

COUNTY NEED IS LESS BUT THERE ARE CASES LEFT

Mrs. Ledford Says the Need Is Urgent, Numbers Off

We do not believe suffering will be so acute or relief so necessary this year as in depression years, but we hope all the churches and clubs and relief agencies will give no less than in former years.

Mrs. Ledford said the calls for relief at her office have been approximately half as numerous this year as in some of the worst winters, but that there will be many families who have only bare necessities.

"Gifts to these will be like bundles from heaven, and even with all the giving or our relief program, there will still be some who are not touched."

Some Keep Pride Many residents out in the county, even though they are in actual need, will not ask for help.

Mrs. Ledford said many of the older persons in the county are still under the impression that if they can just live until the first of the year that social security and old age pensions will begin coming to them.

Today's SMALL TALK By MRS. RENN DRUM

I'VE MISLAID MY SENSE OF VALUES TODAY TO THE extent of masquerading as a dramatic critic and am off with the determination of telling—well not ALL I know, so don't try to shush me, Isabel—but a part of what I know about the Community Players' version of "Little Women," to be presented here Friday evening.

Isabel Hoesy, who can direct a play as well as act, which she has already proved by carrying leading roles in several of the organization's previous productions, is promoting the production as both director and taxi-driver—she drives all over town each rehearsal evening picking up and delivering members of the cast as well as snooters, like me, who insist on nosing in on rehearsal four nights before the big evening—and will probably turn out to be property man and director of stage settings, etc., before it's all over.

Isabel and members of the cast admit that "Little Women" is an ambitious undertaking for a group of amateurs but the play is shaping up well and, even done by a home town cast, possesses the quality of sweetness and appealing warmth and charm which the story has held for readers, theatre goers ever since the book came fresh from the pen of Louisa M. Alcott.

Siftily folk who enjoy plays and who have been supporters and followers of the Community Players, will enjoy seeing Lindsay Dail again a member of a cast. Lindsay, playing the part of John Brooke, the young tutor, opposite Mrs. S. C. Hewitt's Meg, is quite handsome and romantic looking in the tailed-coat, tight-fitting, faun colored trousers, and broad-brimmed hat of the 60's.

Mrs. Hewitt, in rehearsal, promises to be a very warm and lovely as well as lovable, Meg. But perhaps I liked her interpretation because Meg was always my favorite among the four anyway, being a happy cross between Jo's bumptiousness, Amy's affectations, and Beth's unco' goodness. In a pink-sprigged, hoop-skirted frock, with its blue shawl collar, ruffled in pink, and a floppy pink hat, she's certainly pretty enough to inspire John Brooke's ardor.

Carol Lever, always a favorite with Shelby audiences, appears in voluminous black skirts and shawl, a cane and plumed bonnet, also reminiscent of the 60's, and a realistic rheumatic hobble, in the role of the querulous Aunt March, who, you will remember, was the hair in Jo's butter. Carol scolds her way through the play but you'll like her, just the same.

Jim Shepard, as Professor Bhaer, will also be a box office attraction. After seeing Jim do the part in rehearsal I'm prepared to like the professor better than I ever have before. Harking back to my first reading of Little Women, when in my teens, I recall being bitterly disappointed when Jo threw down the glittering, charming Laurie and married the professor, who, at that time, I could see only as a fat, stuffy, bewhiskered and thoroughly dull

RUSSIA POINTS TO HUGE FORCE

Ilyinsky Says Country Is Ready For Anything

MOSCOW, Dec. 2.—(P)—Russia pointed today to millions of well-trained Soviet youth as the power behind its first line of defense.

M. Ilyinsky, secretary of the Moscow Monsonol (Youth communists) committee told the congress of Soviets our youth are always ready to defend our country.

He drew a contrast between communist youth and the youth of Hitler's Germany, who, he said, "find beating up Jews and other anti-semitism easier than jumping with parachutes."

Ilysky detailed the number of young men and women trained by Osoaviachim (voluntary society for preparedness for air and chemical defense) as follows:

1,700,000 Voroshiloff sharpshooters. 60,000 snipers and sniper instructors. 4,600,000 experienced chemical and aerial defenders. 54,000 horsemen.

In 1936, Ilyinsky said, Osoaviachim trained 10,000 parachute jumpers, 9,000 pilots, and 15,000 glider pilots.

"We have the healthiest young generation in the world," the secretary said, "as evidenced by the fact that in the 1914 conscription only four out of every thousand conscripts were found physically unfit for service."

About 43 per cent of the Soviet Union's population - youth born since 1917—Ilyinsky said "know nothing of capitalistic exploitation."
