LAUGHTER. Polite Persons seldom venture beyond a smile.
A laugh—a wild, a merry laugh, Though it may vulgar be. A clear, a loud, a cheerful note-This is the laugh for me.

I saw a boy, with sunny hair, Bound lightly o'er a lawn, With motion free as summer air, And timid as a fawn ; A silvery tone was borne along Upon the breezes mild ; It was the sweet and joyous laugh, Or that gay-hearted child.

l saw a maid, on whose soft cheek The toes and lily vied ; She hing upon her father's arm-This darling and his pride.
Why does her size forge: his years? Perget his epirit's pain? He listens to that bright one's laugh, And boytisted comes again.

I saw a youth in manhood's dawn, Within a merry ring
Of fairy forms and brickiant eyes,
And all were listening.
The gay and sportive tale he told; Bright faces brighter grew, Like music notes the sweet sounds rung Of laughter, loud and true:

Oh ! man may learn his brow to smooth. And wear a ready smile ; The cold and polished world that scorn A merry laugh the while. Give me the clear and mirthful fitte; Poured from the heart of glee, Bre earth has taught the soul to hide; This is the laugh for me !

MISCELLANEOUS.

N. C. ARSENAL, AT FAYETTEVILLE.

Making a visit, the other day, to this important national establishment, situated on Haymount, near the western border of our town, we were agreeably suprised, on entering the grounds, with its satisfactory progress towards completion. We of the buildings, and their accurate architectural relation, which will give the pile, when completed, avery imposing appearance-and we were pleased with the next order of the square, and exact arrangement and serviceable condition of the military stores in deposite.

Having frequently heard that the design, the magnitude, nor the importance of this institution were sufficiently understood or appreciated by the people of our own State, nor those of the other south-Atlantic States, which will derive their milstary supplies from it, at our request we have been furnished, by the politeness of the commandug officer, Capt. Jas. A. J. Bradford, with the following information in relation thereto!

Fayetteville Carolinian. The "North Carolina Arsenal," so named in honor of the State, was recommended to be established by the military cominitiee of the House of Representatives of Congress in 1835-'6, of which Genl. J. J. McKay, of Bladen county, member from North Carolina, was chairman, in whose report it was stated to be intended to supersede the small arsenal of deposite at Bellona near Richmond, Va., (which was to be abandoned on account of its unhealthy locality) and the arsenal of limited construction within the walls of tort Monroe at Old Point Comfort, Va., which was cramped in space for its operations, and, in the event of the seiging of that fortress, would be exposed to destruction by the fire of the seigers, and its use. fulness for the fabrication and distribution of munitions for the general service be much if not wholiv, restricted, by their lines of circum and countervallation. A position for an establishment to supply the places of these two, which should have easy and safe access to ocean navigation, was first sought, unsuccessfully, on the James river in Virginia and the Romoke in North Carolina. Looking further south, this position being found to po-sess the requisite endowments, a law was passed by congress authorising the establishment here of an arsenal of general construction, to be, also, a place of large deposite for the supply of all the south Atlantic frontier. Its peculiar advantages for these objects are numerous and important. It is secure from external attack, which must come from the sea-from which side, on account of the dangerous physical character of the opposite coast, it would scarcely be attempted-but should it be, and be successful, the assailants could neither hold their conquest nor return in safety to their ships, as the militia of three tiers of intervening counties would have time to embody and cut them off. And other menace must come from the interiorwhence, though not impossible, it is not to be anticipated. It is surrounded by or is within speedy reach (never exposed to interruption) of metal, mineral, wood, and all other materials sused in military constructions, which may be obtained at a cost as low as, if not lower than, at any similar establishment of the country. In consequence of the cheapness of living in its vicinity, where cal shift for all the operations of the arsenal may always be commanded, and wages will ever range as low as at any other position. Its facilities of communication with other portions of the country, and for the circulation of supplies, are already extensive; and when certain lines of viatory improvement, how under construction, or soon to be commenced, are completed, the latter will ramify to all parts of our extended country without ocean hazard! For example: for communication, besides daily mail intercurrence in hearly every cardinal direction, which will increase with the business wants of the country, it has now, through the great northern and southern line of telegraph, immediate communication with its general head-quarters at Washington, whence orders for the fabrication or distribution of supplies may be received sooner than at any other place of construction. For circulation; it has and will continue to have steam connection, within fifteen hours time, with the ocean, over the Cape Fear river, which is never obstructed by ice, and through the port of Wilmington, where transportation by sea may always be readily obtained at as reasonable cust as at any port of the union. It has connection with the north, via the river and Wilmington and Roanoke, the Raleigh and Gaston, and the Petersburg, the Portsmouth, &c., rail-roads. It will connect with the south, and the far southwest, via the river and Wilmington and Manchester rail-road; which, when complete, will unite with the extensive system of rail-roads, completed or in progress, at the south and southwest, by means of which it may place supplies at Nashville in six; at Memphis in eight; and New Orleans in twelve days. The Fayette-ville and Western Plank Road will connect it with the west at Salisbury, whence distributions may be made, up the Yudkin river, into northwestern North Carolina, southwest tern Virginia and northeastern Tennessee due west into eastern Tennessee; and over the Salisbury and Georgia line turnpike, into southwestern North Carolina, northwestern South Carolina, southeastern Tennessee and northeastern Georgia. These interlacing connections make it apparent that supplies may be despatched hence to all parts of the country, with the greater celerity, and without risk of capture or wreck at sea! As the nature of the operations to be prosecuted at the Arsenal may have interest, it may be stated that no cannon will be cast nor small arms manufactured-the former being obtained by contract with private individuals; as are a limited number of the latter, under a law of 1804, "making provision for arming and equipping the whole body of the militia," and appropriating $200, 000 annually therefor-but most of the small arms are manufactured at the national armories at Springfield, Mass., and Harper's Ferry, Va. Both, however, will be kept in store ready for issue when required, and defeetive small arms will be re paired. All the other, almost innumerable appointments of the service, will be fabrica ted-such as all kinds of carriages for mounting heavy cannon in battery in the forts, and the lighter guns for field service; the vat ious implements and machines for manœuveritig, mounting and dismounting cannon, and for handling them in denot; carriages bearing ammunition were quite struck with the fine, substantial style chests of field batteries; by ttery-wagons to carry tools for wood repairs, and duplicate parts of carriages for the protapt replacing of such as meet damage in the field; locomotive smiths forges, to make the les ser iron repairs of field batteries, shoeing batte ry horses, &c., complete harness for battery ht rises; accourrements and equipments comple te for the seve. ral arms of service; the proof of powder, and the preparation of every descritation of ammunition for all arms, &c. &c.

> Among the many readily ac cestible near sources of the chief materials; necessary to accomplish all this work, he sides timber, abounding in all directions at mear distances, there may be named the deposites of semibituminous coal and of iron, it. Chatham & Moore countier, forty or fifty miles distant, and nearly symmetrically penetrated by the important dam and lock improvement of the upper Cape Fear and Deep Rivers; and the deposite of iron in this (Cumbe rland) county, in the same district, 18 miles distant, and within 6 miles reach of the Fayetteville and Western Plank Road. The contemplated plank road to Centre will afford nearer and cheaper access to the superior iron of Lincoln and Mecklenburg counties, and neultiply the sources of timber supplies. An accurate and sagacious estimate indicates that the coal may be delivered here for $5 per ton, and the iron at an average of 850 per ton.

There are now in deposite at the arsenal one complete bronze field battery, composed of four 6 pdr. guns and two 12-pdr. howit. zers, with all the necessary implements, equipments, &c., ready for immediate service in the field-and two iron 6-pdr. guns of the pattern of 1812, with implements, &c., complete-upwards of 8000 stands of percussion muskets, and 2000 stands of percussion rifles-a large amount of fixed ammunition, and cast and pressed balls, buck shot, &c, for each calibre, with a considerable amount of cannon, musket and rifle powder in bulk and a number of articles in his line too tedious to -many thousands of percussion caps-some infantry accoutrements, battery harness, and a large number of battery tools, etc. etc. may demand, by receipts from other posts, or by construction, as may be deemed most ad-

The various buildings are disposed around square of 500 feet extent, in the centre of which is situated the "Arsenal," or principal store house. On the corners of the squares are octagonal towers, for defence when necessary; for offices, storage, &c , when not On the east front are the officers' quarters, and the main entrance to the square-on the north, a timber store, barrack, (through which is the thoroughfare entrance,) a guncarriage and coal store-on the south, a timber store, an armourers', tinners,' harnessmakers', etc., shop; a gun-carrage store and paint shop-on the west, a line of shops, embracing a carriage-makers', turners', steam Barber Shop All orders thankfully received and engine, filers', forgers', and casting shops.
