MISCELLANEOUS. EXTRACTS

From an Address by Bishop Brownell, before the Convention of the P. E. Church, in Connecticut :

Unhappily, we cannot take a cheering view of every portion of our Church. In our parent country, excitements and dissensions prevail ; and there have been some de. fections from the faith of the Church. A few such defections have also occured in our much to be deplored, I see nothing in them to occasion serious alarm, in regard to the general soundness of the Church. The number of the apostates is small and insignificant in comparison with the great body of Churchmen who maintain their integrity. "They went out from us, because they were not of us." We may regret their secession, on their own account; but we may be well satisfied that they have placed themselves in a position where their real sentiments are known, and where they can no longer expect to corrupt and betray their Brethron under false pretences. If their defection has been occasioned by conscientious conviction, however erroneous such conviction may be, we may respect and pray for them ; but we cannot exercise the same charity towards those who would seek to Romanize the Church, while they remain within her pale. This is nothing less than treachery ; and the Clergyman who would persist in such a course, is false to his vows. Every Clergyman, at his Ordination, solemaly engages to conform to the DOCTRINE, as well as worship, of the Protestant Episcopal Church ; and he promises, moreover, so to minister that doctrine, 'as this Church hath received the same.' He well knows what the Church expects from him, when she exacts these vows ; and if he takes them, or acts under them, with a mental reservation, and resorts to the subterfuge of giving his own private interpretation to the doctrines of the Church, he is justly chargeable with treachery and falsehood. If he begins to doubt the Catholicity of the Church in which he ministers, or the soundness of her faith. let him, as an honest man, suspend his ministrations till his doubts are solved. And if he believes the dictates of his conscience com- join and receiving his plenary Absolution, pel him publicly to withdraw from her communion, let him depart in peace, under his life is cancelled, to be remembered no more, responsibility to his God. What we most and that he is entitled to the reversion of evdeprecate, is the treachery of perverting the erlasting felicity, who would not purchase doctrines of the Church, or the teaching of forgiveness and salvation at so easy a rate ! ogmas alien to her faith, while ministering ather Altars. And this treachery is equally to be censured, in whatever direction the false teaching may tend ;-whether to the superstitions of Romanism, or to the coldness and baldness of Rationalism. Doubtless there may be allowed some latitude of construction, in the explanation of our doctrinal standards. But the Discretion must be exercised with the most conscientious caution ; and no individual caprice should go beyond the general understanding of the Church. Rationalism, or a leaning towards Ratio. nalism, is beyond all question the prevailing error of our times and country. Its influence, indeed, is the most widely spread, and the most destructive, among the religious Denominations by whom we are surrounded. But as our Church has been so rapidly increased by accession from these Denominations, it is not to be wondered at that traces of its influence should be discernible among some of the members of our own communion. This influence, however, is arrested in its proclivity to Infidelity, and is steadily fading away, under the more evangelical teachings and worship of the Church. It is now in the opposite direction, that the apprehensions of our Church seem to be more especially called forth. Several of her Clergy, and some of her Laity have recently seceded to the Romish faith ; and yet this secession is not the principal occasion for the alarm. The number who have thus seceded winsignificant in comparison with those who jet remain behind, in a state of obvious sympathy with the feelings and doctrines of those who have departed. These sympathizers, and not the seceders, are the persons who are in a condition to make proselytes; and who, if they put forth their influence, either publicly or in private, as they will hardly fail to do, are the real traitors of the Church. Against the seductions of such, it behooves all the members of the Church to be constantly on their guard. This vigilance " more specially incumbent on those who are in a course of preparation for the exercise of the sacred Ministry. These are yet in the position of inquirers. Their minds are open to instruction ; and they have not ret acquired all that knowledge of the Scriptures, and of the history of the Church, which is necessary to enable them to distinguish between plain truth, and plausible error. In a few short years, too, these learner's are 'to become Teachers in the Church, and each one the centre of an important local influence. They are precisely in the situation that one would wish, who was ambitious of propagating favorite opinions, and of making Proselytes. They may then expect to be addressed personally, or through the medium of the press, by those who wish to give a more Romish character to the Church. Under such circumstances, a watchful caution is the part of true wiscom. All novelties which are proposed should be received with strained veneration and awe, with such bowdistrust. There are too, certain doctrines and usages, much dwelt upon by the class of persons referred to, which, though true and proper under certain limitations, become erroneous when they are distorted or pushed

And as such after ; and the guide posts are put up at such points as conduct the enquirer only to the Pope of Rome. In connection with the doc- a round of ceremonial observances.

trine of Catholic Unity, the English Reformation becomes the subject of unfavorable comment, and severe criticism. The licentiousness of Henry VIII., and the rapacity of his time-serving courtiers, are held up to just reprobation ; while the corruptions and abuses of Romanism which were rejected, country. But though these defections are and the pure faith of primitive Christianity which was established, together with all the blessings which have flowed to mankind from that Reformation, seem to be studiously forgotten.

VOLUMB LI.

The doctrines of Auricular Confession and Priestly Absolution, are also favorite themes with the abettors of Romish error. The duty of confessing our sins to God in secret, as well as in the public services of the Church; and the agency of a divinely appointed Ministry, in proclaiming God's pardon to the penitent, may be defended by most certain warrant of Holy Scripture. The confession of particular sins to a spiritual guide, for counsel and instruction, is also commended in certain cases. But the prirate confession of every particular sin to a Priest, and the procuring of his absolution as necessary condition of God's pardon, is a 'fond conceit' of Rome. This latter view of the doctrine, taken in connection with its necessary adjuncts-the doctrines of Popish gard to Romish errors, the position of no Churchpenance, of Purgatory, and of Indulgences, should be, in the least, equivocal. has led to the most overbearing arrogation of priestly power, the grossest tyranny over the conscience of men, and the most degrading effects upon the intelligence and morals of society. Such doctrines could have gained footing in the world, only during the ignorance and superstition of the dark ages .-They could receive no countenance in the present age, were it not for the tinge of superstition, and the love of ease, which are so congenial to the human mind. All men know that they are sinners before Gou, and that they are obnoxious to the penalities which he has made consequent on guilt. If putting up Pianos in different parts of the State, He will send Instruments to any part of North Carolina; by simply confessing his sins to a Pricst, and if they do not give satisfaction, they will be submitting to the mild penance he may entaken back and no charge made for the transportation. who are sincerely penitent for their sins, who gladly embrace the way of salvation through his Son, who obediently keep His holy laws, and who walk in all the ordinances which He has appointed for His Church. But this is a way of salvation which demands a constant and anxious vigilance. The Christian must be ever solicitous that his repentance is sufficiently deep and sincere, that his faith is sufficiently strong and ardent, and that his obedience springs from the dictates of a heart influenced by the promptings of the Holy Spirit.

The performance of the Ritual of our Church, is another medium through which endencies towards Romanism may be cncouraged. Among the multitude of ceremonial observances with which the Church was encumbered previous to the Reformation, some were significant of important truths, some were significant of pernicious errors, and some of mere unfounded superstitions. It was the object of our Reformers to free her from all such observances as did not conduce to the decency of public worship, and to the maintenance of sound doctrine. This object they happily accomplished. The Puritans and other Dissenters went to an extreme of plainness in the order of their services, and in their houses of worship, alike adverse to good taste and propriety. As one extreme begets another, there are those in our Church who would carry us back again to the showy ceremonial of the Romish Ritual. They may be influenced partly by the promptings of a fanciful temperament, but are probably more strongly impelled by a love of certain Romish doctrines, of which these ceremonies are the exponents. Symbolic teaching was a mode of instruction adopted in the dark ages, to communicate, formation, and is a Book that should be in the hands through the medium of the senses, that which could not be so readily apprehended by uneducated intellects.

It may now be the policy of some to inculcate, by signs, doctrines from which the mind would revolt, if presented to it directly and plainly in words. The sacrifice of the mass, after the manner of the Romish priests, Sacrament of the Lord's Supper is adminis- short notice ; and in fact, every convenience for tered at her Altars, the priest may perform travelling, in the way of the service with such an appearance of overings, and crossings, and genuflections, as plainly to symbolise the doctrine of Transubstantiation.
