

POETRY

THE TRANSLATED TREE.

Oh! the translated tree, when 'twas young,
Far away from its own native soil,
And it leaves that are nearly all gone;
The sharp breath of Autumn is so cold,
It is shaking the last leaves down,
Then nourish the tree, so fresh and so old,
Give a smile to warm its life-blood, so cold,
And freshen its heart with a tear.

Oh! they took the old tree, when 'twas young,
Far away from its own native soil,
And they planted it where not a blossom e'er
sprung,
And where friendship or love never smile,
Then nourish the tree, so.

The Sun sank in gloom—the night was cold,
And the storm it raged wildly on high,
And then whisper'd a spirit, "Oh, lone tree, so
old,
Return home to thy own land to die."
Then nourish the tree, so.

They then planted the tree, once so dead and so
old,
In the soil which its infancy knew,
And around its warm heart, late so drear and so
cold,
The sweet blossoms of hope again grew,
Then nourish the tree, so.

THE TOO POPULAR CREED.

Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes!
If a man's down, give him a thrust—
Prattle the beggar into the dust!
Presumptuous poverty's quite appalling—
Knock him over! kick him for falling!
If a man is up, oh! lift him higher,
Your soul's for sale, and he's the buyer—
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

I know a poor but worthy youth,
Whose hopes are built on a golden truth,
But the maiden will never be his,
For her soul's for sale, and he's the buyer—
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

I know a bold and honest man,
Who strives to live on the Christian plan;
But poor he is, and poor will be—
A scorned and hated wretch is he—
At home he meeteth a starving wife,
Abroad he is a leper's life—
They struggle against all odds,
Yet not one word to the people's gods—
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

So get ye wealth, no matter how,
'No questions asked' of the rich, I trow!
Steal by night, and steal by day,
(Going it all in a legal way),
Join the church, and never forsake her,
Learn to cheat and insult your Maker;
Be hypocrite, liar, knave and fool;
But don't be poor—remember the rule;
Dimes and dollars! dollars and dimes!
An empty pocket's the worst of crimes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JIM WILKINS AND THE EDITORS.

[I respectfully dedicate the following reminiscences to the junior editor of the Montgomery Flag and Advertiser. It burst in upon my memory, the other morning, while reading a pungent political article which emanated, as I supposed, from his pen.]

During the exciting Presidential campaign of 1844, there were published in a thriving village in this State, two political papers, which (as 'twould not be proper to give the real names,) we will call the 'Star' and the 'Gazette.' The 'Star' was a Democratic sheet; and of course bathed enthusiastically for Mr. Polk. The 'Gazette,' on the other hand, was thoroughly Whig, and no more—at the period to which we refer—doubled the election of Henry Clay, than it did the shining of the sun, or a y other 'fixed' physical fact. These two papers were edited by gentlemen of about the same age, and of not dissimilar temperaments. In fact, they had strong social proclivities, and were very good friends, nine-tenths of the time; there being only an occasional interruption of good feeling, when something rather too 'spicy' appeared in the columns of one paper or the other. These disagreeable things, however, became more frequent as the political battle waxed hotter; but even then, at the end of every week, there was a general adjustment of all personal matters—the boys pickwick'd, and—shall I tell it?—generally got gloriously fuddled together. They both, I believe, do better now, but then 'at the head-quarters!

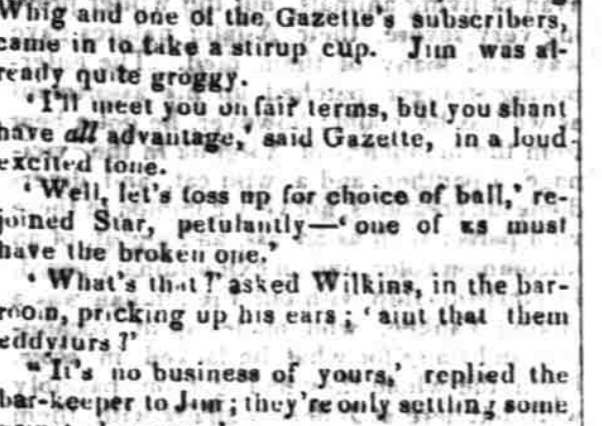

One Saturday afternoon, at the end of a particularly spicy week between the papers—the 'Star' having spoken of the 'damask cheek of its neighbor,' and the 'Gazette' having retorted upon the 'Bardolphian nose' of the 'Star's editor—the two gentlemen were seen to enter an establishment where 'sugar and water with the privilege' might be obtained in one room, and a game of billiards played in another. They had had perchance an explanation, in which mutual declarations of pickwick had been made. However, they went in lovingly, arm in arm.

Walking up to the bar,
"What shall he be?" asked Star.
"Cocktails," said Gazette; and cocktails it was.

"Here," said Star, touching the rim of his companion's glass with the bottom of his own; here is to the Freedom of the Press, whether the same advocate the claims of the exalted patriot James K. Polk; or takes the ground for the embodiment of all that is

THURSTON'S FOUNTAIN HOTEL.

Head of Light near Baltimore St., BALTIMORE.

THE increased patronage of this long established and popular Hotel, under the management of its present proprietor, has inspired him with further energy and determination, and no expense or attention of his staff of his Assistants will be spared, to maintain with the patrons of the "Fountain" the reputation it held all over the country, in its "palmy days" of Baltimore's conductors.

To increase its former attractions and comforts, during the past season, the Hotel has undergone many changes, the Proprietor having made heavy outlays in introducing some of the best and most improvements—such, together with its central position, being located in the very heart of the business portion of the city, and near the centre of Baltimore Street, and within a few minutes walk of all the Hotels and Steam Boat Landings, it meets the Merchant, the Farmer, the Minister, as well as the Man of Pleasure to make the FOUNTAIN HOTEL his home during his sojourn in Baltimore.

The Public Department, consisting of Private Parlors, Saloons, Reception Rooms, Ordinary, and extensive suites of large and airy Chambers, fitted up in a style and elegance that cannot fail to give satisfaction and comfort.

POSTERS are attached to the "Fountain," who may be consulted by the Guests of the Hotel, and are always in the attendance at the different Depts and Steamboat Landings, who will receive Checks, take charge of the Baggage and convey it to the Hotel.

PHILAS THURSTON, Proprietor.
Feb. 26th, 1850.

A CARD.

THE undersigned being engaged, and holding a position that brings his services to immediate connection with the Guests of the above Hotel, he trusts, offers a further inducement to his numerous friends and acquaintances of the "Old North State," when they visit Baltimore, to stop at the "Fountain," where he assures them they will be received and entertained in a manner that shall strengthen this acquaintance and secure for its Proprietor their good will and patronage.

For 1850.
R. Tucker and Son,
WHO constantly keep on hand an extensive assortment of the best and most desirable, as well as fashionable
FANCY AND STAPLE DRY GOODS,
are now receiving their Spring and Summer supply for 1850. One of the Firm has just returned from New York, where he purchased a rich variety of Goods of this Spring's importations, before they were picked over, and before the advance in price; and having thus had the choice of the large and splendid fresh arrivals, and the advantage of low prices, they flatter themselves they will be better prepared than ever to meet the demands of this market, and please their numerous friends and customers, in town and country. They respectfully invite the public to call and examine their stock. They have just received a supply of the following, and are daily receiving such other articles as are usually kept on hand at the fashionable Family Grocery Store, and to the wants and taste of this community.
