

TALK TO PARENTS

Forcing The Issue

"Tommy, go and change your clothes!"

"I won't!"

"You will do as you are told this minute!"

"No, I won't."

"Very well, then, I shall have to spank you."

If Tommy still refuses to obey the mother's command, she does not want to spank Tommy, and yet she must have obedience. What is she to do? Perhaps Tommy is too big to spank. A whirling mass of arms and legs is not hard to control when their owner is three or four, but at eight or ten a spanking is often an undignified or even an impossible performance.

Mothers are apt to grow panicky in the face of a definite refusal to obey. In their panic they may make threats for which they afterwards are heartily sorry. When a child flatly refuses to do as he is told, it is time to take a long breath and do a little thinking.

The answer to one's thought depends on the child and the circumstances. There is no formula which fits every case. It might be a good idea to find out why the child feels so strong an objection to changing his shoes. It is just possible that he has a reason for his behavior, or it may be that when finds he has no reason, he will himself see the absurdity of his refusal to obey. Perhaps he has been getting too many orders, perhaps he is going through a phase of contrariness. Certainly he should be given an opportunity to state his case.

In any event hasty threats and loss of temper are useless and may lead to an embarrassing situation where the child is in control. It is well to act slowly and with forethought and not to force the issue to such a point that one's own position is untenable. Threats seldom come true and the child knows it.

Queen Of The Coop

WASHINGTON, Pa.—(AP)—Old age overtook a hen that ruled Mrs. L. M. Swihart's coop for 16 years. She said the reason it escaped early death was that it was a special hen—it had 17 toes instead of the usual eight.

Tenancy And Crop Insurance Likely Legislative Topics

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—(AP)—Two major farm problems—tenancy and crop insurance—emerged as likely legislative topics today from a series of conferences between farm leaders, Secretary Wallace and President Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt told reporters yesterday that demands of farm leaders for federal production control did not mean they had discarded the idea of crop insurance.

He said the farm leaders are not opposed to crop insurance as such, but think this plan alone is insufficient in seeking to prevent great surpluses and frequent price fluctuations.

In general, he said, the farm leaders sought a means of avoiding the kind of surpluses that wrecked prices in the past.

Men from the great plains area—dissenting from the earlier report of 100 farm leaders which stressed "revival of the old AAA" and mentioned crop insurance only incidentally—asked the secretary of agriculture to work out a practical plan of crop insurance to start on the wheat crop of 1937.

They entered a "vigorous protest" against the idea that crop insurance was unimportant.

Park To Park Highway Work Moves Rapidly In Two Counties

RALEIGH, Nov. 13.—Work on the park-to-park highway in McDowell and Yancey counties is progressing rapidly and the contractors are pushing the work as rapidly as possible before cold weather sets in, fearing the weather may slow them down later. Two sectors of the parkway are now under construction in this immediate area, while the bids on the third sector have been called for. Actual construction on this last sector is not expected to get under way before early spring, however, even though the contract may be let within the next 30 to 60 days.

Very decided progress has been made on the Buck Creek Gap to Big Laurel Gap sector of 4 1/2 miles within the last 30 days. Work on this sector has been progressing from both the Big Laurel Gap and Buck Creek Gap ends, and much of the grading has already been completed, despite the fact that much of the right-of-way goes through solid rock. The contractors are now just completing a tremendous cut through solid rock about three quarters of a mile from the Big Laurel Gap end of the sector and have already completed two big fills of from 100 to 150 deep. One of these fills is being shored up with a tremendous "dry" rock wall to keep the fill from washing.

The sound of pneumatic drills boring into rock and of motor shovels snorting may be heard for miles as the contractors push the work on the parkway to the their utmost. The contractors on both the Buck Creek Gap-Big Laurel sector and the one on west from Big Laurel over Green Knob to Toe River Gap, are both working seven days a week and using from two to three shifts. Two tunnels have to be bored on the first sector and a third tunnel will be put through on the second sector, while a concrete bridge will be used to span a chasm regarded as too deep to try to fill about a mile east of Big Laurel Gap. A fleet of heavy trucks is being used by both contractors in hauling rock and dirt for the large fills from the deep cuts.

Shanghai P.-T. A. Has Its Meeting

(Special To The Star.) SHARON, Nov. 13.—Those on the sick list are Mrs. D. E. Grigg and Mr. B. B. Blanton. They both seem to be improved at this time.

Mrs. W. M. Whitaker returned to her home Monday afternoon after spending two months in Jeffersonville, Georgia.

Misses Helen Morehead and Hattie Beck of Morganton spent the week end with the former's parents.

Misses Beulah Wellmon and Beatrice Blanton, representatives from the Sharon young people's division will leave Saturday for a "Cleveland County Retreat" of the young people to be held near Hendersonville. They will go with other representatives of the county.

The S. S. B. Home Demonstration club met in regular session Tuesday afternoon. The new president, Mrs. Wake Hamrick presided over the meeting. A good number was present. Miss McGregor gave a very interesting demonstration on making collars.

The Shanghai P.-T. A. met Tuesday evening at 7:30. O. Z. Morgan presided.

New Movies Have Remarkable Speed

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—(AP)—New industrial motion pictures so fast that speeds of six miles per minute can be slowed to three miles an hour were shown today before the annual meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

The ultra-fast movies, taken at the rate of from 2,000 to 3,000 pictures per second, were demonstrated by Dr. Gustavus J. Esselen of Boston, Mass., as a tool for studying industrial processes and checking the cause of failures of products.

Using an intense light which is switched on and off 3,000 times per second instead of the mechanical shutter used in most cameras, the new photography already has brought about a new design in electric fans and promises to replace the inefficient kitchen egg-beater with a wheel resembling a motorboat propeller.

Dr. Esselen also showed pictures of the breaking of a rubber band stretched between a man's fingers.

When it broke, the ends snapped back to the fingers and bounced out again not once, but four times.

Former Cattle Rustlers Now Take Turkeys

By ROBERT GEIGER

DENVER, Colo.—(AP)—Western ranchers who fought old-time cattle rustlers with branding iron and six-gun today combat the modern "turkey rustler" with tattoo mark and burglar alarm.

Nearly every turkey in Colorado has been branded in an effort to protect a record crop of gobblers from a record crop of thieves.

Wait Till Fattened

"Turkey thieves wait until the growers fatten the birds for market before they start stealing them," says Ben H. Cook, field organizer for the state director of markets.

"Then they have not cost what ever except to pick them up and carry them to market."

Large growers have installed burglar alarms in their pens but the smaller raisers permit their turkeys to graze and roost in the "wide open spaces," where they are easy prey to night-riding rustlers who steal by the truckload.

The "brands," first resorted to several years ago, have been effective in stopping some of the rustling, Cook said. Each grower is assigned a number which is tattooed to the turkey's wing under the feathers. Produce houses check these numbers against records kept in the market office when they purchase birds.

Cook said this year's crop would probably equal the 1934 record when Colorado shipped 220 carloads—about 400,000 dressed birds—to market.

Has English Peas This Late In Fall

English peas, usually an early spring vegetable, were today served on the table of Albert Yelton of West Shelby. Mr. Yelton planted the peas in early fall after most vegetables were already gone.

"I was just experimenting," Mr. Yelton said. He also has plenty of onions, lettuce, cabbage, spinach and other vegetables. Last year he grew one of the largest stalks of pepper seen here.
