Blaine and CoHax.

George Alfred Townsend, the well known of the Northern limits of the temperate zone. Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, gives an analysis of the Committees of the House appointed by Mr. Blaine, and awards him much praise for the tood for over 350 millions of people who skilful manner in which the task was per- never eat meat. There are more than fifty formed. He also draws the following con trast between Mr. Blame and the Vice-President whom he succeeds as Speaker of the and pink tinge. It yields continual annual House:

A fine antithetical study would be that of Blaine and his predecessor, Colfax. They are so like in the averages that one has to hesitate before he proters either. Colfax is a native of the Empire State. Blaine of the Keystone. Both are Middle State men in all essentials of temperament, figure, physiognomy and hearty commen-sense patriotism. Colfax is accidently a New Yorker, being by right a Jerseyman, and his disposition lacks in some respects the largeness and "dash" of the metropolis, retaining in some small regards the traditional traits of the State of Camden and Amboy. Blaine, with the open candor of a rural Pennsylvanian, caught the fire of the Kentuckian as he taught school in the Blue grass country, and then he pursued a sweetheart into the State of Maine and settled there. He is a fine specimen of how much better a Yankee is, for having been first a Middle State or a Western State man, Blaine has all the better ideas of New England with better man ners. He is a long-waisted man, with shoulders square and ready for the wheel, and there is an itch to them when he is anxious. His eye is piercing and large, his head is carried handsomely, he has vigorous legs and arms, and often looks soldierly, as if cavalry boots and buckskin gauntlets would become him. He is a more manly personage to the eye than Colfax, showing throughout his live Irish extraction, and he has wit, perhaps imagination to match. He is a strong executive officer, and he directed the Republican vote of the State of Maine last year with a zest and energy in which you could hear his nerves tingle.

Coltax, as a presiding officer, was distinguished for his perfect and available knowledge of rulings, for the rapidity of his mind in catching up appeals and crisises, and the shrewdness with which he distributed by the highway. It don't make much difthe committees. Mr. Kerr of Indiana, recently said, at Fernando Wood's dinner, discharges its contents on some part of the that he was as fair a presiding officer as an opponent would expect. Speaker Blaine's committees are a great improvement over the former committees of his taxes every year. He had an enormous the House. Particularly is it fortunate that James A. Garfield, the most gallant in intelligence of the House, is put at the head of the important Committee of Banks and Banking. He is the parent of the sound financial system adopted late in the day by Sherman and the rest, and he is the most systematic and sleepless student in the House of Representatives. Gartield never entertained a mean or service thought, and his life is like a German student's in its enthusiasm for learning and country. Mr. Biaine, in this as in several other cases, has the whip, until he has been told to move done himself honor. He has ruled off the faster, by voice or sign. Banky horses are floor the tramps and footpads who dis generally made so, by illtreatment when graced journalism, and made himself posi young, or bad handling of the animal if of a tive master of the situation.

The Cuban Question.

The Spanish authorities perpetrated another brutal outrage at Havana last Friday. It was bad enough to execute two patriots. whose only crime was devotion to their country, and it was intamous, when their unhappy fate excited the commiscration of the spectators, to permit the sanguinary vol unteers to slake their vengeance in the blood of a promiscuous crowd. The cable telegram reports that six men were killed and many wounded by the shots fired by the guard who surrounded the scaffold. Any attempt to justify these infamous murders must necessarily be based on an acknowledgment that in Havana, the very centre and stronghold of Spanish influences, public sentiment is scarcely less favorable to the patriotic cause than in the interior districts where Caspedes rules with undisputed sway. The earnest sympathy of the United States is justly due to a people who are not only subjected to an obsoxious despotic rule, but whose heroic efforts to gain the boon of freedom are confronted by the most atrocious massacres. The statement telegraphed from Madrid that the Spanish authorities are about to send a naval commission to New York to purchase monitors for Cuba will arouse, under existing circumstances, deep indignation. It indicates that if the Cubans are not speedily recognized as belligerents, the energies of this country will be freely used to assist the tyrants in riveting their chains, while no helping hand can be extended to men who are imitating the noble example of our revolutionary ancestors.

As the House of Representatives, by the resolution passed on Saturday, has given forcible expression to the national sentiment, we presume that the administration will act promptly on the first authentic information that justifies a formal recognition of the rising power, and that the readiness of Spain to recognize the Confederacy will be repaid by a Roland for her Oliver .- Philadelphia Telegraph.

We heard an excellent story told the other day in relation to the identity of the old Democratic party with that of modern times. It was said by the man who told the story that in a certainly family they had able production. It is an excellent dressing for gardens, and will repay a hundred fold a vinegar b rrel that had remained for several generations in the family, and that they had a great veneration for it. It was grandfather's vinegar barrel, and they all reverenced it. But by and by the hoops had become rotten, and they were renewed, and the heads and staves had given away, and they were replaced; and finally an inquiry was set on foot as to the identity of this barrel with grandfather's old vinegar barrel, and, after a strict examination, he said the only point of identity between the two-the only thing that remained of grandfather's remember the advantages of a farmer's old vinegar barrel- was the bunghole.
