BY GEORGE D. PRENTICE. My child ! my dear lost child ! a father's heart, Touched by the holy wand of memory, Would in this hour of loneliness and gloom, When not a sound is borne upon the air, And not a star is visible in heaven, Hold sweet communion with thy soul.

Thou wast most beautiful. I never looked On thee but with a heart of pride. Thy curls Fell o'er a brow of angel loveliness, And thy dark eyes. dark as the midnight cloud, And soft as twilight waters, flashed and glowed In strange wild beauty, yet thy tears were far More frequent than thy smiler thy wail of pain Came oftener on our hearts than thy dear cry Of infant joyousness. Thy few brief months Were mouths of suffering; ay, thy cup of life Was bitter, bitter, but thou wast not doomed To drain it, for God of mercy soon Let it pass from thee.

Oh! how well, my child, Do I remember that all mourntul day, When thy young mother bore thy wasting form With breaking heart and streaming eyes, afar, In the vain hope to save the dear young life. To which the tendrils of her own were bound. With one wild pressure of thy little form To my sad hosom, with a frantic kiss Upon thy pallid lips, and a hot tear Wrung from a burning brain, I said farewell-Alas! my child, I never saw thee more. le a strange land, far from thy own dear home. But with the holy ministries of love Around thy couch, thy little being passed. Like the sweet perfume of a bright young rose To mingle with the skies from whence it came. Oh! in that hour, my child, thy last of earth, Did not a thought of thy poor father's love Soften the anguish of thy parting soul. And were not thy dear little arms outstretched To meet his fond caress !

Thou sleepest, child, Where the Missouri rolls its wild, dark waves. And I have never gazed upon thy grave. No tears of deep affection ever blend With the soft dews and gentle raine that fall Upon the turf that lies above thy breast; But, on ! the spot is hallowed. There the Spring. The bright Spring yearly throws her loveliest

Of buds and blossoms-there, at more and eve. The viewless spirit of the zephyr breathes Its holiest whispers in the springing grass As if communing with thee—there the birds Glance through the air like winged souls, and

Their sweet, unearthly melodies-and there At the suft twilight hour young angels come To hover o'er the spot on silver wings, And mark it with their shining foot prints.

An gone, my child-a sweet and holy bud Is shaken from the rose-tree of our hopes : But yet we should not mourn. Tis joy to know That thou hast gone in thy young innocence And purity and beauty from a dark, Ungentle world, where many snares beset The path of manhood. Ay, 'tis joy to know That the Eolian lyre of thy young soul Gives out its music in the Eden clime, Unvisited by earth's cold, bitter winds, Its poison dews, its fogs, its winter rains, Its tempests and its lightnings,

My sweet child. Thou art no more a blossom of the earth. But, oh! the thought of thee is yet a spell On our sad spirits. 'Tis a lovely flower On memory's lonely stream, a holy star In retrospection's sky, a rainbow gleam Upon the tempest slouds of life. Our hearts, Our stricken hearts, lean to thee, love, and thus They lean to heaven, for thou art there. Yes,

And thy young sister are in heaven, while we Are lingering on the earth's cold desert. Come, Ye two sweet cherubs of God's Paradise, Who wander side by side, and hand in hand. Among the Amaranthine flowers that bloom Beside the living waters come, ob come. Sometimes upon your bright and snowy wings in the deep watches of the silent night. And breathe into our souls the holy words That ye have heard the angels speak in heaven.

From the Ashboro' Herald. CENSUS MAN'S OBSERVATIONS. The thread of our observations, for many reasons which may not interest the public, was necessarily broken last week.

Home! Hast thou a home, attentive reaeadearments? What other spot is always oaks or spreading elms, its quiet meandering brooks of headlong streamlet, its dark green fields of promising crops, and above all, those reliable friends whose welcoming smiles are divide us from it. Home, wife, mother ! ever illuminating life's pathway? What memories, other than those of our childhood. can bind us with books of steel to the place of our birth? What song is like that of the mother who caroled us to sleep in infaccy, or what voice like that which admonished in the hour of waywardness, soothed in the hour of affliction, and ascended every hour in the day to Heaven's throne in our behalf? None, truly. Whence the spell that binds us there ! When we come to the poor "exile of Erin," who, years ago, allured by the favorable reports from this great and growing country, severed the ties of country and kindred, and sat out to realize his bright visions of the "land of the free and the home of the brave;" though he found it indeed a land of "milk and honey," a land the cornucopia of which poured forth bounties in endless profusion; though sons and daughters have grown up around him, whose perpetual song is given to glorious America; still, in the midst of comforts thus boundless and objects thus dear, the man of silver locks is even here exclaiming,

"Erin; an exile bequeaths thee his blessing! Land of my forefathers! Erin go bragh! Baried, and cold, when my heart stille her mo

Though still they are sacred to freedom and love; Yet. Caledonia, beloved are thy mountains, Round their white summits though elements war, Though cateracts foam, 'stead of smooth-flowing fountains, sigh for the valley of dark Loch na Garn" So with those of every other nation, however long they have been separated from the enchanted spot, or through whatever ordeals they may have passed. But why is this?— As we move along from house to house, this question is often put to ourself. We meet with a home, for instance, that has not a single pleasing phase to our eye. It may be placed (we mean the earthly tabernacle) out in the midst of some large field, where no green tree protects it from the summer sun. The yard may be parched, trodden, and not a blade of grass or ever-green shrub glaus the eye. There may be no yard, and corn or weeds may even intrude upon the threshold. There may be neither corn, nor grass, nor weed, but all around one wide waste. Around and under the dwelling may be his sing geese, grunting swine, or harsh throated guinea-hens, and in it may be slops, and grease, and filth enough on the vestments of "dear babes" to render them offensive to more than one of the special senses. The house may have a roof which admits freely the rains of heaven, and cracks and crevices that only make the winds of earth whistle in their passage. All these may be, and yet in that dwelling, the description of which is in no wise distorted, there may be happy faces and kind hearts. Though we may form some idea of the temper of persons by a survey of the face, it is not safe to estimate the happiness of inmates by the splendor or comeliness of their dwelling. Contentment is an essential to happiness, and she may quietly dwel! where the philosopher, the man of letters, passes her a thousand times unnoticed. Now the drawing of a picture that could attended to with promptness and despatch. niease our eve - would necessarily be quite a different affair. Our dwelling should be upon some bold commanding height, or far down in some sequestered vale, where the winds of lofty mountains war around us .-We would have ever-green vines twining around our windows, and opening wide their sweet-scented blossoms. The dark green cedar should rejoice in winter, the stately elm should open its buds to the roft winds of spring, the lily should unfold its beauty in the lay of the summer morn, and the frosts of autumn should strew our pathway with every variety of the yellow leaf. We would have a neat dwelling, and windows enough in it to admit freely the pure light of Heaven's glorious sun. Such a home might be sweet and lovely to us, and in it we might be happy, provided always, an eye were there to "Mark

Our coming, and look prighter when we come." But we have many in our minds eye who are far happier in a cabin having no floor but the earth, a chimney built of sticks and mud, and but a single entrance. Knowing this, we sometimes suffer ourself to fall into a reverie. Why is it that we have toiled so often over the midnight lamp, while this man of contented mind was sweetly sleeping? What of Greek, Latin, Hebrew or why should one strive so long and faithfully to unfold the mysteries of science ? If happiness is to be obt. ined in the vale, why should one strive himself by clambering up the mountain? Here is a maze, and whoever enters it will scarcely be able to extricate himself. The unlettered man is happy in his very ignorance, while the enlightened mind is painted at the misery of others .-The contentment of the ignorant cottager is just one step above that of the savage. We are almost ready to envy the superior bliss of the poor wretch, while we would not change places with him for a thousand worlds like this. The enlightened mind never desires its original darkness; but the unlettered mind that once begins to break through the dark clouds that surround it, never ceases to struggle for the pure light of day. But why is the peasant's home, however homely, as dear to him as a palace to the prince ? I der, what place has ever presented so many is all he bath on earth, and therefore much. As the spreading oak, uptorn by the whirlpresenting its inviting fireside, its majestic wind, is not forsaken by the green vine that twined around it in majestic days, neither is the humblest home of our youth to be forgotten, though ocean's proudest billows may

copal Church. HE Ninth Annual Session will open on Mon-day, October 7th, 1850, and continue till the next "Commencement Day," the last Thursday in July, 1851. New students are recommended to enter at the opening of the session, but are received at any time they apply, and the charge is estimated from the date of their entrance. The College has the usual number of classes, affords all the opportunities for a complete education, and, at the successful termination of the collegiate course, confers upon its graduates the usual academical degrees.

The Grammar School, immediately adjoining the College, and under the immediate supervision of the Rector, but under distinct discipline, receives lads at the beginning of their academical course, and prepares them for the collegiate classes. The over-sight and direction of the Professors of the College secure special advantages to the pupils in the Grammar School.

In the Mercantile Classes the study of the Greek language is omitted, and its place supplied by additional studies in Modern Languages, Book-keeping, Commercial Arithmetic, Statistics, &c.
The location of the College is sutirely healthful, and, by its distance from towns and villages, very favorable to good morals and order.

The whole annual charge (the same in the College and Grammar School) for the session of ten months is two hundred and twenty-five dollars, payable semi-annually in advance. Applications to be

STEAMBOAT

NAVIGATION BETWEEN PAYETTEVILLE AND WILMINGTON. Steam Boat Company beg leave to tender their thanks to the public for the liberal patronage received during the last season, and take this method to inform their patrons and the public generally that they have added over fifty per cent to the Cap.

of the New Steambost "Cuatham," is calculated to navigate the river at all stages of water, giving shippers by this line a decided advantage in getting their goods up without delay, especially in the Fall season, when the River is usually too low for Steam Boats of ordinary draught to run.

The Boats composing this Line are The Steamer Gov Graham, 21 years old. Chatham New. Tow Boats Mike Brown 2 yearsold. Telegraph Cumberland

Express All the above Boats are in the very best condition for the Fall business. The undersigned feel warranted in uppealing to the shipping public for such an increased patronage as will renumerate them to some extent at least for the additional capital invested, and promise with every confidence that ship-pers by this Line shall be as well if not better served than they can be by any other on the River.

The arrangements by the Copartners are intended to be permanent, and should experience suggest the necessity of any further increase of boats, the public Our rates for Freight at all times will be the con

Or Medicated Compound. TENFALLIBLE for renewing, invigorating and beautifying the hair, removing scurt, dandruff, and all affections of the scalp, and curing eruptions on the skin, diseases of the glands, muscles and integuments, and relieving stings, cuts, bruises, sprains &c., &c. With this preparation "there is no such word as fail." The first journals in America, medi-cal men of the highest emmence, prominent citizens of ail professions, and ladies who have used it for years in their dressing rooms and nutrities, admit with one second, that, for imparting vigor, gloss, hux-uriance and curl to the hair, eradicating scurr and dandruff, heating wounds, curing contusions, spraint stings, &c., and relieving diseases of the akin, the glands and the muscles, it has no equal among the multitude of compounds advertised in the public prints, or used in private practice. In cheapness as well as efficacy, Barry's Tri. opherous is unriverted. The immense cash sales of the article have enabled the inventor to supply it at retail at twenty five cents per bottle, which is from fifty to one hundred per cent less than the prices of any other preparation now in use. The scientific treatises on the hair and skin (embracing valuable directions for the cultur and prezervation of Nature's choicest ornamental in which each bottle is enclosed, is alone worth the Sold in large bottles, price 25 cents, at the principal office 137 Broadway, New York. For sale by the principal Merchants and Druggists throughout the United States and Canada.
