Such a fact as the foregoing is sufficient with out comment to refute forever the ridiculous obiction so often brought again t the Common Schools of this country, that they are godless institutions when the Bible is not used in them, and sectarian institutions when it is. A Protestant lecturer in New York recently proposed to test the sincerity of those foreign ecclesiastics, who profess so profound a regard for the religious instruction of their parishioners. He offered to print or pay for a large edition of the Donay Bible, out of his own pocket, on the single condition that he should be aided in distributing them among the destitute by a priest, who should accompany him on his rounds, and recommend the book to the people. The challenge has not been accepted.

national character which our reformers ought to be more zealous to remove, and that is the stain of tobacco juice. It may be one of the reserved rights of the American citizen to be nasty, and we are not exactly in favor of taking his quid forcibly from him; but a little old-fashioned moral sugsion, might accomplish a great deal towards the suppression of the squirting habits of the people, especially if that suasion were feminine in its character. The anti-liquor party appeal to the ballot-box. The anti-tobacco party would do well to appeal with more gallantry art we can teach her in a very few words. Let to the band-box.

JULLIEN'S S EIGH-RIDE .- A Cincinnati paper tells an amusing story by way of illustrating the effects produced at one of Jullien's concerts there, by the performance of his " Sleigh-ride Polks." - A young gentleman of a rather affectionate turn of mind was there, it seems, with his sweetheart. The hall being excessively crowded, he was obliged to put his arm on the back part of the seat ; consequently almost around the Lidy. During the excitement of the "Sleigh-ride Polka," he unconsciously squeezed his fair partner a little. The lady was of course much shocked, and demanded the reason of such unwarranted rudeness. The gentleman made a thousand apologies, saying he must certainly be insance or else he had been carried away by the'truthfulness of Jullien's music, and merely put his arm in that position to prevent her falling out of the "sleigh."
