POETRY.

THE WIFE'S APPEAL You took me, William, when a girl, Unto your home and heart, To bear in all your after life A fond and faithful part: And tell me have I ever tried That duty to forego, Or greeved because I had no joy, When you were sunk in wo?

No-I would rather share your tears Than any other's glee, For though you're nothing to the world, You're all the world to me; You make a palace of my shed,
This rough hewn bench a throne;
There's sunlight for me in your smile,
And music in your tones.

I look upon you when you sleep, My eyes with tears grow dim; Look down from heaven on him. Behold him toil from day to day, Exausting strength and soul, Oh! kook in mercy on him Lord, For thou can'st make him whole."

And when at last reheving sleep Has on my eyelids smiled, How oft are they forbid to close In slumber by our child! I take the little murmurer That spoils my span of rest; And feel it as a part of thee I lull upon my breast.

There's only one return I crave; I may not need it long; And it may sooth thee when I'm where The wretched feel no wrong : I ask not for a kinder tone, For thou wert ever kind I ask not for less frugal fare, My fare I do not mind.

I do not ask for attire more gay. If such as I have got Suffice to make me fair to thee,
For more I murmur not;
But I would ask some of the hours, That you on "clubs' bestow, Of knowledge which you prize so much, May I not something know?

Subtract from meeting among men, Each eve and hour for me; As I may safely be; If you will read, I'll sit and work Then think when you're away, Less tedious I shall find the time, Dear William, if you stay.

A meet companion soon I'll be For your most studious hours; And each of those little ones You call your cottage flowers! And if we be not rich and great, We may be wise and kind, And as my heart can warm your heart, So may your mind my mind.

ESTIMATE OF EDGAR POE.

A paper in which we see many good things (the Newark Daily Advertiser) gives the following estimate of Poe, which we give from its cleverness, without agreeing with it :-"Fortunate is Genius to live in the nineteenth century-how fortunate to die in it ! immediate resurrection following such a demise, as surely as day follows night. Scarce has the knell for Edgar A. Poe reverberated -through his own 'Bells'-from North to South, ere he appears before us smiling

"That Mr. Poe had genius cannot be doubted ; that it was of remarkable character him through those volumes will be convineed of it. He seems to have possessed more of that subtle imaginative power which startles, confures, excites, tortures, than any writer of Modern times. His pen acts as a wand on the Irain, calling up spirits from its ' rasty deep, while the demon in his own mind is conceoled. His great strength lies in his head, and affects the head-not the heart. How d fferent from Mr. Longfellow, whose intellect and sympathies flow together so harmoniously-whose melody lingers in the mind, while his thoughts nestle to the heart-at once delighting the ear and cherishing the gentler affections !

"Mr. Poe's writings haunt the imagination but never exalt it. 'A thing of horror is a pain ' forever,' and such are his creations; vet their very tenacity of life proves that they are vital with genius. Whoever reads his 'Raven,' forgets it 'nevermore.' Itsdark wing may disappear for a time, but will return again and brood over the mind, hatching winged fancies, birds of the night like itself. And so with most of the author's poems: they do not refresh us, as the pure waters of Il-licon should do ; but leave the mind feserish, or exhausted from over excitement.

" Some of the tales in these volumes give even a more vived impression of the writ-r's The earth is "arched with graves." In genius than his poetry. RALEIGH, N. C., PEBRUARY 9,

AN HONEST OFFICE-HOLDER. The following facts of Albert Gallatin's igancial honor and disinteredness, are taken from a paper recently read by John R. Bartlett, before the New York Historical Soci-

"Great as Mr. Gallatin was as a financier, he never seems to have employed his talents for his personal advantage, although opportunities were often presented to him by which he might have enriched himself. One or two anecdotes may be mentioned in proof of this.

" While Secretary of the Treasury, it was necessary on one occasion to pay the interest due by the United States on a loan made in Holland. The interest was to be paid in London, and the late Mr. Astor made proposals to Mr. Gallatin to provide the necessary funds in the manner stated in the agreement whenthe loan was made. Mr. Gallatin stipulated certain conditions to Mr. Astor, which, after due reflection, were accepted. But it seems that Mr. Astor did not exercise the same sagacity which marked his other financial operations, for, in disposing of it, or in fulfilling his contract, he found himself minus some £10,000 sterling, or about $50,006. 'This loss,' Mr Gallatin observed to me, 'did not seem to cause Mr. Astor so much uneasiness as the circumstances that I should have shown more financial knowledge and shrewdness than he, and he ever after expressed the highest confidence in my opinions, and manifested a strong attachment for me. When I left the Treasury in 1816, Mr. Astor made me pressing offers to associate myself in business with him, but I declined."

'I expressed some surprise to Mr. Gallatin, and said, 'Why did you not accept his offer? If you had, you would now have ranked among our millionaires.' He replied by that peculiar shrug of his shoulders which expressed more than words, intimating that wealth was no object with him.

Another circumstance has recently come to my knowledge from a gentleman residing in Europe, which places in a still stronger light the disinterestedness of Mr. Gallatin in his refusal of all opportunities and offers to avail himself of his financial sagacity and of his position, while serving his country, to en rich himself.

'It will be remembered that Mr. Gallatin was Minister of the United States in Paris in 1816, at the time of the second restoration of the Bourbons to the throne of France. A loan was then created by the French govsembled at Paris to make tenders for the loan; among them Mr. Alexander Baring. This gentleman-had made the acquaintance of Mr. Gallatin when in the United States many years before, and now consulted him as to the proposed loan, believing that his long experience and eminent talents as a financier Mr. Gallatin readily gave his advice in the good as well as tasty.
WILLIAMS, HAYWOOD & CO. matter, and Mr. Baring obtained the loan.

" From a sense of gratitude to Mr. Gallatin, he then proposed to him, and even insisted, that he should take a part of the loan without advancing any of the funds, by which he would be enabled to realize a handsome fortune. "I thank you," was Mr. Gallatin's reply : I will not except your obliging offer, because a map who has had the direction of the finances of his country as long as I have,

COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE. Some unhappy Benedict, who evidently flatters himself that his experience qualifies him to "speak from the book" in the matter, thus philosophizes on the difference between courtship and marriage. We dislike to pubtory letters alone would secure him a positive lish any thing which may prevent the tying welcome, even were not his own claims such of hymenial knots at this season, yet, as the current of opinion is almost wholly in favor of the practice, there will be little harm in casting this pebble against the stream .and tendency, a'l who knew bim personally Read, youngsters, and remember Æsop's testify, and all who became acquainted with frogs, that asked themselves whether they would wish to get out again, before they leaned into the well -that is, had they not better let well alone."

> "What made you get married, if you did not like it?"

"Why, I was deluded into it - fairly deluded; I had nothing to do evenings, so I went courting. Courting is fun enough - I have't a word against it. It's about as good a way of killing an evening as I know of. Wash your face, put on a clean dickey, and talk as sweat as sugar and molasses candy, for an hour or two, to say nothing about a few kisses behind the door, as your sweetheart goes to the step with you.

"When I was a single man, the world wagged well enough. I was just like an omnibus. I was a passenger, and paid my levy, and hadn't any thing more to do with it, but sit down, and didn't care a button for any body. 'Sposin, the omnibus got upset, well, I walks off, and leaves the man to pick up the pieces But then I must take a wife and behanged to me. It's all very well for a while, but afterwards, it's the plague like owning an upset omnibus."

DEATH. - What woes are caused by death in this world! They are seen every where. meeting each generation and consigning the young, the levely, and the pure to dust. Shall that gloomy reign continue forever? Is there no place where death the characters of the continue forever? Is there no place where death the characters of th Albert Barnes.
