REPUBLICAN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH CAROLINA.

This address was delivered at the late Convention, assembled in the City of Raleigh, on the 4th day of September, having met the open of their own race, and of one officer, lately in the federal service, (Gen. Laffin) who met only rare

But, inasmuch as the people themselves, and not the States, are the real repository of political power, it is required that they give evidence of their

The principles of popular government, as ordinarily understood, may be fully summed up in two propositions, viz: 1. A faithful and willing adherence to and

The government has refrained from executions for treason, from banishments and from confiscation. It does not now suspend any threats over us

These unjust charges have had much effect upon the minds of the colored people, and have raised up apprehensions and hesitations
