

THE IREDELL EXPRESS.

A Family Newspaper—Devoted to Politics, Agriculture, Manufactures, Commerce, and Miscellaneous Reading.

Vol. III.

Statesville, N. C., Friday, October 26, 1860.

No. 47

TERMS OF ADVERTISING. One Dollar a square for the first week, and Twenty-five Cents for every week thereafter...

BUSINESS CARDS.

W.M. S. FATE, DENTIST. HAS taken rooms in the 'Simonton House' where, he will be pleased to wait on all who desire his services.

DR. H. KELLY. Offers his professional services to the public. Office on College Avenue, opposite the Methodist Church, Statesville, N. C.

DR. T. J. WITHERSPOON. Having located myself in the Town of Statesville, I offer my Professional Services to the surrounding public.

HAYNE DAVIS, ATTORNEY-AT-LAW, STATESVILLE, N. C. Will promptly and diligently attend to all business entrusted to his care.

WM. C. LORD, Attorney at Law, Salisbury, N. C. Will practice and make prompt collections in Rowan, Stanly, Iredell and Catawba Counties.

W. H. WYATT, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL DEALER IN Drugs, Medicines, Paints, Oils, Dye Stuffs, Brushes, Window Glass, Varnish, &c., &c., &c.

JAS. W. DRAKE, COMMISSION MERCHANT, No. 13 St. Louis Street, MOBILE, ALA. Jan. 21, 1859.—74f

Mrs. J. A. Vannoy, FASHIONABLE DRESS MAKER, Statesville, N. C. Receives monthly the French, English and American Fashions.

J. SHELLY, MANUFACTURER OF LADIES' FINE SHOES, BOOTS & GAITERS, THOMASVILLE, N. C. Which he sells at Wholesale. Orders for Shoes by the quantity promptly attended to.

F. SCARR, Druggist & Apothecary, CHARLOTTE, N. C. DRUGS, CHEMICALS, OILS, WINDOW GLASS, &c., AT WHOLESALE. See advertisement in another place. August 10, 1860.

HENDERSON & ENNIS, Wholesale and Retail Dealers in DRUGS, MEDICINES, And Chemicals, Paints, Colors, Varnishes, Brushes, Window Glass, Putty, Dye Stuffs, &c., &c., &c.

CARRIAGE MAKING, J. W. WOODWARD. Is still at his Old Stand, on Broad street, a few doors East of the Public Square, where he is prepared.

FIRE INSURANCE. The Subscriber having been appointed Agent of the CHARLOTTE MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY of Charlotte.

TO THE PUBLIC.—I take this method of informing all requiring Literary aid, that I will be pleased to revise MSS. and prepare it for publication, and will write Essays, Tales, Sketches, Lines for Albums, Obituaries, poems on every subject, and Letters. The utmost secrecy maintained. Address WILLIE WARE, Aug. 31, 1860. 394f. Brooklyn, N. Y.

Bell and Everett. AIR—"Star Spangled Banner." A peal from the tocsin—how joy the sounds, As the wind bears onward o'er mountain and valley?

Miscellaneous.

From the National Intelligencer. John Bell and Edward Everett. There is a peculiar fitness in the candidates of the Union party to stand before the people as the exponents of the platform of the Union, the Constitution, and the enforcement of the laws.

Mr. Bell, representing in Congress and in the United States Senate a Southern constituency, has never faltered in his defence of the rights of the people of the Southern States from any assault, and his record presents no single point of objection to the national-minded men of the South.

Side by side with John Bell in the maintenance of the Union, the Constitution, and the equal rights of the States, stands Edward Everett. Upon the slavery question no Northern man occupies a more national position, or is more acceptable to the people of the South.

A correspondent of a Southern contemporary recently called attention to a speech made by Mr. Everett during the earlier part of his service in Congress, when, with prophetic vision, he foresaw the deplorable consequences of Abolition agitation, and eloquently defended the compromises of the Constitution.

vile insurrection of the South. I am no soldier, sir; my habits and education are unilitary; but there is no cause in which I would sooner buckle a knapsack to my back, and put a musket on my shoulder, than that I would cede the whole continent to any one who would take it—to England, to France, to Spain—I would see it sunk to the bottom of the ocean before I would see any part of this fine America converted into a continental Hayti, by that awful process of bloodshed and desolation by which alone such a catastrophe could be brought on.

The consolidation of the South upon a sectional issue has proven what all men of sense foresaw or should have foreseen that it would be, the most futile of expedients. Its necessary effect has been to consolidate and sectionalize the superior numbers of the North into a mastery of the subject in dispute.

What is the inference as to the physical condition of the two classes of society? These are opinions I have long entertained, and long since publicly professed on this subject, and which I here repeat in answer to the intimation to which I have already alluded.

These noble and patriotic sentiments of Mr. Everett will be appreciated. They will sound gratefully in the ears of the conservative men North and South. They are in marked contrast with the expressions of anti-slavery zealots, and indeed are quite different in tone from any of the expressions of Northern sentiment that have been uttered recently by prominent men of any party in that section.

From the Louisville Journal. Good Advice. A crisis is at hand which demands of every good citizen to contribute his mite to a just appreciation of the impending danger, and, if possible, point to the way of safety.

express concession. The squatter sovereignty dogma requires express concessions from both sections, and hence that mode of compromise is utterly impracticability. In the present excited state of the popular mind, there can be no defined compromise on any part of the slavery question, and perhaps none such can ever hereafter be made.

The following is familiar to many of our readers, but is so well calculated to make the rising generation proud of the noble spirits who shed so much lustre on their country's name during the memorable war of 1812, with the then proud mistress of the seas, that it will bear re-publication at least once a year, as long as patriots are able to subdue conspirators.

Resolve to Overcome Difficulties. "Will you stop, sir?" promptly asked a pleasant, youthful voice, as a gentleman on horseback drew up before the door of a village inn.

Family Intercourse at the Table. To meet at the breakfast table, father, mother, children, all well, ought to be a happiness to any hearts; it should be a source of humble gratification, and should wake up the warmest feelings of our nature.

Anecdote of S. S. Prentiss. The anecdote is from 'Ten Years of a Preacher's Life.' The popular assembly was the place of his proudest exhibitions. To the multitude he was a trumpet. He said, 'Fellow citizens! and, aribus erectis, the people stood still, or swayed to and fro; or shouted, or were sad, sniled or frowned, at his magic will.'

their success to that of any other than their own party candidate. Their success would be a triumph over no party in particular, would not be resented as such, and their administration, whilst proscribing none, would receive candid approval or disapproval from fair men of all parties.

The most brilliant naval action of the last war was undoubtedly that of the American frigate Constitution (44), commanded by Commodore Stewart, when she captured the two British corvettes, Cyane and Levant, of greatly superior force, each of them being equal to the old fashioned thirty-three gun frigates.

Natural Barometer. The spider, says an eminent naturalist, is almost universally regarded with disgust and abhorrence; yet, after all, it is one of the most interesting, if not the most useful, of the insect tribe.

Children in good health, it is felt themselves at the table, become, after a few months, garrulous and noisy, but, if within all reasonable or bearable bounds, it is better to let them alone; they eat less, because they do not eat so rapidly as if compelled to keep silent, while the very exhilaration of spirits quickens the circulation of the vital fluids, and energises digestion and assimilation.

There never were two men better calculated than Bell and Everett, by age, temper, and past career, to lead the movement toward national conciliation and inaugurate a new "era of good feeling." The best proof of this is that all men of all parties prefer ties; and I should think it not impossible for you to do what others have done." As the traveller rode away, he dropped a piece of silver in the errand boy's hand. The coin was larger than the boy was accustomed to receive for a service like that just rendered; but not because of this was the whole expression of the boy's face changed.

Boys, take the traveller's counsel; yourselves. No one ever becomes great or wise without effort. Expect difficulties; meet them with courage; overcome them. Patience and perseverance will achieve wonders.

Children in good health, it is felt themselves at the table, become, after a few months, garrulous and noisy, but, if within all reasonable or bearable bounds, it is better to let them alone; they eat less, because they do not eat so rapidly as if compelled to keep silent, while the very exhilaration of spirits quickens the circulation of the vital fluids, and energises digestion and assimilation.

There never were two men better calculated than Bell and Everett, by age, temper, and past career, to lead the movement toward national conciliation and inaugurate a new "era of good feeling." The best proof of this is that all men of all parties prefer the brutes which perish, promotive, as these things are, of good digestion, high health, and a long life.—Halt's Journal of Health.

Anecdote of Stephen Girard. Old Girard had a favorite Clerk, and he always said he intended to do well by Ben. Lippincott. So when Ben. got to be twenty-one he expected to hear the Governor say something of his future prospects, and perhaps lend a helping hand in starting him in the world.

This application of ice nearly froze Ben out, but recovering equilibrium, he said if Mr. Girard was in earnest he would do so.

The Prompt Clerk. One once knew a young man, said an eminent preacher, who was commencing life as a clerk. One day his employer said to him, 'Now, to-morrow that cargo of cotton must be got out and weighed, and we must have a regular account of it.'

Anecdote of S. S. Prentiss. The anecdote is from 'Ten Years of a Preacher's Life.' The popular assembly was the place of his proudest exhibitions. To the multitude he was a trumpet. He said, 'Fellow citizens! and, aribus erectis, the people stood still, or swayed to and fro; or shouted, or were sad, sniled or frowned, at his magic will.'

There never were two men better calculated than Bell and Everett, by age, temper, and past career, to lead the movement toward national conciliation and inaugurate a new "era of good feeling." The best proof of this is that all men of all parties prefer