THE BALL ROOM BELLE. BY GEORGE P. MORRIS. The moon and all her starry train Were fading from the morning sky, When home the ball-room belle again Returned, with throbbing pulse and brain, Fiushed cheek and tearful eye.

The plume that danced above her brow, The gen, that sparkled in her zone, The scarf of spangled leaf and bough. Were laid aside-they mock'd her now. When desolate and lone.

That night how many hearts she won! The reigning belie, she could not stir. But like the planets round the sun, Her suitors followed-all put one-One all the world to her!

And she had lost him !-marvel not That lady's eyes with tears were wet ! Though love by man is soon forgut, It never yet was woman's lut To love and to forget.
