RESPECT OLD AGE.

A TRUE STORY.
A young gentleman fresh from college, who had more knowledge of books than of men, was wending his way to the Rev. Dr. C., of Connecticut. The Doctor was extensively known and respected for his energy of character, his learning, and piety, and moral worth. But like the great apostle he did not disdain to "labor with his own hands."
With a letter of introduction to the aged divine, whom he had known only by reputation, our gentle young friend was seeking the privilege of an acquaintance with him.
"Old daddy," said he to an aged laborer in the field by the way-side, whose flannel hat and coarse looking overcoat, (it was a lowering day,) and dark complexion and features, contrasted strongly with his own fresh, rosy and kid-gloved and fair person.—"Old daddy, tell me where the Rev. Dr. C. lives." "In the house you see yonder," the old man modestly replied.
Without condescending to thank him for the information, the young man rode on, and soon found himself seated in the parlor of Doctor C.'s hospitable residence; at the invitation of the lady of the house, awaiting the expected arrival of the Doctor.
In due time the host appeared, having returned from the field, laid aside his wet garments, and adjusted his person. But to the surprise and confusion of the young guest, whom should he meet in the venerable Doctor but the same "old daddy" he had so unceremoniously accosted on his way!
"It was very respectful in you," said the venerable divine, with an arch look and pleasant tone—for the aged person was not wanting in wit and humor—"it was very respectful in you to call me old daddy. I always love to see young men show respect to old age."
The confusion and mortification of the young man were indescribable. He could have sunk through the floor, and buried himself in the darkness of the cellar beneath him. With a countenance crimsoned with blushes, he began to stammer out an apology for his incivility.
"No apology," said the doctor very pleasantly, "no apology—I always love to see respect shown to old age." But the kindness and assiduity of the family could not relieve the unpleasantness of his situation; a sense of the mortifying blunder which he had committed, warned all his anticipations of pleasure from the interview, and he was glad to take his leave as soon as he could do it with decency.

WOMAN'S VOCATION AND DUTY.

Great, indeed, is the task assigned to woman. Who can elevate its dignity; who can exaggerate its importance? Not to make laws, not to lead armies, not to govern empires, but to form those by whom laws are made, and armies led, and empires governed; to guard from the slightest taint of possible infirmity the frail, and as yet spotless creature, whose moral, no less than whose physical being must be derived from her; to inspire those principles, to inculcate those doctrines, to animate those sentiments, which generations yet unborn, and nations yet uncivilized, shall learn to bless; to soften firmness into mercy, to chasten honor into refinement, to exalt generosity into virtue; by her soothing cares to allay the anguish of the body, and the far worse anguish of the mind; by her tenderness to disarm passion; by her purity to triumph over sense; to cheer the scolar sinking under his toils; to console the statesman for the ingratitude of a mistaken people; to be the compensation for hopes that are blighted, for friends that are perfidious, for happiness that has passed away—such is her vocation. The couch of the tortured sufferer, the prison deserted friend, the cross of a rejected Saviour—these are the scenes of a woman's excellence; these are the theatres on which her greatest triumphs have been achieved. Such is her destiny—to visit the forsaken, to attend to the neglected; amid the forgetfulness of myriads to remember—amid the execrations of multitudes to bless; when monarchs abandon, when counsellors betray, when justice persecutes, when brethren and disciples fly, to remain unshaken and unchanged; and to exhibit, on this world, a type of that love—pure, constant, and ineffable—which, in another world, we are taught to believe the best reward of virtue.

UNTAUGHT INSTINCT.

As an illustration of pure untaught instinct among vertebrate animals, we cannot select a better example than the mode in which a little fish, termed the Chetodon rostratus obtains its food. Its mouth is prolonged into a kind of beak or snout, through which it shoots drops of liquid at insects that may be hovering near the surface of the water, and seldom fails in bringing them down. Now according to the laws of optics, the insect, being above the water whilst the eye of the fish is beneath it, is not seen by its true position, since the rays do not pass from the insect to the fish's eye in a straight line. The insect will appear to the fish a little above the place which it really occupies, and the difference is not constant, but varies with every change in the relative position of the fish and the insect. Yet the wonderful instinct with which the fish is endowed, leads it to make the due allowance in every case; doing that at once for which a long course of experience would be required by the most skillful human marksman under similar circumstances.
The next of the Baya, a little India bird allied to our bulfinch, has the form of a booby; and it is suspended from a twig of such elenderness and flexibility, that neither monkeys, serpents, nor squirrels can reach it. That it may be still more secure against the attacks of its numerous enemies, the bird forms the entrance of the nest on its under side, so that it can itself only reach it by the aid of its wings. This curious habitation is constructed of long grass; and several chambers are found in its interior, of which one serves for the female to sit on her eggs, whilst another is occupied by the male, who solaces his companion with his song, whilst she is occupied in maternal cares. Another curious nest is that of the Sylviasutoria, or tailor-bird, a little Eastern bird allied to our linnet; which, by the aid of filaments of cotton drawn from the cotton-plant, sews leaves together with its beak and feet, in such a manner as to conceal the nest which they enclose from the observation of its enemies.

CAUSE OF THE SUN AND MOON STANDING STILL.

Last evening, the first of a series of lectures on the cause which produced the miracle of the sun and moon standing still, and also of the sun moving backwards on the sun-dial of Ahaz, as recorded in the Holy Scriptures, to be demonstrated astronomically and experimentally, and illustrated by diagrams and apparatus, was delivered by Mr. R. Linton, at the Royal Assembly Rooms, Great George street. The lecturer commenced by stating that the phenomena he was about to illustrate were recorded in the 10th chapter of Joshua, and 12th verse, the 20th chapter of Second Kings, and 10th and 11th verses; and that if he could make it appear that the miracle in the case of Joshua had been produced without all interfering with the fixed laws of nature; but on the contrary, with the present acknowledged solar system, the evils of the sceptic and the infidel would be silenced, and God's unlimited power manifested. He then reviewed the leading circumstances connected with the miracle, beginning with God's promise to Abraham, that in his seed all nations of the earth should be blessed; and following the course of the children of Israel through the Red Sea and the Wilderness under the command of Moses, and subsequently under that of Joshua. He showed that Moses possessed the power of working miracles on the animal, vegetable, and mineral kingdoms, and that Joshua first proved that the hand of the Almighty was with him by dividing and passing over the River Jordan, and next by commanding the sun to stand still over Gibeon, and the moon in the Valley of Ajalon. He then showed that the miracle had been performed at a time of great emergency, inasmuch as Joshua and all Israel would have been hemmed in amongst the mountain passes, with which they were wholly unacquainted, and put to the route by the enemy against whom they were then encamped, had not the light of the sun and moon been prolonged. It was somewhat unfortunate, he said, that the Book of Joshua; which, according to Josephus, contains a minute record of what had occurred to the Jews, from year to year, and also of the particulars of the extraordinary miracle, should have been lost, as it most probably was at the destruction of the temple; but still it was matter of thankfulness that we possessed the written evidence of both the Chinese and the Egyptians, in addition to the Scriptures, that a disturbance of the sun had taken place. The date of the Chinese account corresponded with the Israelitish. The Egyptian account neither gave the date nor the motive, but it furnished that which was still better, because it was the only point wanted in order to establish the fact on philosophical principles. It gave us the observations of the effect produced on the Sun by the miracle; in other words, it gave us the course of the sun during the miracle; and those three testimonies taken together were amply sufficient to solve the problems, the difficulty of which had baffled philosophers in all ages. The lecturer then proceeded to show that if Joshua had asked, what seepies generally allege he ought—for the earth to stand still there would have been a general deluge caused by the overflowing of the ocean, and that in asking for the sun to stand still (which it always does,) he was simply asking for the light to stand still—light being the primitive word for sun. He therefore simply requested a prolongation of light from both sun and moon; and the phenomena was produced without interfering with the earth's rotatory motion for a moment. The lecture promised to introduce the diagrams at the second lecture on Friday next.

LATE AND TRUE.

A little circumstance occurred in Philadelphia a few days since, which is one of the best things we have heard of for some time. Every body in and about the city, knows or has heard of Jim Hagerty, the coach and cab owner—a fellow who with as much impudence as rarely falls to the lot of one man, possesses a degree of shrewdness which had shined him along in his career quite prosperously. Jim, too, is a politician, and exercising considerable influence over a certain class, it has given him an extensive acquaintance in a circle, which his political consequence, only could have obtained for him.
A few days since, several gentlemen, among them a distinguished Judge, were seated in an elegant parlor, when the door opened and "Mr. Hagerty" was announced. The "distinguished Judge," mistaking the name for that of Mr. Hackett, the celebrated actor, approached Jim, and offering him his hand in the most cordial manner, at the same time introducing himself, said—
"Mr. Hackett! I am very glad to see you."
"And I'm very glad to see you"—replied Jim in his usual rough brogue.
"Should suppose Mr. Hackett," continued the Judge, "that it has been ten years since I last saw you?"
"Yes, your Honor, I s'pose it's that long or longer."
"And your health, Sir, I believe has been quite good."
"O, yes, your Honor, quite good. How's yours?"
"I have suffered somewhat, Sir, from indisposition, but am now in the enjoyment of excellent health. Your family, Mr. Hackett, I hope to hear are also well."
"They were never better, your Honor, than when I left 'em not more nor half an hour ago."
"By this time the 'distinguished Judge's' companions, who had enjoyed the scene amazingly, could no longer abstain from uttering, and his Honor, suspecting all was not right, inquired very gravely—
"I presume, Sir, I am addressing Mr. Hackett, of the stage?"
"No Sir—Mr. Hagerty of the Coach!" thundered Jim in reply.—German town Telegraph.

CITY ELECTIONS.

On Monday last, Weston R. Gales was re-elected Intendant of Police for this City, by a majority of 61 votes over Wm. F. Clark; and the following gentlemen were elected Commissioners.
D. W. Stone, James Litchford, and George W. Haywood, for the Middle Ward.
Wm. D. Haywood and John Hatches, for the Eastern Ward.
Wm. Ashley & Wm. White, Western Ward.
The new Baptist Church in this City, was sold on the 13th inst, and purchased for the denomination, for only $100.

THE PLANETS.

For sometime past the four planets, Venus, Saturn, Jupiter, and Mars have been seen in the evening in the western sky, ranging from the horizon to the zenith in the order above named—Venus has passed

Saturn and is to be seen higher up the sky; and Saturn may be seen of a clear evening just upon the horizon—soon it will disappear and it will be many years before these four planets will be seen in the same position and at the same time.
A darkie was taken the other day with a bed that he had stolen.
"Variety is the spice of life," as the man said the other day when he bought a trunk full of trumpery. Who was it?
John G. Barr, Esq. son of Mr. Thomas Barr, deceased, formerly of this city, was appointed Tutor of Mathematics in the University of Alabama.
Another store was robbed the other night. Look out!
A NEW SECT OF PHILOSOPHERS.

We have received the first number of a paper called the Communist, published at Motville, Onondaga County, New York, the organ of a new sect of Philosophers.
Their principles may be guessed from the following extract.
"Human rights are equal the world around; the earth and its products are the common property of the race, all buying and selling are damning falsehoods, all sects and parties, civil and ecclesiastical, priests and politicians, churches and governments, are monstrosities of ignorance, superstition, and bigotry."
IMPORTANT REMEDY FOR CANCERS.—Colonel Ussey of the parish of De Soto, informs the editor of the Cahlo Gazette, that he has fully tested a remedy for this troublesome disease, recommended to him by a Spanish woman, a native of the country. The remedy is this:—Take an egg and break it, then pour out the white retaining the yolk in the shell, put in salt and mix with the yolk as long as it will receive it, stir them together until the saline is formed, put a portion of this on a sticking plaster, and apply it to the cancer about twice a day. He has made the experiment in two instances in his own family with complete success.

MUNIFICENCE OF THE REV. SYDNEY SMITH.

The minor canon of St. Paul's though he has had losses, has not lost his liberality among them. An English paper records this instance of his generosity. "By the death of Mr. Canon Tate, the living of Edmonton fell to the disposal of Rev. Sydney Smith. This gentleman possesses no other benefice than a small Chancery living in Somersetshire, under £300 a year.—Edmonton is upwards of £1500. He might have appropriated it to himself. Frankly, and without solicitation, he, within a very few days of the death of his friend the father, bestowed the living on the son, Mr. Thomas Tate.
The Providence R. I. Journal of Monday announces the wilful murder of AMASA SPRAGUE, Esq. of Cranston, senior partner in the extensive manufacturing house of A. & W. Sprague, at his farm, on Sunday afternoon.
He left his house about 3 o'clock to go to a portion of his farm lying in Johnston, for the purpose of looking to the proper shelter of his cattle, and at about 5 o'clock he was found prostrated on the earth dead. Upon examination, a ball was found to have entered the front and passed out of the back of his head. A pistol was found some distance from his body, and under such circumstances as to lead to the belief that a hasty attempt was made to conceal it. It was reported that he had received another wound in the body, but when our informant left, the Coroner's verdict had not been rendered and we cannot, therefore, state it as a fact.
This announcement cannot fail to create a great excitement in our community. Though not an actual resident of our city, his immense business relations led him to be regarded as one of our own citizens. In all the requisites of an energetic, successful merchant, he had no superior among us; and however many may have differed from him in other respects, his character for unquestionable probity and honor as a merchant was never questioned. His age was about forty five.
This deplorable event will undoubtedly cause the Hon. William Sprague, brother of the deceased, to immediately resign his seat in the United State Senate.
Since the above was written, we learn that Nicholas S. Gordon and his brother, John Gordon, Irish men, were arrested yesterday afternoon on suspicion of having been concerned in the murder. They were brought before Henry L. Bowen, Esq. Justice of the Peace, and committed for examination at a future day. The grounds of suspicion are as follows: Nicholas S. Gordon has frequently petitioned the town council of Cranston for a license for the sale of ardent spirits, but through the opposition of Mr. Sprague, his petitions have been refused.

At the last time his application was rejected, he threatened Mr. Sprague, and said he would settle it with him elsewhere." He has been seen repeatedly, within the last week, a gun in his hand, near where Mr. S. was found. His premises have been searched, and no gun can be found on them, although it is well known that he had one. A bayonet, cartridge-box, and sword were found.

BOSTON TEA PARTY.
Saturday last, December 16, was just seventy years since a body of patriotic citizens of Boston, disguised as Indians, threw overboard 342 chests of tea into the harbor of Boston.
When Lieutenant O'Brien was blown up in the Edger, and carried to the Admiral, "black and wet, he said with pleasure, I hope, sir, you will excuse my dirty appearance, for I left the ship in so great a hurry that I had not time to change myself."
ANOTHER SIGN.

Control your temper. The bolts of wrath frequently recoil on them who launch them. The passionate man may be feared, but he is loved; for men like the calm and the sunshine better than the cloud and the storm.

BOSTON TEA PARTY.
Saturday last, December 16, was just seventy years since a body of patriotic citizens of Boston, disguised as Indians, threw overboard 342 chests of tea into the harbor of Boston.
When Lieutenant O'Brien was blown up in the Edger, and carried to the Admiral, "black and wet, he said with pleasure, I hope, sir, you will excuse my dirty appearance, for I left the ship in so great a hurry that I had not time to change myself."
ANOTHER SIGN.
"Mother, the end of the world is coming."
"What make you think so, child?"
"Coz, them trowers what you said 'ud never wear out, has got a tearin' big hole in 'em! Am't that a sign of destruction?"
