Legislation Not Enough, Perkins Tells Unionists

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 18.—(AP)—National living wage, continuity of income, stability of employment, reasonable profits and "guidance for the conservation and maximum utilization of natural resources" were named today by Secretary of Labor Perkins as comprising a formula for progress.

Speaking before the American Federation of Labor, Miss Perkins said, however, that labor's interests cannot be attained by legislation alone.

"A strong union movement is essential to the development of labor standards," the secretary declared. "Union organization gives strength and practical wisdom to the formation and enforcement of legislative programs."

She said that since the federation's last convention "There has been considerable improvement in economic conditions and the indications now are clear that we will continue on the road to complete recovery."
