Following F. R. to South America

Boarding the 10,000-ton cruiser Indianapolis, shown at top, President Roosevelt embarked from Charleston, S. C., for a 14,000-mile "good will" journey to South America, where he was scheduled to open the Inter-American peace conference in Buenos Aires, Dec. 1. Spreading his "Good Neighbor" policy, the president expected his trip to give impetus to an agreement which may have profound effect on world peace moves. Starting from Washington, the map traces the president's route via Trinidad and Rio de Janeiro to Buenos Aires.

Today's SMALL TALK

By MRS. RENN DRUM

ON THE COURTSQUARE AT DUSK A YOUNG WOMAN, presumably a stranger in the city, stands before the Confederate monument and stares across the street at the lighted windows of a second story office. She interrupts the looking to ask of a passerby, "Is That Mr. Clyde Hoey's office?"

Perhaps she was a victim of a celebrity complex and got some satisfaction out of catching a glimpse of Mr. Hoey at work or seeing the lighted interior of his office. I suppose by this time Mr. Hoey is accustomed to being watched, quoted and commented on.

I CAN THINK OF NOTHING BETTER for a column today than some amusing and interesting excerpts from a copy of The Cleveland Star dated Wednesday, October 4, 1899. The paper was a weekly, Shelby's first citizen, Mr. Hoey, was then editor and proprietor, and its slogan, appearing beneath the masthead was "A paper of the people, for the people, and to be paid for by the people."

This particular issue carried three columns of locals, appearing under the various headings of "personals" and "scraps," though I can't distinguish the difference between the two. The first of the "scraps" reads: "Born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Kendall, on Wednesday night a son."

Other scraps and personals, picked at random, are: "Mr. O. M. Suttle, the affable head clerk at Cleveland Springs during the past season, left for Jacksonville, Fla., to accept a like position at the Hotel Genera. He will remain there during the winter season."

"Mr. A. C. Miller returned last week from Philadelphia where he attended a meeting of the Cotton Spinners' association. He had a most delightful time. During his stay in the city he visited John Wansmaker's store and his large Sunday bull and are in use on the Lawndale railroad and the first box car will be completed this week."

And this item is interesting: "Messrs. Samuel E. Gidney and Clyde R. Hoey, who attended the University Law School the past summer, stood a successful examination before the supreme court last week and were admitted to the practice of law. They received their licenses last Saturday. Both will locate in Shelby for the practice of their profession, and the last named will continue as editor of The Star."

And this is quoted from "Cleveland Mills Chats," signed by "Oneofus": "Sometimes you may send a boy to one or two sessions of school and he has gotten a disease of the head, and the best of physicians tell us that it is incurable. Oh, we are sorry for such a boy, but it is certainly the case occasionally. (Spelling according to copy)."

"We believe that Mr. Frank Simmons, the seller of purple and fine linen, has a kind of hankering around Lawndale these days. It may be magnets that attracts him there, but we think the magnet takes the form of a pretty Miss Typewritist."

So much for Shelby thirty-seven years ago.

Medical Science Most Important

By JULIUS A. SUTTLE

Of all the sciences none approaches in importance to mankind, medical science. The world got along for thousands of years with no knowledge of electricity, or of steam power, but from the earliest ages, men of great intellectual attainments practiced the art of medicine. In the days of the Roman emperors, Aesculapius, called the God of Medicine, was created in the minds of the people and his name has since stood as the symbol of medicine.

Medical science has developed to a point where present day cures would have been considered miracles a few centuries ago. The maintenance of health has always been and always will be considered above all else.

At the first sign of failing health, consult a physician. His knowledge of the science will be used in your behalf.

The science of pharmacy will aid you by properly compounding the doctor's prescription.

Federal Help Is Expected For Tenants Of The South

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Federal help for southern sharecroppers and other impoverished farm tenants is expected of the coming session of Congress by Representative Marvin Jones (D), of Texas, chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture, who was here with the Roosevelt Agricultural Committee during the campaign.

"I have no doubt that, at the next session, we shall be able to secure legislation to make a start in encouraging the home ownership of small farms," said Mr. Jones. "This will be the first attempt of the Government to attack the problem directly."

"The question is a neglected one. There is great need of a solution. It is inconceivable that the nation can go ahead and permit farm tenancy to increase indefinitely."

Has Strongest Support Legislation to ameliorate rural tenancy has now a support it never enjoyed before in the avowed sponsorship of a President, Mr. Roosevelt having given his endorsement two months ago.

"The heart of the legislation we have in view," continued Mr. Jones, "is the selling of farm land to tenants on long-time, easy payments with low interest."

At the last session a measure to this intent was brought in by Senator John H. Bankhead (D) of Alabama and Mr. Jones. The bills called for the issuance of bonds approximating $1,000,000,000 over a period of 10 years, chiefly for the acquisition of land to be resold in little tracts. The plan passed the Senate.

Must Study Steps "In making a start, I think we shall have to go at it a little gradually, on a less ambitious scale than was previously planned," commented the chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture, whose many years of service on agricultural legislation have made him one of the leading farm experts of the country.

"Since Senator Bankhead and I worked out the original bill several years ago, we have given the question much more thought. I feel that we shall be able to develop a sound program on a somewhat similar basis—to effect a more practical plan but with the same purpose. Now, I believe, we shall have something we can get through."

A serviceable feature of the new bill, Mr. Jones indicated, will be the use of a system of local committees and local information such as has become familiar in some other farm legislation.

Urges Local Committees "If we have a local committee in every county in which we operate," Mr. Jones explained, "consisting of one business man, one experienced loan man and one farmer, before whom applications go before being approved, I think we shall have a much better chance of success."

"I have every hope," he concluded, "that we can at least get a program started at the next session so as to build for the future."

the few notable agricultural developments of the campaign. He has been taking a larger and larger interest in rural tenancy.

His sympathy led some of the friends of such legislation to hope that the Bankhead - Jones bill might get through at the last session.

The President made public his advocacy of tenancy legislation on Sept. 21, when writing Senator Bankhead and Senator Jones asking them to "co-operate in preparing plans for meeting the tenancy problem that might be undertaken by the Federal Government."

He then invited the two leaders to confer with him in December, when, as he said, "we can complete our recommendations to Congress for legislation designed to bring about improvements in the tenancy situation."

"THANKS A MILLION" FOR MORE THAN A MILLION

America has bought 1,130,000 Chevrolets during the past twelve months, thereby giving Chevrolet the greatest year in its history and the greatest measure of buyer preference it has ever enjoyed.

The builders of Chevrolet are thankful for many things, but most of all for the warm friendship of the American people.

And so again at this Thanksgiving season we say, "Thank you, America," for you have given Chevrolet a measure of good-will without parallel in the annals of modern industry.

Consider, for a moment, all that you have done to inspire Chevrolet's appreciation during the past twelve months:

You have purchased 1,130,000 Chevrolets; you have made Chevrolet your favorite car for the seventh time in the past ten years; you have given Chevrolet strong preference in every section of the country; you have conferred this same high honor upon Chevrolet trucks by purchasing more than 205,000 commercial units; you have made 1936 the most successful year in all Chevrolet history.

And now, to climax these expressions of friendship, you are displaying even more marked preference for the new Chevrolet for 1937.

It is difficult to express adequate appreciation for gifts so great and so generous as these.

All we can say is, "Thanks a million" for more than a million cars in 1936; and all we can do is offer you the still finer Chevrolet of 1937 in return for the finest friendship ever bestowed upon any motor car manufacturer.
