Selected Poetry.

Elarth-Born! Why take Delight.

AT BEY. GROBGE W. BOOKES. Earth-forn! why take delight.
In life's short dream?
Why, wortal, fear the flight,
G'er, death's cold stream?
There has bome above,
Where all are blest,
And in those how'rs of love
We soon shall rest.

Earth-born! why should ye shrink In youth's bright bour. Though life is sweet, to think Of his dread power? We soon shall dwell in light, Neath purer skies, Witere death can never blight,

Nor fears arise Weary, we onward wend Our devious way, Yet Heav award we tend, . To see that day.
There rest the pilgrims feet,
Life's journey o'er;
There party lov'd ones meet,
Absent no more.

What Shall Perish ! What shall perish? Plants that flourish, Blossoms steeped in dewy tears, Rushes that the brooklets cherish, Oaks that brave a thousand years.

What shall perish? Thrones must crumble Centuries wreek the proudest walls, And the heedless travelers stamble, O'er the Course' ruined halls.

Whatshall perish? Man, the glory Of this sublunary spot, like an oft-repeated story, Shall be buried and forgot,

What shall perish? In their course Stars must fall and earth decay, And old ocean's mightlest forces Like a bubble fleet away.

All shall perish, but their Maker;
While the soul that trusts his grace,
Of his strength shall be partaker,
And in heaven behold his face.

Genile Smiles.

The sweet young flowers of early Spring Are beautiful to me, And bright the many stars that shine Upon the calm blue sea; that geatle smiles and loving hearts,

And hands to clasp my own.

Are better than the brightest flowers,
Or stars that ever shone.

The sun may warm the grass to life, The dews the drooping flower,
And eyes grow bright, and watch the light
of autumn's opening hour;
But gentle smiles of tenderness,
And smiles we know are true, And warmer than the summer time, And brighter than the dew.
