POETRY.

From Blackwood's Magazine. TO BURNS' HIGHLAND MARY. O loved by him whom Scotland loves. Long loved, and honored duly, By all who love the bard that sang So sweetly and so truly! In cultured dales his song prevails, Thrills o'er the eagle's aery-Ah! who that strain has caught, nor nighed For Burns' " Highland Mary ?"

His golden hours of youth were thine-Those hours whose flight is fleelest; Of all his songs to thee he gave The freshest and the sweetest. Ere ripe the truit, one branch he brake. All rich with bloom and blussom : And shook its dews, na incense snook, Around thy brow and bosom.

And when his Spring, alas, how soon ! Had been by care subverted-His Summer, like a god repulsed, Had from h s gates departed : Beneath the evening star, once more, Star of his morn and even ! To thee his suppliant hands he spread. And hailed his love " in heaven."

In him there burned that passionate glow. All Nature's soul and savor. Which gives its hue to every flower. To every truit its flavor. Nor less the kindred power he felt, That love of all things human, Whereof the fiery centre is The love man bears to woman.

He sang the dignity of man, Sang woman's grace and goodness; Passed by the world's hall-truths, her lies Pierced through with lance-like shrewdness. Upon life's broad highways he stood, And aped not Greek nor Roman : But snatched from heaven Promethean fire To glorify things common.

He sang of youth, he sang of age. Their joys, their griefs, their labors; Felt with, not for, the people; haired All Scotland's sons his neighbors ; And therefore all repeat his verse-Hot youth, or graybeard steady, The bostman on Loch Elive's wave, The sheperd on Ben Lodi.

He sang from love of song; his name Dunedin's cliff resounded-He left her, faithful to a tame On truth and neture founded. He sought true fame, not loud acclaim; Himself and Time he trusted; For laurels crackling in the flame His fine ear never lusted.

He loved, and reason had to love. The illustrious land that bore him ; Where'er he went, like heaven's broad tent, A star bright Past hung o'er him. Each isle had fenced a saint recluse, Each tower a hero dying; Down every mountain gorge had rolled The flood of foemen flying.

Honor to Scotland and to Burns! In him she stands collected; A thousand streams one river make Thus genius, heaven directed, Conjoins all separate veins of power la one great soul creation; And blends a million men to make The Poet of the nation.

Honor to Burns ! and her who first Let loose the abounding river Of music from the Poet's heart, Birne through all lands forever! How much to her mankind has owed Of song's selected treasures! Unsweetened by her kiss, his lips Had sung far other measures.

Be green for aye, green bank and brae Around Montgomery's Castle! Blow there, ye earliest flowers! and there Ye aweetest song-birds, nestle! For there was ta'en that last farewell; In hope, indulged how blindly; And there was given that long last gaze "That dwelt" on him "sae kindly.

No word of thin+ recorded stands; Few words that hour were spoken; Two Bibles there were interchanged. And some slight love-gifts proken; And there thy cold faint hands he pressed, Thy head by dew-dr. ps misted, And kisses, ill-resisted first, At last were unresisted.

From the Spirit of the Times. THE BEAUTIFUL WIDOW OF-BEND. An Episode in the Life of a Showman.

Several-more or less-of the readers of the "Sperret," have some indistinct recollections of an elbow of the Mississippi, bear ing a very unharmonious patois in the unrefined of times past. I've seen some queer tableaux formed by ladies and gents-who, in quest of information, respecting the various "bends," &c., as they glided down by them on the Mississippi-when the blunt pilot or "bully" mate named this peculiar bend. Dodge, the comic nightingale, tells a little joke of his adventures on the "big drink," some years ago. Dodge, in a trip to New Orleans, on the Ben Sherrod-afterwards lost by fire-fell in with a beautiful Woman, in weeds, was completely knocked by her musical talents, heauty. &c., &c., and the captain, as s ei .g as how things were, thought ne'd run a small " cross cut" on the old joker, so told hun the lady was a widow rich as cream, and up for " cows and a market," . She's got five children," says the Captain, 'but then she's got 500 acres, and as many niggers.'

'Well, hang me, Captain, if I ain't a mind to spread myself for the widow; five children THE Subscriber has determined to locate in this

RALEIGH, N. C., JUNE 29, 1850.

" On the Mississippi. Been up to Cincinnati to buy some winter goods; got beaps of aggage and stuff on board." "How long will she be on board !"

"Three or four days, sire Oh, plenty of ime for you to operate, only you square yourself, don't pretend to make love, at first; rather let on that you are foud of company. and wish to be agreeable." For the next three or four days, and evenings, as the floating palace "boomed" down the Ohio and glided into the Musissippi, Dodge did the amiable, clear up to the handle! He became chaperon for all the "unprotected females," and "the widow" he cottoned up to particularly strong. Acting upon the advice of the Captain, Dodge The Eweepstakes now open consist of five Classes fought shy of particulars; assuming or pretending to assume, that it was a holy regard he had for the combined female race, that made him solicitous for the comfort, pleasure and pastime of the ladies on the boat, and by way of parenthesis, hinted that as Mrs. Brown, ("the widow,") appeared in the weeds of woe, she needed diversion from the melancholy thoughts that naturally rise in the memory and day dreams of one deprived of a near and dear friend.

"Yes," said Mrs. Brown, "Yes, I have lost a friend, a kind good triend," and she sighed deeply while she plied her elegantly wrought and highly perfumed mouchoir to her beautiful eves.

"Yes, so I understand," says Dodge .-"Doubtless you feel, the loss of one so near, the horses entered will be allotted amongst the subone whom you have cherished in your heart scribers in each class, and on the 20th day of Sepso long and sacredly ?"

"Well, no," says Mrs. Brown, adjusting her gloves upon her beautiful fingers. "I can't really say I was ever very greatly attached to him; (Dodge opened his eyes.) I surely liked him, respected him as a guardian; lars, de, &c, in accordance with the above as a, as #-

"Yes, ves !" said Dodge, a little excited, as to the simile a woman could draw, between the love and affection of a late husband, and any thing or anybody else-"as a-as a"-

"As a near and dear friend," says Dodge to himself. "Well, hang me if that ain't cool! The father of her children, a man who has evidently nobly provided for her, loved her. and-died, and she, as cool as an icicle, calls him-friend?"

"What was the cause of your dear friend's decrase, may I be llowed to ask, Madam!" "Well, poor dear man, he died of old age, premature old age, I think" --'Fremature old age !" inquiringly echoes

"Yes, he toiled, and worked, and fretted, to amass a fortune, for me, poor dear man," and then Mrs. Brown really cast down her pretty eyes, and agitated her divine breast, with a sigh." "He was only sixty when he died."

"Only sixty !" says Dodge, with some surprise. "Then," says he to himself, "there must have been room for fatherly regard, more than the warm love of a young and tender, ardent and beautiful wife. 'Egad I like the widow more and more! I'll lean to her like a kitten to a hot brick !"

Just then the bell tapped, the boat head. ed in shore, and Mrs. Brown, in some glee, began to bid ber compagnons'd voyage adieu. Dodge flew around to do the amable, attend to the landing of the "fair widow," and they chatted as they walked ashore. "The widow" complimented Dodge for his gallantry to the ladies, and attentions to her in par-

Dodge having gotten "the widow," a bandbox and satchelashore, asked her what other baggage she had on the boat.

"Five basels of pippin apples and three hogs," said the blooming Mrs. Brown. Oh! dear, there he comes! there he comes!" she fairly shouted.

"Who is that coming. madam ?" "My dear husband, Mr. Brown."

"And the friend you have been mourning for ?" anxiously inquires Dodge. "My dear old Uncle, Josh Grubbs!', said the widow; and the next moment she was in the arms of her affectionate Brown, while Dodge, with about five jumps, unizzled on to the steamer. The Captain was the first man he met. "What's the matter ?" says the Captain to the sly old joker. "Matter?" you said Mis. Brown was a band-boxes, pippin apples, and hogs!" "Well, what of that, anything more ?" "Yes sir! The Browns live here on what they call Shirt Tail Bend!"

The last fact was no new feature to the Captain, or any body acquainted with old Mississippi, but it knocked Dodge-flat!

I dreamed that her favoring glances fell On a well-dressed Beau at her side, And I could'nt tell why the laughing Belle, Had refused to become my bride. But a single glonce at my rival's Coat. Told me there lay the strength of the game ;

And I said if the Tailor's in Town who can do it. I'll have one exactly the same. Then I dreamed that I searched the Town all o'er, For the gem that would win her heart, Till I found myself standing in front of the Store Where clothing is fashioned by art: And then I remembered that this was the place Where the Coat of my rival was made,

And entering in, right before my face, Lay a Broad-Cloth, exactly the shade. The Coat was sent home, and like Casar I sped, I came, and I saw, and I won ; For she smilingly said, when I asked her to wed. What an elegant Cost you have on Three days from that time, perhaps it was more, I induced her to alter her name : And I still buy my Coars at the very same Store, And she loves me as ever the same.

and Muscles; Stings, Cuts, Bruises Sprains, &c., &c., &c., THE following testimonials, selected from hupdreds of similar import, will serve to show the value of the preparation, and the estimation in which it is | 250 " held by those who have given it a trial :

COPY OF A LETTER FROM DR LEE. New York, Feb. 5, 1849. Mr Barry-I have no hesitation in recommending an article which I can, of my own personal knowledge, endorse as good; and I therefore state with confidence, that your Tricopherous is what you claim it to be—an article for cleaning, preserving, beautifying and promoting the growth of the hair.

I find it to be the best remedy I have ever had in my practice for scald head, ring-worm, and diseases which the skin is subject to. T. A LEE, M. D.

The following testimonial is from Mr. Munn, editor of the Scientific American. Comment on such evidence is unnecessary.

New York, Feb. 24, 1849. Barry's Tricopherous is an article that we take pleasure in awarding the highest commendations -We do not do it upon the recommendation, of others, but from our own personal knowledge of its effects upon the bair; while it tends to keep it healthy soft and glossy, it also removes danruff, prevents grey hair and invigorates its growth in a manner unequalled by any other composition known to us. A person only needs to use one bottle to be convinced of this truth. Sold in large bottles - price 25 cts .- at the principal office, 137 Broadway, New York, and by the principal Merchants and Drugists throughout the United States and Canada, and by A. B. STITH & CO
