COMMITTAL OF MAJOR SANDERS TO FORT LAFAYATTE:

Major Baid Sanders, who fell into the hands of the blockaders of Charleston with the "intercepted dispatches," was examined in New York on the 1st inst., and committed to Fort Lafayette. The Herald says:

He was then under the assumed name of Geo. A. Sherman, and claimed to be a British subject. He was dressed in mechanies' apparel, and on being searched documents were found secreted on his person which confirmed the suspicion that he was bearer of rebel dispatches. Sanders was conveyed to this port, and transmitted from the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, to the custody of the United States Marshal, where it was thought be would be a valueble witness in condemning the prize vessel on board of which he was when cap-tured. He here denied his identity, insisted that his name was Sherman, and that he was a British bject. This subterfuge was, however, detected by Prize Commissioner Elliott, who recognized him as Reid Sanders, son of George Sanders, with whom he (the Commissioner) had been well acquainted.

The Marshal said he was also acquainted with Sanders's father and mother, and that the movements of the accord were watched from the time he left home until he was brought to this city.— Sanders ultimately acknowledged his name, and admitted that he was known at home as Major Reid Sanders, of the Costederate army. He asked that he might not be sent to Fort Latayette, as he was in bad health. A physician, however, was consulted, and he was transpitted to Fort Lafayette on Saturday, under the charge of Deputies Pool and Buckley. Major Rad Sanders is somewhat like his father, stout and santed, ruddy complexion, and about twenty-five years of age.— His apparel was an excellent displace, and com-pletely transformed the man of mutary bearing into the laborer in search of hire.

THE REPORTED DESTRUCTION OF THE FLORIDA.

The Northern papers, of the 2d, contin the rumors which were in circulation at Have, on the 28th ult., of the Confederate steamer Fig. ia, (nee Ovieto.) The following is a summary of zas and Cardenas as if coming from vessels of war engaged in a serious contest at sea. It was also stated that the Florida, or some other rebel vessel, had been chased by several United gunboats, but with what result had not been learned. It was then believed at Matanzas that the firing and chasing were connected with the same vessel. This rumor was strengthened by the arrival of the Creole, from New York, on the following day, which reported that she had been spoken by the Union gunboat Cayuga, which vessel reported that she had observed a steamer on fire, supposed to be the Florida, and that three other vessels were firing into her with great rapidity. The locality of Raleigh Standard. this engagement was not definitely stated; but that it was in the vicinity of the Cayes, off denas and Matanzas.

There was great activity on the other side of the river on Friday, during the day and night. The cars were running all night. Troops were seen moving up the river Saturday morning, and it is thought some went off by the cars Saturday

A signal gun was fired on the Yankee side, about 11 o'clock Friday morning, for some cause. Firing was heard up the river Saturday merning. The rumbling of artillery, as if in motion, down the river, was distinctly heard all last night.

From the Richmond Enquirer. AID AND COMFORT TO THE ENEMY. We have had occasion lately to expose the injury being done the cause of Confederate independence by the course pursued by the so-called Conservatives of North Carolina. The defeat of Conservatives of North Carolina. The defeat of the Ten Regiment Bill has recovered that State from the odium that would have attached to it had that impolitic measure been adopted. We should have dismissed the subject when the defeat of that bill had settled the fact that North Carolina was not to be dragged by the so-called Conservatives into even seeming opposition to the Cenfederate Government, but our attention has been called to the Baltimore American of January 31st, which parades extracts from the Releigh ry 31st, which parades extracts from the Releigh Standard to encourage the Federal Government in the hope that the people of North Carolina still entertain feelings of allegiance to the United

We quote the following:
THE RICHMOND USURPATION GETTING TO BE APPRECIATED. We gave in our last issue, amongst the news items, the fierce denunciations of the Raleigh Standard applied to the rebel authorities at Richmond; and when we consider, in connection with these sentiments of a leading journal published in the capital of North Carolina. the views little less complimentary to the princi-pal conspirators recently put forth by Governor Vance, the conclusion is plain that the old North State is anything but satisfied in its alliance with treason. A single bitter sentence in the article referred to in the Standard comprises an amount of dissatisfaction, of angry disgust, than which nothing can be more expressive of utter condemnation of the military despotism established at Richmond. Their motto was, divide and destroy; and their motto now is, consolidated rule or ruin." From McMinnville, on the 8th, we have learned that Coi. Martia of Morgan's Brigade with one hundred men attacked Reynold's division yesterday, killing a number and wounding a number of the enemy's the enemy and burning a number of the enemy's wagons with provisions.

Blotto now is, consolidated rule or ruln.

The people of North Corolina can see from the above extract how their patriotism has been belied, their noble efforts misrepresented, and how the course pursued by the Raleigh Standard has been an invitation to Mr. Lincoln to send forces into North Carolina, under the hope held out by the Standard, that as most lives up to the Standard. that sympathizers would rise up to meet the "old government" and aid it to over-throw the "Richmond conspirators." The inva-sion of North Carolina was regarded as invited by "a leading journal published in the capital of North Carolina," and, of course, understood to represent some portion of the people, and from its outspoken and bold language, believed to speak the sentiments of the dominant party in that State.

The American further quotes the Standard:
"But when the Raleigh paper now indignantly tells the Richmond conspirators, albeit in coarse terms, that they labored to break down the old government because they were about to lose the beef, and they would break the new one before they would part with the carcass upon which the vultures are settled, although it tells us nothing tion. really new, the acknowledgment is worth much at this juncture, as confirming the belief always deep of water in the canal, but the channel still it was a mere revolt to gain power."

Are the people of North Carolina content to have their action represented "as confirming the belief always entertained, that despite every miserable protext it was a mere revolt to gain power." And yet the misrepresentations of the Standard place the people of North Carolina in that category, and they are held by the American as dissatisfied with the "Richmond conspirators." Is it to be wondered at that North Carolina should be invaded when such representations are made to the United States Government—the Raleigh Standard quoted as authority? It was most natural for Mr. Lincoln to seek to develop the Union feeling supposed to exist in North Carolina, and which the Standard was regarded as representing. The thin well of the pretended support yielded by the Standard to the Confederate government, was easily seen through at Washington; its complaints persisted in for a long time, and its coarse abuse of members of the Cabinet at Richmonnd, were received by the Government at Washington, however they may been intended, as evidence of a real hostility to the Richmond Cabinet and latent sympathy with the efforts of the Washing-

The American concludes its article as follows: "And now, we have, as a result of the experiment so far, those fierce groans from one of the States victimized by the endeavor. Casting off what they were deluded into believing was a tyranny, they have fastened upon themselves one, an hundred, nay, a thousand fold more absolute. more exacting, more unbearable; one from which there is no escape, unless that 'old government,' whose rule has been set at naught, can control their destines and resume its sway. Well may they regret the past; well may they deprecate the ruin it has brought home to their interests. Constrained to admit, in their great agony, that the Federal Government never really wronged them; driven to calculate how little the institution has gained for which their leaders declare the conflict was precipitated, the conflict is bringing them penitence, let them endeavor to put upon the matter what face they may. Although we know that they are measurably powerless in the grasp of that tyranny they have aided in establishing, it is a good sign to see them recognizing it at last as such ; is a good sign that wi h the 'old government' again resuming its powers, they will be slow to yield to like temptations and follies again. Are the people of North Carolina content to see themselves represented by the American on the faith of extracts from the Standard, and the procredings of the House of Commons on the Ten Regiment bill, as 'one of the States victimized by the endeavor" for Confederate nationality? Are they willing to see their government denounced by the American as "a thousand fold more absolute, more exacting, more unbearable" than the despised concern from which their own brave sons have, so far, rescued them? And yet the On Tuesday, January 27, it was reported in Ha-Southern newspaper as the author and chief com-American has received from the Standard the "aid

CHAR ESTON.

We are kept in conside able excitement about vessels running the block le of the harbor of Charleston, and I will here mention a very curious fact. I suppose I have been in and over the Charleston bar hundreds of times, in all weathers. It was always a nuisance. If ip a vessel drawing over ten feet, you had to wait until exact high water, and then you rarely found over 15 to 16 feet on the bar. The Good win Sands are not more treacherous than those on the Charleston bar. Well, what does President Lincoln! At a very heavy expense he ordered wessel filled with granite to be sunk in the main channal where there never was 17 feet of water at high or any other tide.—

The result is astounding. The Cooper and the Ashley rivers, which there pass to the sea on each side of Charleston city and out over the bar, have swept out a ship channel, in no place under 30 feet deep, and in some places there is 50 feet water where there was only 16 before the vessels were sunk. When peace comes Charleston harbor will be one of the finest in the Southern States. "Man proposes, but God disposes." From nearly round Charleston the water in a channel of 30 feet will make her the second city in the United States in a few years. I have my information from a source that cannot be doubted by me.—New York Correspondence of the London Morning Herald.

New York dates of the 5th and 6th, have been eceived.

News of the Charleston fight had been received through Southern papers. The Times learns authoratatively from Washngton, that there has been no interruption of the Charleston blockade and that no such assumption will be admitted by the Lincoln Government. The Times learns also that an attack upon Charleston is momentarily expected, when the blockade will probably be raised in a manner not at all agreeable to the rebels.

The rebels under Forest and Wheeler have been itterly routed at Denelson. Official despatches received at Cairo say that
