ANOTHER GREAT BATTLE FORTY THOUSAND YAN KEES CAPTURED

Telegraphic dispatches were received in this city on yesterday, stating that the great battle of Gettysburg, which was commenced on Wednesday, was renewed on Saturday. At 6 p. m. on that day, Gen. Lee had changed his front, occupying the ground of the enemy, and driving them from their first and second positions, a distance of three miles. On that day our forces captured a large number of prisoners. On Sunday the fight was renewed, when Hill's corps fell back in the centre. This had the desired effect. The enemy immediately advanced, when Longstreet and Ewell ad anced their right and left wings, flanking the enemy, compelling the surrender of 40,000 of their number, and completely routing the rest of the Yankee army. The prisoners refused to be paroled, when they were immediately started to Martinsburg, en route to Richmond, guarded by Pickett's divisiou. This news came to Richmond by way of Martinsburg, and though several dispatches were received, all concur in stating that we captured 40,000 prisoners! The battle of Sunday is stated to have been the bloodiest of the war. Our loss was very great and the enemy's immense.

Among the casualties reported on our side are Gens. Pender and Pickett wounded, and Colonel Avery, of N. C., killed.

REPORTED FALL OF VICKSBURG. A dispatch from Jackson, dated July 5th, states that the mail courier had arrived there, and stated positively that Vicksburg had fallen. Other reports to the same effect had been received, but nothing official.

The Yankee cavalry at Newbern made a raid on Kenansville and Warsaw on Saturday last, burning the sword factory at the tormer place, and taking $25,000 from the proprietors. They took the same amount from Isaac Kelly and Mc-Carthy, and took fifty negroes from Kit and Bill Hill and all of Dr. Herring's. They also captured Capt. Lane's company of cavalry, only five escaping. At Warsaw they tore up the railroad track for a quarter of a mile, cut the telegraph wire, and burned 20,000 lbs. of bacon. At last slightly faltered, but their officers cried to them accounts they had returned whence they came, and the railroad had been repaired and trains were running as usual between Wilmington and | way before them. The Baltimore American of the 3d has been received in Richmond: It contains an account of a day's battle at Gettysburg, Pa., which is an evident attempt to cover up defeat.

THE FIRST DAY'S BATTLE. The American has the following account of the first day's battle :

It appears that at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning (the 1st inst.,) the 1st and 11th corps of the Army of the Potomac reached Gettysburg, entering from the east side of the town, and marching directly through to the west side, the cavalry force of the enemy falling back as we advanted. On passing out of the west end of the town, the enemy was observed advancing rapidly from the Chambersburg pike, in line of battle, towards the town, evidently endeavoring to hold an advantageous position commanding the town. The first corps under Gen. Reynolds, in the mivance, and pushed forward at double quick, to secure the advantageous position. The enemy, under Longstreet and Hill, advanced steadily, and in a few minutes a heavy fire both of artillery and musketry, was opened along the whole Federal and rebel lines. The 11th army corps, under Gen. Howard, was also soon in position, and for a time a were unsuccessful. Reynolds advanced to meet them, and a heavy place permanently. infantry fight ensued, in which both parties suffered severely, volley after volley of musketry being poured into the opposing columns with deadly effect. In the charge Maj. Gen. Reynolds fell, mortally wounded, and died soon after being Pennsylvania railroad. conveyed to Gettysburg. He was, as usual, leading his corps, and in the thickest of the fight. Gen. Paul, commanding the 3d brigade of the 1st army corps, was also killed on the field, and Cols. Wistar and Stone fell, severely wounded, and were taken prisoners by the enemy. The field between the contending armies was strewn with the dead and wounded, and it is said that the enemy suffered fully as heavily as we did, though it is not known what was their loss in officers.

The effort to flank our right wing entirely fail. ed, and we held the prominent and commanding position for which the struggle was made at the close of the fight, which ceased for the day about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. At this time two more corps of Gen. Meade's army reached the field, and during the night the main body of our army was in position to meet any demonstrations that the enemy might make in the morning, or to advance on him, as the Commanding General might decide. The 1st army corps nobly maintained its position against the effort to flank its right, and They also made their appearance at numerous scarcely faltered for a moment, when its gallant commander fell under the murderous fire of the enemy. A great and decisive battle was considered imminent, and notwithstanding our severe loss in officers, the advantages of the day were regarded as decidedly with our forces. The army was in fine condition, full of enthumen for the coming battle, and confident of sucenemy, a large portion of whose army was still case with success. scattered up through the Cumberland Valley. They state that the rebels had held Gettysburg for some time previous to the approach of our army, and had not only occupied but had commenced fortifying the hills west of the town. where they proposed to check our advance towards Chambersburg and the mouth of the Cumberland

The movement of General Reynolds and the rapidity with which he advanced after entering the east end of the town, took them somewhat by surprise, and he soon obtained the prominent position which the rebels were fortifying. The fighting through the balance of the day was in a futile attempt on their part to regain this important position, from which they were frequently repulsed. Early in the afternoon both Longstreet and Hill combined their forces for a grand, effort to turn our right flank, when General Howard's 11th corps (the Dutch corps,) which broke and ran at Chancellors, deshed in to regain their lost laurals, and most nobly did they repulse these two veteran corps of the rebel army. The repulse was so complete that no further attempt was made by the enemy during the balance of the day, and night closed in with our holding the position chosen by the enemy to give us battle from. The 3d and 12th army corps also came on the field after the last repulse of the enemy, but owing to the fall of General Reynolds, and the lateness of the hour, as well as the exhaustion of the men, and the desire to take care of the wounded, it was determined not to push the enemy for a renewal of the con-

Gettysburg is just twenty-five miles east of Chambersburg, over a fine rolling country most of the way, which doubtless will be the scene of the great battle of the rebel invasion.

From one of the officers who came down in charge of prisoners, who arrived last night, who accounts not so favorable as those given by other parties. He describes the fight on that day as rather unfavorable to our arms, and states that the enemy held the field at the close of the day, our forces having fallen back after the fall of General Reynolds; that the atteck of the enemy was so sudden and unexpected, that both the corps of Hill and Longstreet were for a time engaged with Gen. Reynolds corps, and that the 11th corps took but little part in the battle.

THE SECOND DAY'S FIGHTING. The American learns from parties that left Gettysburg at noon Thursday, that up to that time everything was progressing favorably for the pecially among field and line officers. Federal arms. It says:

Up to that time they assert that over six thous and misoners had been captured, and sent to Union Bridge for transportation to Baltimore. At nine o'clock last night a train with 800 [prisoners, the first instalment of those castured, arrived at the Baltimore deput, and shortly after Gen. Sehnck announced from his headquarters that those then in Baltimore and at the Relay House, which would soon be in his possession, amounted to 2,300. We learn that nearly 1,000 of these prisoners were captured on Wednesday evening by the lith army corps in their gallant charge Longstreet's corps. They are said to have at first "remember Chancellorsville," when they rushed into the fight with a fury that was irresistible, and the whole line of the enemy gave

During the early part of Thursday, up to noon at which hour our informant left, there had been no general battle, though heavy sktrmishing had been going on all the morning, resulting in heavy loss to the enemy and the capture of nearly 5,000 prisoners. In all these skirmishes, which were conducted under the direction of Gan. Meade, our arms were entirely successful; but the ensury studiously avoided a general engagement, and was thought there would be none before to-day when it was said to be the intention of General Meade to press the enemy along the whole line. The prudence and skill displayed by General Meade in the management of his army, and the strategy evinced by him in coping with Lee, had stready won the confidence of his troops, and his presence along thelines drew forth the strongest de demonstrations of attachment. The army evinced a determination to win at all hazards, and had been strongly impressed by their officers with the dreadful consequences that would ensue to them and the country if a disaster should occur to our arms in the coming conflict.

The enemy was rapidly concentrating his troops yesterday from the Cumberland Valley towards Chambersburg, and Gen. Meade's whole army had reached the field of battle. If General Couch presses on the enemy down the Valley with his troops from Harrisburg, which is confidently expected, we may look for a glorious result.

JUNE 3, 1863 .- DEAR MOTHER: General Walker's brigade fought all day yesterday at Milliken's Bend, completely routing the enemy, and driving them to their boats with great loss. Our loss was, I suppose, about 100 killed and wounded. In the fight yesterday, after we had completely routed the Yankees, and they were in full retreat to their boats, our men in pursuit of them, encountered a negro regiment, who, seeing the defoat of the Yankees, and afraid to fight themselves, immediately threw down their arms and ran towards our men for protection; a poor wretch was shot, others flew toward the river, pursued by our men, who got behind the levee and out of reach of the gunboats, and continued the slaughter with an unsparing hand. The negroes seeing themselves entirely deserted by the Yankees, who had taken to the boats, telling the blacks to "fight it out," fought desperate. As our troops had the advantage, and the negroes were entirely cut off from retreat by the river; the slaughter among the negroes was terrible. I have been told by many men who were engaged in it that the ground was literally covered with them. We have captured a great many. Unforturately, their officers (Yankees) all managed
