Sights And Sounds

By ROBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood's latest film cycle is insanity. Only the actor who is willing to embrace lunacy has a ghost of a show in it. The celluloid - padded cells are waiting.

"My Man Godfrey," among recent films, stepped up the pace of an insidious race (for the Crown of Nuts) begun some two years ago, perhaps, by "The Thin Man" and "It Happened One Night." The senseless, practically reasonless hilarity of this Carole Lombard-William Powell picture served to remind that the paying customers welcome — nay, love! — ridiculous goings-on.

A triumph of the unexpected came when Myrna Loy made her first entrance, flat on her face, in "The Thin Man." Myrna loved it, and audiences roared, and now the actress who can take a fall or be held by the present administration and because of the large part he contributed towards carrying both Ohio and Pennsylvania for President Roosevelt, according to comment going the rounds here today. It was regarded as extremely significant in political circles here when National Chairman James M. Farley selected Governor Ehringhaus as one of the first string campaign orators to go into Ohio and Pennsylvania to run interference for President Roosevelt and the New Deal. Now that both of these states have gone decisively Democratic, it is conceded that the series of political speeches which Governor Ehringhaus made in them had a good deal to do with putting them into the Democratic column.

Several telegrams were received yesterday by Governor Ehringhaus from cities in which he spoke in Pennsylvania. One from Columbia, Pa., said:

"Columbia majority 1,200, thanks to you. What a glamorous victory."

Another telegram from Phoenixville, Pa., said:

"Phoenixville has gone Democratic for the first time since the Civil War by a majority of 700. You played a great part in this victory. We appreciate it from the bottom of our hearts."

Launching an anti-tuberculosis campaign in Nanking, China, the local health authorities have decided to take x-ray picture of 120,000 pairs of lungs, belonging to the capital's school children.

Mechanical harvesters have largely replaced hand cutting of kelp in California.

one dares to predict. The why of it? "Just another cycle," say some. But others see in it Hollywood's successful effort to intrigue public fancy. The public, even hereabouts, had taken to "ribbing" pictures made to cut and dried formula. Fans have been so cruel, at some of the colony's least impressive junk as to "talk back" to the actors, to take the trite words out of their mouths, and otherwise to demonstrate that they know all the answers.

And lunacy is safe. Its effectiveness lies in its startling unexpectedness. What fan can predict what will happen next in a Hollywood insane asylum?

Sunday School Lesson

The Heroism of Paul

International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 15. Devotional Reading: II Corinthians 4:7-15.

HEROISM in the teaching of the Christian faith is nowhere better exemplified than in the life and actions of Paul the Apostle.

His faith was intense and clear. With great strength of conviction, he had come to believe that the way of life he had attacked as heresy was the true way. The spectacle of Stephen calling upon God to receive his spirit, forgiving those who stoned him to death, had evidently shaken Paul to his moral foundations.

He had come to see that here was something greater than he himself had found, with all his earnestness and zeal. And the more he knew of the Christian way, the more completely was he drawn toward it, until his relationship to the crucified Galilean and his intention to preach the Gospel concerning Christ became the one sublime passion of his life.

From that determination to preach the Gospel, and to build the kingdom of God, nothing could turn him aside. Jesus had said to his disciples: "When they persecute you in one city, flee to another," and Paul fulfilled that counsel with the greatest literalness. His very course was shaped by persecutions. Every form of opposition he took merely as an indication of guidance to preach and work elsewhere. There was never any thought of abandoning his mission.

Now, as he was returning from his third missionary journey to Jerusalem, he had stopped at Caesarea on the coast and was warned by the prophet Agabus that troubled days were ahead of him and Jerusalem. In this there was nothing surprising to Paul.

In his farewell address to the elders at Ephesus, he had stated that he was moving into the unknown, with nothing certain but that bonds and afflictions were awaiting him.

On that occasion, he had said, "None of these things moves me. Neither count I my life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry, which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God." Our lesson tells how these predictions and premonitions proved true.

While Paul was in the temple performing his vow, certain Jews from Asia stirred up the people against him, accusing him of perverting the truth of the Scriptures, and of bringing into the temple Gentiles who "defiled the holy place."

The uproar was so great that Paul's life would have been in danger if a Roman captain with his soldiers had not interfered. The captain saved him from the mob, but bound him with chains. Thus began a long course of imprisonment that ultimately brought Paul to Rome.

On Federal Job

RALEIGH, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Governor J. C. B. Ehringhaus is believed to be in line for a high Government post in Washington, possibly a cabinet job, as a result of the high regard in which he is known to be held by the present administration and because of the large part he contributed towards carrying both Ohio and Pennsylvania for President Roosevelt, according to comment going the rounds here today.

Five years ago the movie pretty who would let her carefully curled coiffure be disarranged by anything so vulgar as slapstick didn't live—at least our here she didn't. In "Love On The Run" Joan Crawford, one of the glamor girls, is caressed full on the face by a plate of jelly, neatly hurled by one of her admirers. She also appears in a most unglamorous "stratopere" with Clark Gable.

"Liberated Lady," one of the year's nuttiest comedies, has William Powell in a trout-fishing sequence taking one fall after another in the trout stream for hilarity's sake. As for glamor, Jean Harlow has a scene in a permanent-waving apparatus, her face mud - packed. The whole picture is moonstruck.

"The Gay Desperado" is another. Nino Martini sings, but more than that he slapsstick. His big love scene with Ida Lupino is a knock-down and drag out fight. The whole production strikes the giddy note, a cross between satire, burlesque, romance, and high comedy.

Fans Helped Bring It

All Hollywood has become Marxian—not after the social philosopher but like the Marx brothers. The new Lily Pons picture has Gene Raymond, Jack Oakie, Mischa Auer, and Frank Jenks in all manner of tomfoolery, with Lily herself a lively participant.

In short, any farce comedy nowadays seems to be built to "top" in unexpected absurdity its immediate predecessors. How it will end no

Apple Trees Meant Fortune To One Clerk

Apple Trees Meant Fortune To One Clerk

CORNELIA, Ga.—(AP)—A country storekeeper swapped a soda fountain for 700 apple trees 42 years ago and laid out the first orchard in north Georgia.

Today W. A. Straight, who got the fountain in the first place in consideration for a "lingering" account, is king of a million-dollar-a-year apple industry, with elaborate packing plants, millions of trees and work for thousands.

A mammoth red apple of iron and concrete in the heart of Cornelia bears testimony to the fruit Straight's people consider their economic salvation.

Straight likes to think back to that early start when he sees trucks rumbling over the highways with loads from his famous Habersham county orchard consigned to merchants in six states.

He says the story of the apple industry, the community's biggest, is one of a section's fight against red stick land—land that won't easily produce cotton or tobacco such as that on the rich soil elsewhere in the state.

But the frolicsome swing of the hill-billy music in Habersham's hills, as another apple crop is gathered, indicates the right against land has been won.

"It's been a hard fight," Straight reflects. "The trees require constant care—spraying for disease and insects, broadcasting fertilizer and guarding them against the elements." But north Georgians have learned you have to look after apple trees to realize profit from them.

"A good many people have come here from the cities, bought land and trees, and laid out orchards. Some thought all you had to do was plant trees in the ground, light your pipe, and wait for the trees to make you money. They usually lost what they had."

A hit-skip autoist caused the death of Freddie, the last of the fire horses at Shreveport, La.
