

G. I. BILL IS DISCUSSED

Gaston And Dixon Attend Conference In Charlotte

John M. Gaston, manager and Joseph N. Dixon, veterans' employment representative of the local War Manpower Commission, United States Employment Service office, spent Tuesday in Charlotte attending an all-day training session of provisions of the G. I. Bill of Rights. The training was conducted by R. G. Godwin, state veterans' employment representative and R. A. Wadsworth, representing the War Manpower Commission.

The meeting was held at the Hotel Charlotte and was attended by managers, branch managers and veterans' representatives from all United States Employment Service offices within the Charlotte administrative area.

Mr. Wadsworth analyzed the G. I. Bill of Rights from every angle, taking special cases and following them through. "All the problems anticipated in the G. I. Bill of Rights are no longer in the future, they are here," stated Mr. Wadsworth. "Every U. S. employment office must know how to meet all phases of the bill concerning employment and placing the veterans in suitable work."

"All U. S. employment service personnel must be intimately acquainted with the rules and regulations affecting veterans. Many who are in service and who are coming back to civilian life have learned new trades or skills and who will not want to return to their former employment. Wherever possible we must aid them to continue the skills learned in the service if they desire it this way," Mr. Wadsworth added. Mr. Wadsworth further urged all managers and branch managers to go back to their offices and hold special staff meetings with their office personnel to continue training on the G. I. Bill of Rights.

UNCONDITIONAL

"There were tears of joy and cries of 'God be thanked' from some Berliners, but others were silent and sullen."

NOT REPENTANT

Let's not forget that—but others were silent and sullen." It means that these "others" aren't repentant. They would provide fertile soil for tillage by another Hitler, if we hadn't compelled unconditional surrender and thereby made sure that we would complete the task of knocking militarism out of Germany.

Prussian militarism is a terrible evil, but it probably isn't so dearly inbred as is the Japanese brand. Nippon's savage glorification of their war persists through the long centuries of her history. The soldier always has been the hero of the island empire.

There's another and even more important aspect of the situation. This Japanese war of aggression is founded on more than the mere desire to increase the Mikado's domains and influence. Underlying it is the devilish design of forming a powerful Asiatic bloc of nations which would be pitted in conflict against the western world. There we have the makings of the racial conflict which even the militaristic old Kaiser of Germany wanted the world to beware as it would the devil.

PLOTTING ANOTHER

There is evidence that even recently the Japanese militarists, realizing that they are losing this war, have been plotting another assault twenty-five years hence.

Were they permitted to carry out this scheme, they would be a far more formidable enemy next time than they are now.

Japan has learned much about modern war from her disastrous contact with the western powers. Her operations in many respects have been crude as compared with the methods which have been carried against her from out of the west. But they won't be crude next time.

MUST BE STRIPPED

This is there for us to do but to exact unconditional surrender. There is no alternative if we are to have permanent peace.

The Japanese have been told categorically that the allies "have no desire or intention to destroy or enslave" them. At the same time it has been made equally clear that unless Japan surrenders she will suffer the same destruction as Germany. Actually the punishment probably will be worse, because Nippon is more vulnerable to bombing.

That is the final verdict which the mikado's government must accept.

Seek To Reduce Bail For Mrs. Stevens

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 11.—(P)—An effort will be made in court today to reduce the $50,000 bail set for Mrs. Imogene Stevens, who has been held in jail since June 24 on a charge of manslaughter in the shooting of a young submarine sailor.

tion of Canton, a little more than 110 miles southwest of Wuchow. Counterattacking Japanese troops in Kiangsi province struck northward from a point 12-13 miles northwest of Kanhsein, the Chinese said.

Kanhsein, which used to be the seat of the medieval southern Kiangsi district administered by the Generalissimo's elder son, Chiang Ching-Kuo, was completely cut off by Chinese severance of communications with Kukong, on the Canton-Hankow railroad 125 miles north of Canton.

The high command belatedly announced that Chinese troops on July 1 captured a point four and one-half miles west of another former American air base, Paoching, which guards the western approaches to the vital rail junction city of Henkyang.

ed by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) who said in a separate interview he did not believe any reservations would obtain a majority vote.

The committee allotted 15 minutes each today to about a dozen witnesses opposed to the 50-nation peace-keeping agreement. They include Ely Culbertson, bridge expert and author of a world security plan of his own.

Connally tried to get the opposition started yesterday, but none responded to his call to testify. Saying he had been advised they "wanted to go home and study the constitution first," the chairman added he thought that a laudable attitude.

Connally said a similar number of charter proponents will be heard and the hearings closed, probably this week. It ought to be possible, he added, to get the treaty before senate early next week.

DEFINE AUTHORITY

There are indications that at that time reservations may be offered attempting to define the authority the American delegate to the proposed world security council would have in voting to use United States troops to put down aggression.

Charter supporters made it plain at yesterday's hearings that they believe Edward R. Stettinus, jr., designated by President Truman as this country's delegate, ought to have wide power to decide upon the use of U. S. military forces in such a venture.

Senator Millikin (R-Colo) brought up the question by asking whether it would violate the charter for the senate to reserve either to the president or to congress the decision on use of troops.

Connally replied that this would violate the spirit of the charter. Senator Vandenberg (R - Mich) went further to say a reservation of that nature might violate the constitution. The American delegate, Vandenberg added, would be the instrument of the president and hold the president's power to order the use of troops. He insisted this would not encroach on congress's right to declare war.
