The Carrior's Addr CHRISTMAS, 1838

We greet you again on this Holy Day, Which custom says is merry, But if we dared the trath to say We should nt sall it very.

But let us drink and dance and sing, Old Boreas pipes a chorus, And play the fiddle and play the fuel, As many have done before as

Then fire off your Christmas guns, And let the egg-nog flow, For none can tell how many suns, He'll number here below.

The wing of time is flapping fast, Its shadow is dark on Parth, It fans us with a Wintry blast That means unto our mirth

Who will deny, but this our Town, The some prenounce it dreary. Is very sweet and friendly grown, And even passing merry.

What matters it if she has go Her motto on her steeple STAND STILL" 's a very happy lot, For backward-going people

What matters it while we can boast Two well filled grave-yards nigh us, And number strong as any host, Four Churches and aix pious.

Then fire off the Christmas guns, And let the egg-nog flow. For none can tell how many suns, He'll number here below.

What boots it then, if Winter howls About our cold hearth-stones? While we make merry in our bowls, We heed not Winter's moans.

Then play the fiddle and play the fool, Don't grudge a well spent shilling; What matters it at coming yule, What fools their graves are filling

Then ply the flagon and pull the cork, Drown deep your sense in Brandy ; Its a Holy day and holy work, Grog shops are near and handy.

Then feast and fiddle and play the fool, This is our SAVIOUR'S BIRTH-DAY, And by an old inverted rule, A very drunken mirth day,

So here's my verse on a merry strain, For who would have it grave? If not very pleasant it's very plain, And surely very brave.

* The hands of the town clock have not moved for twenty years.

OFFICE OF THE LADY'S BOOK & No. 3 Athenian Buildings, Philadelph. The December No. of the Lady's Book, is now ready for delivery to subscribers. It comp

The contents it is believed are not less interesting than usual, and the embellishments are even superior. Among the latter is an ENGRA-VED TITLE PAGE, for the present volume, which for novelty and brilliancy of design, and excellence of execution, may claim, and will re-ceive universal admiration. It is in fact a most beautiful and usique specimen of the Art, and gives promise of great skill and ability in Mr. White the gentleman by whom it was engraved.

The January number of the Lady's Book will be ENTIRELY MADE UP OF ORIGINAL

MATTER, contributed by the best writers in the country. Miss Leslile has furnished one of her enimitable storie, which for keen observa-tion, caostic humor and useful satire, is not infe-rior to the celebrated Mrs. Wassington Porrs. The present story is called Laura Lovel: the scene is laid in Massachusetts, partly in Boston, and partly at the watering place of Nahant; and our eastern friends may expect to find themselves handsomely dealt with. We have also an admimble tale entitled THE CATHOLIC, contributed by Miss Caroline Lee Hentz, the author of the Prize Tragedy De Lara, and the successful novel of Lovel's Folly. In addition to these the January number will contain a variety of original prose compositions, prepared by the most cele brated of our native writers, and a suitable proportion of original and excellent postry. As the January number is intended to be fair specimen of the volume to which it will form the initial number, we invite public atten-tion to its appearance and contents, satisfied that in both respects it may fairly claim precedence over any similar publication Persons wishing to subscribe will forward their address (pust paid) subscription in advance as soon as convenient to L. A, GODEY & co. No. 3 Athenian Buildings. Franklin Place,

NEW PROPOSALS

For publishing at Washington, (Ga.) THE CHRISTIAN INDEX,

BAPTIST MISCELLANY BY JESSE MERCER. EDITOR.

HIS religious Journal originated some ten I or twelve years ago, under the patronage of the Baptist Convention for Foreign Missions in the United States, and entitled 'The Christian Star' After some years it was removed to Philadelphia, and published by Wm. T. BEANT-LY, under the style of "The Christian Index, and Religious and Moral Miscellany.", From Philadelphia it has been removed to this place, and is now published as above. Its character and attributes are well known, and essentially unchanged; and need not here be repeated. It is as ever, devoted to the cause of Missions, and all other benevolent operations, approved, as acapted to the melieration of the condition of man. and to promote the common interests of the king dom of Obrest. It will be a medium of free communication, and a channel of religious intercourse; wherein not so much by sharp controversy, as by close investigation, the different opinions and practice of professing christians es pecially those of our own denomination, may be examined and brought to a termination, accorling to the word of God on the principles of eernal truth.

The editor believes in the doctrine of free and sovreign grace, in perfect accordance with the obligations and responsabilities of men as accountable beings. He claims for himself all the rights and liberties, while he holds himself bound to discharge the duties (as he may be enabled) of
