

ADVERTISEMENTS not exceeding sixteen lines will be inserted at the rate of one dollar per line for the first week, and fifty cents for each subsequent week. Those of greater length will be charged proportionately. Cash orders and full payment in advance are required. A reasonable discount will be made to those who advertise by year.

Back and Job Printing done with neatness, despatch and on accommodating terms.

GENERAL DIRECTORY.

CITY GOVERNMENT. Wm. Dallas Hayward, Intendant of Police, Commissioner. Eastern Ward.—Eldridge Smith, A. Adams. Middle Ward.—E. L. Harding, Isaac Proctor, E. Cantwell. Western Ward.—A. M. Gorman, H. D. Turner.

COURTS. The Supreme Court of North Carolina is held in this city semi-annually on the second Monday in June, and the 30th day of December. Judges.—Hon. Frederick Nash, Chief Justice, R. M. Pearson, Associate Justice.

The Superior Court for this County is held on the first Monday after the fourth Monday in March and the first Monday in June and the last Monday in November. Judges.—Hon. J. S. Wayne, of Georgia; Hon. Henry Potter, of Fayetteville; District Attorney Robert P. Dick; Clerk Wm. H. Hayward, Sr. Marshall, Wesley Jones.

County Jail.—K. P. Marriott, Sheriff. County Jail.—K. P. Marriott, Sheriff. County Jail.—K. P. Marriott, Sheriff. County Jail.—K. P. Marriott, Sheriff.

BANKS. Bank of the State of North Carolina, incorporated 1820. Capital $1,000,000, divided into 15,000 shares of which the Literary Board holds 9,027 and the University 5,973.

RAILROADS. Raleigh and Gaston Railroad Company. E. A. Cradock, President. W. M. Vasa, Treasurer.

POST OFFICE. Whitehall, St. Post Master. Office hours, on week days, from Sun-rise to 9 P. M.

TRAVELLERS GUIDE. THROUGH MAIL—(By Railroad.) Through Mail—(By Railroad.) Through Mail—(By Railroad.) Through Mail—(By Railroad.)

Splendid Stock of Goods. We are now handling the largest stock of goods ever seen in this city. Call on us at our store, 101 N. W. Cor. 2nd and 3rd Sts., Raleigh, N. C.

DOMESTIC CATHEDRAL. The Cathedral of the Holy Spirit, Raleigh, N. C. is a magnificent structure of Gothic architecture, designed by the late Rev. Dr. J. M. Smith.

Miscellaneous.

The Tiger's Cave.

On leaving the Indian village, we continued to wind round Chimborazo's wide base; but its snow-crowned head no longer shone above us in clear defiance for a dense fog was gathering gradually around it. Our guides, who were anxiously towards it, and announced their apprehension of a violent storm. We soon found that their fears were well founded. The fog rapidly covered and obscured the whole of the mountain; the atmosphere was suffocating, and yet so humid that the street work of our waders was covered with rust, and the watches stopped.

The noise and rattle of the storm continued with so much violence that we could not hear the sound of our voices. I had placed myself near the entrance of the cave, and could observe through the opening, which was straight and narrow, the singular scene without. The high-tops were stuck down, or bent like reeds; and the great snow-capped peaks upon the ground, killed by the falling branches, had collected in the path we had just passed, and hurried along like a mountain stream.

Wharton and myself listened anxiously, but our hearts were not so much affected as those of our Indian guides. They were not so much affected as those of our Indian guides. They were not so much affected as those of our Indian guides.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

After the first sensation of horror and surprise which rendered me motionless for a moment, had subsided, I grasped my firearms. Wharton had already drawn his, and called to me to do the same. I stepped to the mouth of the cave with an immense stone, which, fortunately, lay near it. The sense of approaching danger augmented our strength, for we now distinctly heard the growl of the ferocious animal, and were not beyond reaching it, if we could only get to the entrance before we could get it closed.

WHITE HANDS AND MUDDY COVER.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome. She was not literary either. Henry Thornton couldn't tolerate that kind of absurdity. In his opinion a woman had much better be busy than putting her thoughts upon paper. He thanked fortune, too, that she never took to dress-making, redoubt weavers, or elegant bonnets. Besides his Helen didn't care about politics, being a regular "Know Nothing" in regard to the men who voted the chance of the next President. As to the war of the South, he could not tell positively whether Secession was up or down; or whether it was in the hands of the allies or Russians. Reformation topics he never broached, either; Temperance was only fit for drunkards' wives to talk about.

So it will be perceived that Helen Thornton was a strong-minded woman, a fact upon which her husband delighted himself as a fact upon which she was not so much pleased. Her husband was a man of a different order. He was a man of a different order. He was a man of a different order.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

Henry Thornton had been a married man just ten years. He was proud of his wife's glossy ringlets, her brilliant eyes, and her more than usual white hands. He never once asked himself if these same hands could from a shirt, make bread or mend a pair of socks. No; he was too much to know that they could make trills on a piano, work worsted, dogs and horses on crickets and chickens, and knit something stylish and handsome.

AN EXTRAORDINARY ADVENTURE.

THE LOST MAN AT THE MOUNTAINS.

Dr. Ball's remarkable escape from death by exposure at the White Mountains has been already mentioned, and it is now time to give a full account of his adventures. Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock. He examined his watch, and found that he had been absent for an hour and a half. He was very much surprised, and he began to look for his watch. He found it in a hole in the wall, and he was very much surprised.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

Dr. Ball left the Glen House, Wednesday afternoon, at two o'clock, to take a short walk upon the new carriage walk which has lately been built. That brought him to a small shanty at the foot of the ledge. After arriving there he thought he would go up the ledge for a short distance. Finding it very steep, after a mile or two, he returned back to the shanty, and to this time it was seven o'clock.

AN HONEST BOY.

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance.

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

"That's right, my boy," said the merchant, smiling approvingly upon the bright face of his little apprentice. He had brought him a dollar that lay amongst the dust and paper of the acceptance. "Should I say what I think honest? I think so. I don't know about the clevering tendency of the thing—the spirit is rather narrow, I'll allow."

ROYALTY.

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says:

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

The Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "A new measure which is being adopted at the Court of Napoleon III, causes little change in the political situation of the Empire. It is a measure which still claims to be Democratic in principle, but the present dynasty of France had the right and finds its strength in the Democratic element. The Emperor, in the face of the repeated plagues of demagogues in the most prominent forms and progress which are so manifestly characteristic of the present day, and under the shadow of that proud monument to modern progress, the universal civilization which he has inaugurated in the Empire, is in this manner engaged on a plan for the reorganization of the Empire."

THE OPEN POLAR SEA.

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude.

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly says the most wonderful phenomenon revealed by the explorations to the Polar regions in the "open sea" by 82 degrees north latitude. "The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice. The sea is a vast, unbroken expanse of water, and the ice is a vast, unbroken expanse of ice."