Mr. Grigg stressed that the educational system had a tremendous responsibility and opportunity in securing peace in the world through its contact with youth in its formative years. Education and the creation of good will toward all men in the public school system are vital if the peace which is being planned will be lasting.

Miss Mary Crowell's third grade presented the devotional prior to the talk and was awarded the attendance prize. During the business session it was announced that the school had a 100 per cent membership in the Junior Red Cross.

Covers were laid for 20 members at a single table in the dining room. Dahlias and chrysanthemums in shades of orchid and lavender were used as a floral centerpiece, and the individual place cards were adorned with violets.

Eskridge, mother of Miss Eskridge, won high score prize, and Miss Hazel Blanton received low score award. Miss Eskridge was presented with two gifts in her crystal pattern as a piece from the club. Mrs. Paul Kennedy, club president, conducted a short business session and, in the absence of Mrs. Paris Yelton, program chairman, presented Mrs. Hudson. Speaking on "Education and the Child" Mrs. Hudson said that children today must be better prepared for life than any preceding generation, and that schools should offer varied opportunities to meet individual needs. Physical education beginning in the elementary grades should be stressed, and the fact that moral and spiritual training alone is insufficient to cope with increasing independence should be recognized. Freedom should be given a child, she said, but with it should be given the training to discipline that freedom.

MAKE THE MOST OF THE TURKEY!

ROAST TURKEY, RED WINE 1 10-16 pound turkey 2 pound butter or margarine 2 onions, minced 1 large loaf slice bread, cut in 1/2 inch cubes 2 cups celery, chopped fine 1/2 cup minced parsley 2 teaspoons salt 2 teaspoons poultry seasoning (unsalted) 1 teaspoon powdered sage 1 pint Claret, Burgundy, Cabernet or any red table wine Remove pin feathers from turkey. Singe. Wash thoroughly inside and outside with clear, cold water. Rub inside of turkey with salt—using about 1/2 teaspoon of salt for each pound of turkey. Prepare dressing as follows: Melt 1/2 pound of the butter or margarine. Cook onion in melted butter until golden brown. Add bread cubes and mix well. Add celery, parsley, salt, poultry seasoning or sage. Mix well. Place enough stuffing in neck to fill it nicely. Fasten skin to back. Stuff cavity well, but not too tightly. Close with skewers. Fold wings back and press the tips against the back. Press thighs close to body, tie the ends of legs together with string and tie the string down around tailpiece. Turn bird on breast and bring ends of string forward over the wings. Tie in the middle of the back. Lay on pan on one side of breast. Roast until done at a low, constant temperature (300-325 degrees F.). When half done, turn bird to opposite side of breast. Baste at intervals with mixture of 1/2 pound melted butter or margarine and 1 pint of warmed wine. Turkey is done when the thermometer that has been securely inserted in the middle of the inside thigh muscle registers 190 degrees or when leg joints break or move readily when drumstick is moved up and down. Ordinarily it will take a ten pound turkey 3 1/2 hours at 325 degrees F. and a 14-18 pound turkey 4 to 4 1/2 hours at 300 degrees.

Dr. Nash is an excellent speaker and has been a long-time favorite of the Associated Clubs, though his many interests prevent him from filling as many engagements as he and the Clubs would like.
