Mr. John Bayberry strode into the beuse, and stamped along the hall, and through all the rooms below stairs, dashing open every door he came to and leaving it so, until he reached the kitchen rooms; for even black Aunt Peg flad forsuken it, and was out in the back yard hanging out the Monday

'llas everybody evaporated? demand ed Mr. Bayberry, grimly addressing Receiving no reply, he banged open yet another door, which swung back against a precarious and shaky shelf, thus upsetting the equilibrium of a brass candlestick, a flat-iron and three tin cans, and they all went bomping down on the floor together.

Bees was in the pantry, washing off the shelves with bot soapsuds; for Bess was a busy little body, and inisted on performing a cortain part of the household duties every day.

She was standing on a cheese box during the present performance-for Bess was so short she could not reach the second shelf-and she had a big table-cloth pinned over her dress, and her silky hair twitted tight upon the top of her head and pinned with three great hair pins, that bristled up and looked like three pall of building horns,

She heard the rapid footsteps outside, and smiled.

'That's Uncle John,' said she, 'and he wants somebody likely. But I can't go just yet. Men always want something or somebody.'

And she went on calmly removing & row of glasses, every one dark and rich with its luscious contents. Then she was startled by the thumping.

'Dear me! said Bess, dropping the wing with which she had been brushing if some one don't go, he won't scruple to tumble the house over; and where Aust Jule is, the man in the moon

She jumped off the cheese-box, care fully holding up the table-cloth to avoid stepping on it, and ovened the pantry door. Aunt Jule had also appeared, in a loose, green wrapper, from which piece of torn ruffling, two yards in length, was dragging on the floor, with an old magazine, minus its covers, in her band.

'Dear me. John-'began Aunt Jule, looking injured. 'And dear me!' interrupted Mr. Bayberry, if this house had legs, it might run away twenty times over and no one to prevent. Come out of there. Bess and both of you of you listen! I've got some abominable news. Jule, your late lamented cousin, that tall, electioneering widow, wants to come down here and board all summer, with ber daughter, 'dear Leonie,' who modestly wishes to give her 'numerous lovers' the slip, and rusticate at 'dear Meadowlands.' There's no end of 'dears' in l er letter, and a string of compliments that are all in her eye, I'll wager my

Mr. Bayberry's sister sat down, looking helpless and mournful; but blackeved Bess, whose ideas and opinions one could never foresee, favored the cause of her kinswoman, though they had made a point of ignoring her completely.

'Do let them come, Uncle Joha!" said she. 'I always did want to see my stylish cousins awfully!'

'Jh,' answered Mr. Bayberry, shrugging his broad shoulders, 'if you want to cook, and iron, and slave for two fine city relations that don't take the trouble to remember your existence, go ahead! Write to 'em to come, by all me ins ; but don't expect me to 'end to 'em and hold their yarn and turn their music while they squeal sentimental songs into my ears-

A week later found the large pa lac at Meadewlands graced by the prese and of two stylish-arrayed ladies, just if in the city, and indulging in a series of rapturous exclamations over the chain of rural scenes, to the astonishment of Aunt Jule, who saw nothing to fish about in fields and vines, and was las. etly wondering if the grease spot is side-t readth of ber over-skirt was lery noticeable.

'And here's Bess, your little cor lery cousin, said Mr. Bayeerry, drawing Fer forward from the shadow of the win low cuttaics, from which she had beet dmiring Miss Leonie.

'Dear me l' drauled the elegant hirs. Herton, as she gazed duwn an initiressurable distance at the girt, for Mrs Horton was very tall, and of a Puffly carriage withal, this is Bess. We didn't dream of finding you here.

Why should we? queried Miss too sie; languidly settling back again t the Fch-eolofed sofa cushions. She lip't any relation of yours, is she Mr. Bayberry ?

'Not at all' returned Mr. Baybe ry, trifle stiffly: 'but she is quite as we' come to Meadowlands as if she fere especially as her blood relations choose to ignore her existence."

Mrs. Horton flushed a little : Mi . Le onie bit her lip; and Bess shoot her curly head at Uncle on the sly.

That same evening, Bess was falling on the back-door step, pecking velvety crimson, rare-ripe peaches for attaget when Ashley Gray came along the clover-edged path leading from the stile down in the orchard, which as a very intimate friend of the family, Strone home adjoined Meadowlands, for ad convenient now and then to make use

Another reason why the Democratic party demands the abolition of the entire Internal Revenue system is that all officers, with all their vast powers over life, liberty and property, with licease to roam in armed at their own sweet will. and in utter defiance of the entire State of North Carolina and of every man in it net one is elected by the people of North Carolina. And what is more not a single one could be so elected.

Cooper, and Mott, and the rest of them with their judicial allies and counterparts, Bond, and Seymour, and Dick, were thrown into a campaign before the people of North Carolina, even with their 105,000 negro voters, how little chance they would have to rule over North Carolinians! Could a single one of them be elected to be constable?

In a State in which there is any pretence whatever of home rule, in which there is any claim whatever that the tion. Best is welcome to him con. 1 people govern ought there to be se many officers clothed with such vast power, power over life, power over lib. erty and power over property, who are not elected by the people? What are the paltry powers of the Magistrates and County Commissioners compared to those of the Revenue officers?

And well the Radicals may be in favor of the continuance of the system, for if there was no Internal Revenue system in the state to-day there mould he no Radical masty in the State of

Everybody knows that it is upon the pay and patronage os the Internal Revenue system that the Radical party in North Carolina lives and fattens: that is to say, the bulk of the 10,000 white voters it has. Take out of the Radical rank the Collectors and Deputies the spice, detectives, the special agents. the Store-keepers, the gaugers and the neructors in gauging, the raiders and their commands, by whatever name called, and how many white men would be left. Wyb scarcely a corporal's

No wender, then, that Collector I. J. Xeens, Collector Spents, ex Collector Mott and all the rest of the well feathered tribe of officials, most earnestly desire the continuence of the Internals Revenue system. Nor, do we for a moment doubt that they would be most cheerful givers of the tax on whisky, or on anything else to educational purpes, or to any other purposes, that is to say, after they had gotten their pickthe course of collecting.

Now if Dr. Mott had known the people of Franklin, we think that even his "impudence" would hardly have been equal to the task of sending out instructions, from Raleigh directing even the Republicans and Liberals as to the candidates to be voted for by them. It is to the credit of the Republicans of the good county of Franklin, that they treated his "impudence" as it deserved and refused to be dictated to by him.

Now Dr. Mote was not only, at one time, a prohibitionist himself, but we venture to say that no other man in the State of North of North Carolina bas ever earlied prohibition to the extent that Dr. Mott has According to the evidence of Tyre Glenn, one of his own Republican friends, this same Dr. Mett. while col lector of the sixth district, issued an "order," prohibiting any subordinate officer under him from drinking at all. Glenn says that he (Mott) would dis charge any officer that he knew had ta. ken a drink of liquor." (See the evidence of the Senate investigation of the sixth district, page 127.) There was no law for this nod Dr. Mott had no right to issue such an order. No one knows better than he does, that the charge that the Democratic party is the prohibition party is false. No one knows better than he does, that in North Carolina it is no party question No one knows better than he does that in many of the States of the North and Northwest, the Republican party is the prohibition party.

The above is from the Pracklin Times and it is a fair index to the campaign now being conducted in North Carolias by the Radical party. The idea of sending messengers to the couventions of the people to instruct them as to whom they should select for their officers! And this too by the party that praces of personal liberty and the free will of the people. Was there ever such brazen impudence and un blushing hypogrisy? Never until the incoming of the Radical party run by these guilded flies of corruption belonging to the

But Dr. Mott will find that there are other constitutencies in North Carolina like those of Franklin who are not vet dead to all the attributes of manhood and who know their rights and will dare maintain them. We tell him he is under-estimating the intelligence and character of men blinded by party zeal even as the negroes are if he imagines he can win this campaign by such petty tyranny and bossism.

What will sensible colored men think and say of all this talk by Radical speakers about Democrats depriving them of their rights to vote for county officers, when the Radical boss sits at head-quarters and despatches messages to the conventions of the people saving to them in substance. "You haven's got sense enough to select the proper men-vote for the men whose names I send upon this paper." Does Dr. Mate send messages to conventions of the white men in the West with such orders? We rather suspect in the face of his pretensions this wily manusuverer has two codes—one for the white men and another for the negroes-Oxford Torchlight.

Radical Desperation.

The Radical army of plunderers has been driven back step by step, until it now stands in the last ditch, expecting. with desperation, the fierce on-slaught about to be made upon it. But it by no means intends to give it up without have enjoyed too long the spoils of goverament to give them up willingly bulating over the State pretending to and is now said to be very rich.
