiers are all anxious to undertake the job.

Attorney General Bates regards the admission of Western Virginia as unconstitutional.— Lincoln, it is thought, will not sign the bill.

The Herald says the rebels in Western Tennes-ee and Northern Mississippi appear to have involved all our combinations against them in serious difficulties and drawbacks, and we shall be agreeably disappointed if great victories intend of disheartening reverses shall be the result of the winter's campaign in the Southwest as now con-

The Herald says Foster's operations in North Carolina amount to nothing. The expedition should never have been attempted unless it was ntended to hold the railroad junction at Goldsboro', which commands the Atlantic Seaboard ine, and constitutes a channel through which Richmond receives supplies from the Southern rebel States. The only result of the late effort will be to arouse the attention of the rebels to the importance of concentrating such forces there as will defy further attempts on our part to cut this mportant link in their lines of communication. The attempt and the failure are of a piece with all the other brilliant efforts of Washington generalship. What a pity that such a dash and herosm, on the part of both officers and men, should have been thrown away on an enterprise which, ike the assault on the enemy's lines at Freder eksburg, was destined, from the first, to be fruit-

FROM FREDERICKSBURG. The advices received from Fredericksburg yes terday render it pretty certain that the enemy forces have retired to the banks of the Potomac. Their camp-fires, which have been seen nightly on the Stafford side of the Rappahannock since their evacuation of Fredericksburg, have nearly all disappeared, and it is evident, from all the indications that the larger portion of their grand army, satisfied with the decisive repulse on the 13th, has retired Northward.

One report states that Burnside commenced the embarkation of his troops at Aquia Creek in the early part of the week, and it was believed that Washington was their destination. No doubt they feel solicitous for the safety of their capital again. Richmond Dispatch.

BURNSIDE-HIS ANTECEDENTS, &c. The Richmond correspondent of the Grenads Appeal gives the following account of McClellan's

Gen. Ambrose Everett Burnside, who supplants the "Young Napoleon," is one of the most courtecus and well behaving officers of the Yankee army He was born in Indiana and entered the Military Academy of West Point from that State in the year 1843, in the same class with Ambrose P. Hill and Henry He:b, who are now Generals in the Confederate service. Having served some years in the artillery after graduation, he resigned his commission and went to live in Rhode Island. where he had married a woman of wealth and accomplishment. All his own private resources and the greater part of his wife's fortune were spent by him in preparations for the manufacture on a large scale of a new rifle of his own invention upon which there had been a favorable report from an army commission appoint to examine it, and for which he expected a great contract from the Secretary of War.

In this he was disappointed. Gen. Floyd, who was then at the head of the War Department of the United States, awarded the contract to other parties. McClellan was at the time, as he now is, President of the Illinois Central Railway, enjoying a fat salary and wielding a considerable patronage, and he offered Burnside a clerkship with a salary of two thousand dollars a year, which was accepted. The two friends were managing the affairs of the railway when the present war broke out, affording to both the chance of military glory, and to Burnside the hope of bettering his his estate. They both o tained permanent positions, and have since been constantly before the public eye. Burnside's most intimate personal friends-General Heth, Maury, Field, and others are on the Scuthern side fighting the battle of freedom and independence.

On repeated occasions Burnside is said to have behaved with unexpected courtesy toward the Confederates, more especially in the Roaneke Island affair, where the lamented O. Jennings Wise was killed, and in his bearing toward non-combatant citizens of Fredericksburg and its neighborhood, one or two of whom he certainly discharged from arrest, though they had been apprehended by special order of Stanton, Lincoln's Secretary of War. To a gentleman-whose name and county it is not proper to give-Burnside declared, less than three months ago, that when this war upon the South became a war for the extermination of slavery he should resign his com-

The proclamation has been published several weeks, and he has not resigned. On the contrary, he takes command of the grand army of invasion and comes to ineite the slaves to revolt in the spirit of his master. Doubtless, when Burnside made that speech about resigning, he was sincere, and really meant it; but the temptation of military fame was too strong.

The Richmond correspondent of the Charleston Mercury writes the following incident in his mil-

A friend, who was a merchant in Washington dity at the first battle of Manassas, and who left the week following, was amusing me the other night with sundry incidents connected with Washington and that battle, both prior and subsequent to it. Among others he mentioned that this Gen. Burnside, a short time previous to the battle, passed through the city in command of the, or a Rhode Island brigade. On having some encemfums bestowed upon it, he publicly remarked, he commanded a brigade which could with ease march from Washington to the Gulf." When he eft Washington "he wore a wreath" of flowers around one of his arms, and carried an immense bouquet in his hand. Such was Gen. Burnside on starting on his first military expedition. On the day after the battle he returned, looking so baggard that my friend, who saw him, said he looked as if he had been on a "bust" for three weeks .-Of his entire brigade but little over a hundred could be rallied. When or where the demoralzed mass ever got together I never learned.

THE PRIVATE SOLDIER OF THE CONFEDERATE

"And when we turn to our armies truly these victories are the victories of the privates. God eld, and was about visiting other places when he forbid that I should take one atom of honor or of sent upon by an overwhelming rebel force praise from those who led our hosts upon those days of glory-from the accomplished and skilful the Amirable Urichton of our armies-from The Advertiser of Register has a dispatch dated wait—from the intrepid Stuart, whose cavalry charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges imitate those of Mura; from the great host charges in the first charges char of Generals who swarm around our country's flag as Napoleon's Marshals did around the Imperial Eagle; but, nevertheless our victories are the victories of the privates. It is the enthusiaswhich they rush even to the cannon's mouth, the utter recklessness of life, if so be that its sacrifice may only lead to victory, the heartfelt impression that the cause is the cause of every man and that success is a necessity. What intense honor do I feel for the private soldier! The officers may have motives other than the cause the private soldier can have none. He knows that his valor must pass unnoticed, save in the narrow circle of his company, that his sacrifice can bring no honor to his name, no reputation to his family; that if he survives, he lives only to enter upon new dangers with the same hopelessness of distinction; that if he dies he will receive nothing but an unmarked grave, and yet is he proud to do his duty and to maintain his part in the destructive conflict. His comrades fall around him thick and fast, but with a sigh and tear he closes his ranks and presses on to a like destiny. Truly, the first monument which our Confederacy rears, when our independence shall have been won, should be a lofty shalt, pure and spotless, bearing this inscription:

Both the New York Herald and the World assert that the advance movement upon Fredericks. burg was not undertaken in accordance with General Burnside's own judgment, but was peremptorily ordered by the military authorities in Washington. The World makes the following statement:

We have no words of unkindness for General Burnside. He is a very different style of man from the braggart Pope, and deserves commiseration rather than censure in his heavy misfortune. Gen. Burnside acted under strict orders; he was compelled to move upon Fredericksburg by peremptory directions from Washington, which domineered over his judgment and extorted his obedience. When he was ordered to Fredericks-burg he had the promise of Gen. Halleck that his pontoons should meet him there. Gen. Halleck forgot to give to give the order, and they were delayed so long that the enemy occupied the heights. In this emergency a council of war was held; all the corps commanders opposed an advance; but Burnside said in conclusion, that he was compelled to advance by orders from Wash-

ALLEGED CURE FOR SMALL-POX. A correspondent in Covington sends the following "alleged cure for small-pox." He says he cut it from a paper some years since. The remedy may be a good one, and if so, its publication at this time may be attended with benefit to those who are so unfortunate as to contract that leath. some disease, now becoming se prevalent in different portions of our Confederacy:

The United States Consul at the Rio Grande de Sul, Brazil, has transmitted to the Department of State a very interesting communication from Dr. R. Landell, of Post Alegre, claiming the discovery of a cure for the small-pox. Dr. Landell states that the idea of using the remedy to be mentioned first occurred to him during a terrible epidemic of the disease in 1837; but that he first administered it in 1842, since which time his success, and that of his son, Dr. John Landell, and other colleagues in the treatment of small-pox, has been most flattering.
