Let 'Em Eat FISH

With meat hard-to-get again and all of it carrying red point value we must turn to other protein foods to fill in our nutritional needs.

This country offers a wide choice in fish, one of the best meat substitutes. Furthermore, there is a larger supply of fish available this year than we've had in a long time.

There are a few points to remember in connection with buying fish. First, you may find that you are able to buy only fish that has been frozen. Keep it in that condition until you are ready to use it, and be assured that it has food value equal to that of fish which has not been frozen. It is not necessary to defrost frozen filets, steaks and smaller fish. Just use a lower cooking temperature and cook for a slightly longer time than usual. Large fish and big cuts should be thawed and this should be done slowly at room temperature. If you must thaw such fish quickly, put them into cold water — never into warm or hot water.

There are innumerable interesting ways in which to serve fish, in addition to plain boiling, frying or broiling, though each of these produces a tasty dish.

If you boil fish, wrap it first in cheese cloth to prevent its breaking up. Submerge it in boiling, salted water to which a bit of vinegar or lemon juice has been added to preserve its color. Cook until tender (usually ten to 15 minutes). And always serve boiled fish with some good snappy sauce to pep up its rather bland flavor.

Frying is a good method for all lean varieties of filets, little fish such as butterfish, and steaks. First you heat cooking fat over a slow fire in a frying pan. Roll the fish in cornmeal and flour, seasoned with salt and pepper—or just in flour if you prefer. When the fat who are authoritative speakers on the various subjects pertaining to distribution; they take part in varied other activities which promote the good of their work, school and community. Foremost among activities is the annual dinner planned for by the student clubs and given in honor of their bosses who have made it possible to use business an educational laboratory. The Distributors Clubs, promoted by the Federal Office of Distributive Education have been organized on a nationwide basis beginning with the local clubs. These in turn are organized into a state organization from which delegates are sent to a federal conference.

Hamby Is Held After Car Wreck

LENOIR.—William R. Hamby was under $1,000 bond today as the result of an automobile collision, on the Hickory highway two miles south of Lenoir Tuesday afternoon which took the life of Cleo Miller and injured six other persons.

Although Miller is thought to have been driving the car, Hamby, Sherrill Felix Parlier said, is being charged with driving while intoxicated and with reckless driving, inasmuch as he allegedly permitted Miller to drive.

Clyde Hamby was taken to a Charlotte hospital later Tuesday, suffering from a fractured hip and leg, and Robert Piercy, who suffered multiple bruises and other injuries, was moved to that point today.

Earl Walker and Walter Prest-wood are in a Lenoir hospital. The other two injured were William Ross Hamby and R. I. Regan, but their hurts were minors, it is stated.
