Flagpole In Italy Is Tribute To FDR

ROME.—(AP)—A 63-foot flagpole—one foot for each year of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's life—has been erected in an almond grove near Canosa, Italy, by members of a negro aviation engineer battalion. Mayor Giuseppe Sorrenti of Canosa publicly proclaimed that on every anniversary of President Roosevelt's death—April 12—the citizens will bank the flagpole's base with flowers.

The battalion built a four-foot wall around the base of the flagpole, each foot symbolizing a presidential term. At the base they placed a marble plaque with the words: "This flagpole is dedicated in memory of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, 1882-1945."

Three cotton-growing states—Arizona, Florida and New Mexico—have no cotton-spinning mills.
