MINSTREL, SING THAT SONG AGAIN. BY THE REV. CHARLES W. EVEREST.

Minstrel, sing that song again, Plaintive in its solemn flow; Memory owns its mugic strain, Loved and cherished long ago; Lo! the past, the mystic past, Rises through the vista dim-Just as twilight's shades are cast.

At the day's departing hymn!

Minstrel, 'twas an eve like this,

Stars were spangling all the sky: Every zeyphr spoke of bliss, Floating in its fragrance by ; Then, within our moon-lit bower, One, with voice like music's own, Sweetly charm'd the lingering hour, To the soft lute's silvery tone.

As the witching cadence fell Wild within our bower of love, Angel bands might prove the spell, Bending from the courts above ! Minstrel, chant once more the sir, Soft as spring's departing breath

She who sang its numbers there Slumbers as the bride of Death ! Minstrel, chide thou not my tears— Thou hast waked a mournful theme; Memory roves the slumbering years,

Like some dear, forgotten dream ; Day will come with joy and gladness— Cares once more will fling their blight; Chide not then, my spirit's sadness-Minstrel, let me weep to-night!

KATE'S VALENTINE. BY HARRY SUNDERLAND.

Kate, my sprightly niece, like most roung ladies of her age, has her own op nions on matters and things currently transpiring. She thinks independently, and generally speaks what she thinks. Of course, her knowledge of human nature is not very deep; nor is she as wise in all her conclusions as she is led to imagine. I do not say this disparagingly, for Kate has quite as good sense as nine in ten who have only numbered her years, which are about twenty-one.

On one subject, K te had, for a year or two, been particularly decided in her expressions. - The Valentine epidemic. which ha raged so violently, she considered a social disease emphatically. It was no healthy manifestation of right feelings, in her estima.

As last Valentine's day approached, and the store windows and counters began to be filled with emblematic love missives of all kinds, from the most costly, delicate, and refined, down to the cheapest, coarsest, and most vulgar, Kate exhibited more and more strongly her antipathy to the custom about to

"If any one were to send me a Valentine," said she, "I would take it as a direct insult to my common sense."

"Oh, as for that," I replied, sportively "lovers are not so silly as to address the common sense of those whose favor they desire

"Whoever wins me," was her prompt answer, "must appeal to that. At no other point will I be accessible."

" We shall see." " And we will see."

"I would discard any one who insulted me with a Valentine," replied Kate, indignantly as I examined the bracelet-" Don't say that, for fear you will have cause to repent the indiscretion." "Yes, I do say it. No man of good sense would stoop to such trifling."

" I don't know Kate. A little trifling, now and then, is relished by the best of men" "That's rhyme, which does not always go
