The following Lane (by Will: W. Holden) were suggested on reading the extract given be-low from the very elequent eulogium delivered in the House on the character of Mr. CALHOUN, by Mr. Winthrop of Massachusetts :

We have been told, sir, by more than one adprous navigator, that it was worth all the ms and perils of a protracted, voyage bethe line, in obtain even a passing view of the Southern Cross-that great consrellation of th seu hero ? emisphere. We can imagine, then what wou d be the emotions of those who have always enjoyed the light of that magnificent luminary, and who have taken their daily and their nightly direction from its refulgent rays, if it were suddenly blotted out from the sky. Such, and so deep, I can conceive to be the qualions at this hour, of not a lew of the honored friends and as sociates whom I see around me. Indeed, no one can fail to realize that a star of the first magni rede has been struck from our political firmament. Let us hope that it has only been transferred to a h gher and purer sphere, where it may shine on with undimmed brilliancy forever !"

The voyager on the Southern main Views with ropt awe the hallowed sign Which nightly flames "beyond the line" : Nor deems the labor all in vain Which brings how to that long sought shrine,

The various tribes, in field, by flood, Walk in its light when day is done : And hall it in its high abode, Biest reflex of the absent sun :

In all their devious wanderings, From dewy eve. through midnight's reign, It guides them, till the Morning's wings Sued sunlight o'er the earth again.

What if that Cross its front should veil. And durkling, sink in Night's embrace ? Nor other stars nor Sun could fill, Or share its wondrous dwelling place.

Star of the South ! 'twas thus with thee ! To thee all eyes and hearts were turned ; As round thy path, from plain to sea, The glory of thy greatness burned.

Millions were drawn to thee, and bound, By mind's high mastery ; millions hailed In thee a guide-star, and ne'er found A ray in thee that waned or failed.

Fixed as that sign which hangs in Heaven ; Firm as the earth it shines upon ; Pure as the snow by light winds driven Wert thou, Columbia's honored son !
