

On the Territorial Boundary Bill, in the House of Representatives, on Thursday, May 26, 1850.

The Hon. Mr. CLINGMAN said, that when he offered the amendment...

It also takes the southern portion of the proposed State of California, as far north as the 30th degree on the Pacific...

But there may be objection to taking in the southern portion on the coast, upon the ground that it will be an interference with the proposed State.

The following was the amendment offered by Mr. Clingman to the amendment of Mr. Boyd;

By it further exacted, That all that portion of territory acquired from Mexico by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo...

THE NORTH CAROLINA RAIL ROAD. We have already stated that Maj. Walter Gwyn has been appointed Engineer of this important work.

But General Taylor's plan? Sir, don't talk to me about General Taylor. What portion have you in David? Neither have we inheritance in the son of Jesse.

There was a poor and plain little girl, dwelling in a little room in Stockholm, the capital of Sweden.

RALEIGH, N. C.

Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1850.

“Lo! the hour, when thrilling joy rears A long, long course of darkness, doubts and fears!”

An Extra was issued from this Office, on Saturday morning last, conveying the gladdening news of the passage, by a majority of ten votes, of the Texas Boundary Bill, with the amendment of Mr. Boyd attached.

This intelligence, taken altogether, will be received with silent satisfaction or open demonstrations of approbation by a large majority of the people of the United States.

It has been strongly urged as an objection to the settlement of the agitation of the day upon the basis that has now been adopted by Congress...

Two things, connected with the history of this agitation, in its last struggles in the House, strike us as strange, indeed. The one is, that the House should have manifested such puerile weakness...

THE NATIONAL INTELLIGENCER. “The National Intelligencer,” received at a late hour last night, (Monday,) thus announces the result:

“FREE SUFFRAGE”—THE NEXT SESSION.

RALEIGH, N. C.

Wednesday, Sept. 11, 1850.

After the vacillation and inconsistency of the Loco Foco party in the last Legislature upon this question, we are at a loss what to think as to the probable disposition they may wish to make of it, at the ensuing session.

Our simple object in penning this article, is to induce a little in a quiet spirit of prophecy. It will be remembered that the change in the Constitution which Mr. Reid advocated in 1848, was defeated in the Senate of that year by just five votes—four Eastern Loco Focos voting against another (Mr. Spicer, of Onslow,) holding it convenient not to vote.

No fact is better authenticated, by history, than that it has ever been the vocation of factious and demagogues to make the people dissatisfied with their form of government—to affect an over-zealous regard for the people’s rights—to purchase the favor of the people, at the expense of the people’s peace and quiet—to presume to know what the people need and desire, better than the people do themselves—and to force upon the people, out of pretended love for them, and without consulting them, the blessings of innovation.

It was first designed for party agitation, and its pretended friends wish it to be kept open for the same purpose. And if, perchance, those who are really interested in the change shall take the matter in hand, and carry it through, together with all the practical corollaries that dangle at the tail of it, somebody will be astonished—certain! And some other paws will have to pull the burning chestnut out of the fire!

It will be seen that Messrs. Clingman, Daniel and Venable, of this State, voted against the Bill, and against the wish of a large majority of the People of North Carolina. Mr. Ashe, dejected. He was too much annoyed by the cheers and acclamations with which the result of the vote, ordering the Bill to its third reading, was received by the anxious crowd of spectators that thronged the galleries, to sit quietly in his seat.
