From the names appended to this call, we conclude that nothing partizan is intended by the movers, but that all will meet together as North Carolinians to consult for the interest and welfare of North Carolina. Whilst as a Whig, we are proud of the position our party has always maintained upon this subject, we are ready and willing to co-operate with our Democratic fellow citizens in furthering any plan that may develop the resources and increase the prosperity of the State:

We repeat, then, we hope a full representation from all sections of the State will be present to deliberate upon this the most important question that will corre before the next Legislature, and that something will be done in which all sections will readily concur.

FLOURISHING .- The Senior Editor of the Fay etteville Observer, now on a visit to the North writes in a glowing style of the success and fortunes of some of the leading Northern editors. The prosperity of the press in the Northern cities is undoubtedly due to the ability with which it is conducted, and the public spirit of the busi ness men of the cities ; still are they very liberally patronized at the South for their commercial and other intelligence. If all those Southern neople who take only Northern journals would only bestow some of their patronage upon papers searer home, the publishers and editors could furnish them a more handsome sheet and a much more able and instructive journal; and whilst they might not be able to emulate the splendor of New York editors, or become as wealthy as they are, they might be more easy and comfortable in life, and have les; the feeling that they had spent their time, energy and talents for the edification turn for so much toil. We venture to assert that "I suppose pape will sould," said Caroline: "Inth for so factor as hard and as the cliters in this State labor as hard and as constantly as their more favored is etheren in the the placards over which, "selling off at cost," proved as seductive that we at once stayed our steps and entered. He had a contomer, who, year after year, came to this place and bought a large bill of goods. On one occasion handing his bill to the buyer he was surprised to see it turned over and over, and examined for a long time, avidently to the great distatisfaction of the examiner. "What's the matter, isn't your bill all right sir ?" "Why yes, its all right I believe, but the fact is that since I was here last year, my company have elected me Captain¹⁰¹. Our Democratic trends inverge against the re-justice of prostribing seen for their religious opinions. They point to the fact that our fiber-ties were won by the swords of both Protestant and Catholic soldiers. Bishop Highes has argued some time since that the trial by jury—the system of election, indeed, all that we most house of in our institutions, had been copied from Pa-pal models. He has also made the pointed re-mark that whilst Protestant Hessians were hired to cut our throats, Catholic Iroland aided in de-fending our liberties. But we do not know what defence the Quien Sabes will set up on that sub-ject. Unlike the Ghosta they seem to have no organ. They seem to have adopted the tactics of Bunker Hill, they do not fire till they " see the whites of their enomies eves." Like the galor make a julep at the next restaurant. Repub-licans as we are, proud of talking of our Demo-cracy, titles don't come amiss, and if we don't say, "your lordship," and "your grace," Biohop Huges being the only man mean State so called, within half pastol shot. Not having beld, or we show our innate love for titles in the more even expected to hold any office, we cannot take a very lively interest in this way once, we cannot take a very lively interest in this way on one side, but we should very much like to hear what the Quien Sabes will have to say in reply. Mum e dates have been always denounced by our Mum candineratic friends, with great indignation. Per-hags we shall have an answer from the Quien Sabes one of these days. "We don't know." But our Democratic friends must find it very hard fighting such impalpable ourmies this greeable weather. AN INCIDENT OF JURY TRIAL.

en from the polls. Exasperated at the state of affairs, the Americans rallied in large numbers, and proceeded to the seat of war. After some akirmishing, an Irishman, who is a barkeeper under the Amphitheatre, got into a fight with an American, and being pressod by numbers, fled into a house tonantied by a Spanish family, corn-er of Royal and Balava streets. Under the im-pression that the house was a rendeavous of the Irish risters, the vast crowd poured in, demollah-ing windows and banisters, in search of the fa-gilite, who as was afterwards accertained, had taken refuge in the chimney. A shot was fired at the crowd by one of the immates of the house but unfortunately the contents were received by a female, also an inmats, who endeavored to provent this saicidal attempt on the part of her countrymes. If ad it not been for the flasing of the Irish and the expostulations of the Mayor, the mob, emaged as it was, might have proceed-ad to great extremities. As it was, it ended in far less bloodshed than was expected, consider-ing the weapons and minisiles of every descrip-tion recorted to, though there was enough to ant-isfy the most exacting. The last number of Barper's Magraine contains an article entitled "Incidents of Jary Trial," the perusal of which reminded us of an amusing and somewhat novel method of arriving at a ver diet adopted by a Jury in this county on a certain occasion. The story is told by a facations friend of σ irs, who was a member of the Jury, and is as follows: The Jumrs in the case referred to, as aften happens, found themselves onable to agree opon the amount of damages to be assessed.— Many unsuccessful efforts had been made to a-gree upon a vertice. All the meansumally report. ed to on such occasions were tried in vain opinion of each Juror was averatined, and the opinion of each Juror was averatined, and the surv thus obtained added together and the argue gate divided by tweive, but is failed to produce unanimity. This account has been confirmed by official re-ports. It appeared to be a proconcerted plan on the part of the Indians to waylay and murder the whole party. The massacre was committed on the 18th of August. It was also stated when the express left Laramie, that the fortwas surrounded by Indians, and there was reason to fear that it would be destroyed. The garrison numbered une commissioned officer and fifty men. It was fur-ther stude also that after the lattle the Indians attacked the American Fur Company's station ing, and yet there was no prospect of agreements in this condition of affairs the happy appediate we are about to relate was suggested and imme diately carried into execution, with complete and wonderful success. A large circle was drawn up on the floor of the Jury room with a "piece o chalk;" this was next divided into twelve equa compartments by drawing lines from its contrato its corcumference. Each Juror then wrote down in one of them divisions the amount of damages he "want for." This done the Foreman with a gravity becoming the solemnity of the oreasion took his stand in the centre of the circle, and took has stand in the centre of the circle, and having spid in the palm of his heft hand, struck it violently with the fore-finger of the right, at the name instant whiring his bidly rapidly around on his beel.
