On the 18th we left Cleveland for Buff.lo. and here again we were reminded that the term "Great West" was truly applicable t tie surrounding country. The crops of all the lake shores find their way to these lake ports, and necessity, from multiplicity of trans ion, has simplified the methods of mercan er cities of the West. There is an air of solidity about every thing connected with westtor visiting them from the east. The large farms, the liberal appliances, the fine condition of working cattle, the entire absence of Picayuncism, is truly delightful.
