Vocational Schools Study Gets Underway

By LYNN NISBET
LEIGH, July 18. —(AP)—The commission authorized by the last general assembly and recently appointed by Governor Cherry to study the need and recommend location of regional vocational schools in the state held its organization meeting Tuesday and mapped a program for itself, including appointment of several sub-committees.

The commission approached the issue from the angle that many returning soldiers and other high school graduates who could not go to college, yet needed training for some special vocation. The schools when established will be under control of the State Board of Education, an integral part of the public school system, but will be designed to equip young men and women for earning a living rather than just to enter college.
