DYED IN THE WOOL.

BY JOHN JONES, JR.

An acute disciple of Blackstone, in one of our Atlantic cities, which shall be nameless, had, by a course of active pettilogging, succeeded in filling his pockets. Full pockets enabled him to assume an imposing style of living, and the reputation of having gotien rich by practice at the bar, very naturally increased the number of his fees. Ssoon stood "A Number One" among his le.

gal brethren. If any one had a pretty hard case for litigation, S-- was his man ; for if anybody could gain it for him he could. He not only understood all the quirks and turns in the law, but was fertile in original expedients. The goodness or badness of a cause was nothing to him : his business was to gain it for his client by any means he could use, fair or

At the age of forty-five, from some cause or other not clearly ascertained, S-became religiously disposed, and joined the church. An influential man like hun was not long suffered to remain inactive in the secularities of the church. At the first fitting opportunity he was made a vestry man.

S-had always been looked upon in the community as a "pretty bid case," and the reputation by no means belied the truth. The gaining of one like him over to the cause of teligion was, therefore, a source of no little congratulation to those who regarded things piritual and pious-"and was looked upon as quite a triumph over the enemy of souls. There were some, however, who shrugged their shoulders, and professed to have just about as much confidence in him now as ever they had, and to regard his religion, to use one of their expressions, as "all in my eye."

Matters professional went on pretty much in the old way: Religion, in the eyes of S-, was too sacred a thing to bring down into the world, where it must suffer violence. and be, in consequence, brought into disrepute. He, therefore kept his religion nicely laid up in lavender, for Sunday, when it was brought forth unspotted from the world.

About two years after S --- jouned the church, it was thought by those who had affairs in charge that they ought to have a new and more imposing edifice than the one they worshipped in, which was, to say the truth, rather an ancient affair, and by no means

"And I can, with a good fellow like you to id me. And I think your effection for the church is strong enough to induce you to lend a willing hand to the work. Debt is a terrible thing !"

' Indeed it is ! But how can I aid?" "Are you willing?" "Oh, certainly."

VOLUME LI.

"Very well. Then, without anybody's inowing what we are about, or suspecting any concert between us, we can make some forty or fifty pew renters become purchasers, and thus pay the whole debt " "How? how ? I am curious to know that."

"Very well, I will inform you. There is Preston to begin with. His pew is a very eligible one, and if he gives it up he can't possibly get anoth r without going far down the aisle, for every good pew in the church is either rented or sold. Now, his pew is worth at least two thousand dollars." "Yes; and he ought to pay that for it; he able enough." "So I think. Very well. Now, I will lace two thousand dollars in your hands, and do you go to the treasures, who has charge of he matter, and offer to buy the new, saying that you are ready to pay the price down for it, cash. He will, of course, tell you that he must see Preston first, and give him the option of buying it. And Preston, rather than et you have the pew, will buy. D'ye see?" "Capital ! It's the very thing!"

"Isn't it ?" "If you ain't a lawyer, dyed in the wool, here's no mistake," said the man, leaning back in his chair, and giving vent to a hearty ourst of laughter. "I consider myself hard to beat in any me in the matter ?" "Certainly, I'm ready to serve the church

n any way that an humble individual like ne can do it."

On the next Subhath, Preston sat in his wn pew, sure enough, and the treasury of the church was in a better condition by just the sum of two thousand dollars, Swas del ghted at the success of his scherpe and tried it on two other pew renters, who were entire strangers to each other, during the week, and with the desired result. Jones got some private abuse for his part of the business, and was told that he had better pay his honest debts before he undertook to buy his pocket and went ahead. "You are determined to have somebody" such as the wealth of the congregation en- pew, I see," remarked the treasurer, when them to have. ---- was prominent Jones appeared the fourth time.

in the matter-in fact, he was the prime mover, and headed the subscrption list with a thousand dollars.

In due time the church was finished, and an elegant edifice it was. When the building was projected, and plans called for, sixty thousand dollars was to be the maximum of cost; but the building committee and the architect managed to run the cost up to a hundred thousand dollars, and the church in debt about seventy thousand. This caused all concerned to feel, as might be supposed, rather serious on the subject. A debt of seventy thousand doliars was rather a serious affair placed in any light.

The first thing to be done was to have a sale of the pews. This proceeded rather slowly, and the prices at which they sold were by no means as large as had been anticipated. From this source only twenty thousand dol lars came. An extra subscription was then tion of putting some unknown scheme into tried; but only ten thousand dollars could be raised.

In this aspect of affairs, S-, who was chairman of the building committee, and to whom was mainly chargeable the excess of cost over the first estimate made for the church, felt called upon to devise some means of liquidating the heavy debt.

"It could be done easily enough, if those who are able would come forward and buy pews at fair prices, instead of renting them," he said to a fellow-vestryman.

It was freely admitted that this would certainly charge the aspect of affairs. But, if members preferred renting to buying, nothing nary models, related the trick he had played could be done.

"They ought to be made to buy," said S-, warmly. "There is Pres.op, worth thirty or forty thousand dolfars at least, who, instead of paying two thousand dollars for the pew his family occupies, is very well content to get it at a yearly rent of a hundred dollars. It is too bad! I would not give much for his interest in religion, if he has no salts. Good morning!" better way of showing it.'

"He certainly ought to buy," was unhesitatingly replied.

"He shall buy!" said S____, snapping his ingers, as a sudden thought struck him. "Do you think you can make him?" "Yes."

"How! What means will you use?" "Never mind about that. But, mark my words for it, next Sunday Preston will be the owner instead of the mere tenant of his pew." "I hope so,"

"You shall not hope in vain."

The lawyer went to his office and sat down to think. After about half an hour's Cogitation, he said aloud. "Yes, he's the man."

And immediately writing a note, despatched it by his office messenger. In twenty minutes a well dressed man entered, and bowed to the lawyer with a respectful, or rather, deferential air.

"Take a chair, Jones-I want to talk to you," said S____ The man seated himself.

"You know we've managed to get con-foundedly in debt with our new church." "Yes, so it seems," was the assenting re-

"And somehow or other we must manage to get out of debt."

"If we can." "Well, I think we can, if the thing is done rightly. I believe I have hit on the mode." Well, you are fortunate. Nobody

"I wish a good pew, and am willing to pay a good price for it," he replied. I don't covet anybody's pew. But I believe no one has a right to the property that he merely rents." "Oh, ho. You have a right to purchase of Mississippi, it is ordered that the defendant, upon any unsold pew in the church." "So I supposed." But Jone's didn't get the pew for which he Nicholson, of slaves, Dick, Mott, Emily and Den had offered a liberal price. The occupant nis, and their issue, if any have been born of said slaves since the last term of this Court, or shew prefered the alternative of buying to being cause at the next term of the Court why an attachturned out ment of contempt should not be issued against him

And thus the thing went quietly on, no one for not delivering the said slaves to the said Thomas W. Nicholson, heretcfore on demand made of him suspecting the agency at work, until pews for them enough were actually sold to pay off the filly And upon the reading of the affidavit of the plainthousand dollars' debt that had remained tiff. Thomas W Nicholson, that the defendant is after the first sale of pews and subsequent now an inhabitant of the State of Mississppi, it is extra subscription. "Didn't I tell you that I would make Pres-provided, however, further notice be given by pubton buy his pew ?" said S____ to the vestrylishing a copy of this rule in some Newspaper printman to whom he had first hinted his inten | ed in Raleigh, for six weeks operation.

"Yes; but who made thirty or forty others buy pews? Preston's case is a drop in the bucket." "I did."

"You! "Certainly I did. The church owes me a service of plate for paying off its debt, and I believe I will claim it.' "And you are entitled to it, if the thing has been done fairly. "You shall judge of that yourself." And S-, whose notions of right and wrong were founded upon rather extraordi-
