CROONER'S MARRIAGE BACKFIRES

Claiming he never remembered his wedding which followed a night of drinking last June, Frank Tennille, orchestra crooner from Montgomery, Ala., petitioned the New York supreme court to annul his marriage to Alice Foy, hatched girl in a night club. They are shown together at a happier moment. A published report that Tennille wanted to marry Dixie Dunbar, the movie dancer from Atlanta, Ga., was denied by his attorney. (Associated Press Photo)

May Feed Quail, Check Erosion On Carolina Farms

Every farmer knows a bobwhite quail when he sees one, but few are thoroughly familiar with its food and breeding habits, its enemies and the diseases that thin out its numbers.

George B. Becker, biologist of the Soil Conservation Service, says that 86 percent of the food of the quail consists of waste grains and plant food.

In providing quail and other desirable forms of wildlife with food and cover by the planting of shrubs, legumes and grasses in gullied areas, galled spots and odd corners, the farmer in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service and State College Extension Service not only helps to replenish the supply of wildlife but controls erosion on his farm.

Cowpeas, soybeans, waste grains left after harvest, sorghums, millet, wild plum, mulberry, dewberry, ragweed, lespedeza, beggarweed, blueberries, huckleberries, dogwood, wild cherry and weeds are among the food producing plants attractive to the bobwhite quail.

Fourteen percent of the food of the bobwhite quail consists of animal life, including grasshoppers, weevils, locusts, chinchbugs, caterpillars, squash bugs, cucumber beetles and wireworms, said Becker.

The bobwhite mates usually in May and lays from 6 to 20 eggs, which are hatched in 23 to 24 days. Soon after hatching the young are able to take care of themselves in their new environment, and if everything goes well with the first brood the female usually does not lay another set of eggs.

Among the agencies tending to decrease the bobwhite, Becker pointed out, are its predatory enemies, disease, and weather conditions.

Some of the prominent enemies of the quail are stray cats and dogs, Cooper's hawk, sharp-shinned hawk, skunk, opossum, cotton rats, snakes, ticks, redbugs and red ants.

Quail are very susceptible to poultry diseases and cannot be propagated successfully near chickens. Quail disease coccidiosis, and blackhead are among the diseases of the bobwhite.

Build Final Link In Highway No. 18

MORGANTON, Oct. 26. — Contracts totalling $60,000 have been let by the State highway and public works commission for the construction of the final link of Highway No. 18 to Morganton's town limits, overcoming the difficulty that arose over right-of-way in the corporate area, it was learned yesterday.

Instead of coming into the town as originally planned, the new route will be brought into intersection with the present highway at the corporate limits.

Blythe Brothers, Charlotte contractors, received the contract for grading and surfacing on a low bid of $30,500. Chief item of cost, however, will be construction of a bridge over the Catawba river, and contract for this structure was awarded Cobb and Homewood, Chapel Hill firm on a bid of $60,500.

John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both died July 4, 1826, the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

Dr. David Lyle Dies At Rock Hill Home

Dr. David Lyle, prominent physician of Rock Hill, S. C., and brother-in-law of Joe E. Nash of this place, died in a Rock Hill hospital last night after a brief illness following a heart attack yesterday. He was 57 years of age.

Mr. Nash is spending today in Rock Hill and he and Mrs. Nash will attend the funeral to be conducted at Edgemoor, former home of the deceased, tomorrow morning.

Dr. Lyle was a former member of the South Carolina legislature and in the recent State primary was elected by an overwhelming vote to serve his county in the Senate. He had also served as mayor of Rock Hill for 28 years and was active in the civic affairs of the city. Survivors include his widow, two sons, David and Nash, two daughters, Jean and Henrietta, all of Rock Hill.
