

From the New York Herald.

ADVENTURE OF A YOUNG TEXIAN HERO IN NEW YORK HARBOR.

Early last Sunday afternoon the weather was bright and balmy in Broadway—clear and cold on the waters flowing around New York, like a sea of silver round a gem of oak. About the time that the last chimed of the church bells were calling the christians to his prayers, a lady, whose fine aristocratic features were covered with excitement and anxiety, approached Whitehall and at the eastern end of the Battery.

"Where can I get any of the Whitehall boys?" said she in a distracted voice. "Any of the Whitehall boys?" said a bluff-looking sailor, turning the quid in his cheek—there they be. She approached, and three or four gathered around her.

"What is the matter ma'am?" "Oh! enough is the matter. I am distracted for my son. My poor boy has been missing away from me—he has been investigated aboard a vessel down the harbor. I must go aboard and get him!"

"Why Ma'am how can you get him?" "Wont you take a poor distracted mother to get her dear boy, who has been missing away from me?" "I have already been at the police office, but we have no means to protect ourselves."

Several of the cool and courageous Whitehallers now grouped round the unfortunate lady. Perhaps no class of men are softer and more feeling hearts to all impulses of genuine humanity than the sea dwellers—those adventurous men who brave in death in every billow, and smile at eternity speaking in the storm.

"And I will go—" "And I will go—" "And I'll go too." Gruff, quiet, but true to sympathy for female suffering, six robust watermen of Whitehall volunteered to accompany the lady to the vessel on which her son was aboard.

"Determined, sir, to have him?" said she with a look of ineffable indignation. "Yes, that I am—I will never leave this vessel till I get him. I will go to New Orleans—to Texas—to the bottom of that sea, sooner than have you till I get my poor Severan."

The fixed resolution—the resolute tone of the mother overcame all the officers and compassed the crew of the invincible. A search was made for the boy, and in a few minutes he was discovered in tears, hid away in a place between decks and sick, and disgusted with one day's duty in the Texian naval service as organized by the land speculators and adventures of this city.

Severan, my boy, come with your mother. He jumped aboard the little skiff—his mother followed him—the Whitehallers, none of whom but felt joy for the poor mother, seized their way to New York, and at nine o'clock at night, the bright stars glittering in heaven above, they reached the steps at the eastern end of the Battery. Severan and his mother went home.

"This is a true story in all its leading details. We challenge contradiction from any quarter. We have names, and dates, and facts, and proof in abundance. Nothing, perhaps, has injured the cause—the glorious cause of Texas as much as the Wall street speculators and Five Point adventures, who have been engaged in forwarding its interests in this city. Hundreds and thousands of that human article of supply and demand called 'man,' can be got in this city, and to take it, would be a mere trifle to society and to public order; but when the Texian speculators cast their eyes upon the sons of respectable citizens, who are something better than mere materials to raise the price of land or to secure a grant, we think a check ought to be put to all such operations in a civilized community."

Accidental Kiss.—Mr. Pickwick bowed low to the ladies, & notwithstanding the solicitations of his family, he left the room with his friends. "Get your hat Sam," said Mr. Pickwick. "It's below stairs, Sir," said Sam, and he ran down after it—Now there was no body in the kitchen but the housemaid, and Sam's hat was mistakid, he had to look for it and the pretty housemaid lighted him.—They had to look all over the place for the hat, and the pretty housemaid, in her anxiety to find it, went down on her knees, and turned over all the things that were heaped together in a little corner by the door. It was an awkward corner. You could not get at it without shutting the door first. "Here it is," said the pretty housemaid. "This is it, ain't it?" "Let me look," said Sam. The pretty housemaid had stood the candle on the floor, and as it gave a very dim light, Sam was obliged to stoop on his knees before he could see whether it was really his own hat or not. It was a remarkable small corner, and so—it was nobody's fault but the man's who built the house—Sam and the pretty housemaid were necessarily very close together.—"Yes, this is it," said Sam. "Good bye," said the pretty housemaid. "Good bye," said Sam, and as he said it, he dropped the hat that had cost so much trouble looking for. "How awkward you are," said the pretty housemaid.—"You'll lose it again, if you don't take care!" "No, just to prevent his losing it again, she put it on for him.—Whether it was that the pretty housemaid's face looked pretty sull, when it was raised towards Sam's, or whether it was the accidental consequence of their being so near each other, is a matter of uncertainty to this day, but Sam kissed her. "You don't mean to say you did it on purpose," said the pretty housemaid, blushing. "No, I didn't then," said Sam; "but I will now." So he kissed her again.—"Sam!" said Mr. Pickwick, calling over the banisters. "Coming, sir," replied Sam, running up stairs. "How long you have been," said Mr. Pickwick. "There was something behind the door, sir, which prevented our getting it open for ever so long."—The Pickwick papers.

Beautiful Comparison.—As the estriah suns both legs and wings when the Arabian coursers bounds in her rear, as the winged lightning leaps from the heavens when the Eternal has unbound the bolts—so does a little nigger run like the devil when a big dog is after him.

Two to two.—Mr. Wilkie a gentleman of sporting propensities, met a friend of his: "Ah, Richard, how are ye, my boy? You are just the fellow I wanted. You must be umpire between me and Hickley. We are going to have a trotting match; my grays against some of his cattle." Richard: "Ah, indeed! that is a curious coincidence; Hickley & I are after the very same thing. How are you going?" Wilkie.—"In our phantoms, two horses to two." Richard:—"Extraordinary! We are two to two too! And where are you to run to?" (With a prophetic grin.) Wilkie—"To Too-Tooting." Richard:—"Well, this is surprising! We are two to two too, to Tooting too."

JOHN RANDOLPH OF ROANOKE.

WATCHMAN.

Salisbury, March 25, 1837.

HENRY SWINK,
Who was convicted of the murder of his wife, it is already known to our readers was refused a new trial by the Supreme Court. The cause was therefore remitted back to the Court of this county for final proceeding, and coming up on Thursday last, his honor JUDGE SAUNDERS, pronounced sentence, that he shall be hanged on Friday, 21st of April (next month). The only remark we have to make is that of deep commiseration for a nature so perfectly depraved with so little intelligence to counteract its evil propensities.

Since the elevation of Martin Van Buren and Dick Johnson, the political world has become tired of the din, many of the Whigs had become disheartened, and some we dare say, are making ready, as has been the way of the world in all time past, to get into the majority by deserting their party. Principles they never had: Such men, like the celebrated Major Dugald Delgetty, only fight for their pay, and which ever party has the ascendancy for the time being will assuredly take all such as these. It is curious to think how many genuine Crawford and Adams men are now figuring under the Jackson Van Buren banner. But this is no time to give up the game as hopeless. There is that about the cause of the present Administration that must sink it in less than four years. Manifestly as he is, Martin cannot for a great while keep in with both sides of the Abolition question. He cannot longer desert the principles of Jackson and still call piously on that name. He cannot reward hungry expectants as he had promised without making enemies of his present friends in office. He cannot do without a national Bank, and then he must lose the gold and silver men. So fix it as he may he must go to the wall.

THE SPECIE CIRCULAR
All accounts seem to authorize the conclusion that the President will order his Secretary of the Treasury to rescind the odious order from this department, so soon as he can do so consistently with his respect for the Ex-President, Jackson. It is admitted on all hands, that the measure was unwise, oppressive, unjust, and founded in a contemptible motive of malice: Both Houses of Congress have spoken strongly in reprobation of this measure. General Jackson contemptuously disregarded the appeal, and as his wont, to the people. The people have however, spoken through their representatives—they have spoken again through a memorial signed by 30 Senators in Congress; and yet, out of respect to such a predecessor, this abominable policy is to continue afflicting the American people. We think it would be far more wise and prudent to say nothing of honesty, for Mr. V. B. to have some respect for the wishes and feelings of the nation.

Extract of a Letter from Montgomery, (Ala.)
March 6th, 1837.
Mr. H. C. JONES:—
Sir:—Thinking that it would not be uninteresting to you, I have concluded to address this Epistle.
A part of the Creek Indians are now in this place on their way to the far West. There are 25 or 3000 here, they consist of old men, women and children, about 1500 more are now on their way here from Fort Mitchell, among whom are about 200 hostile warriors. They will leave here on Steam Boats as soon as the boats can be procured from Mobile. The warriors that went to Florida will meet them at Mobile or New Orleans—they (I understand) will be shipped from Tampa Bay.
The auctioneers is now engaged in selling the ponies, &c. The Indians are a most miserable set of looking creatures; many of them being almost naked, and none well clothed. They appear to be very reluctant to go to the West; many of them say that they would rather starve in the nation and be buried with their fathers than to go West.
The news of Powell's capture turns out to be without any foundation, and indeed, it appears from late news here, that hot work may be expected before the war is terminated, news of a recent battle has been received—no particulars, only our troops prove successful.
At the distance you are, you can have but little idea of the frauds that have been practised on these miserable people, and my only surprise is, that they suffered so much before they commenced hostilities, there is a set of men living in Columbus, Ga., who are but little better than Murrell's gang; they came there neater adventurers and have made large fortunes, not by an honest trade with Indians, but by actual swindling and robbery.
I expect to leave here in a few days with the emigrating Indians at a salary of $125 per month. Whether I shall return or go on to Texas I do not know.
Your Friend.

Raleigh & Gaston Road.—We understand that there are about 1,000 laborers now at work on this Road, and that it is going a head rapidly.—Raleigh Register.

We perceive that Gov. STOKES has been re-appointed Indian Agent by Mr. Van Buren. 16.

North-Carolina Militia—THIRTEEN THOUSAND Dollars were appropriated by Act of Congress, during the late session, for satisfying the claims of North-Carolina upon the General Government for services rendered by her Militia during the late War. Justice, though long delayed, has come at last.—Several Agents have heretofore been sent to Washington by our State Government, with a view to the settlement of claim, but their efforts were fruitless. We are not aware of the existence of an appropriation for this purpose, until we accidentally came across it tacked to a general bill containing numerous other items, where, we presume, it was slipped in by the cleverness of some of our Representatives.

Salary of R. M. Whitney.—Mr. Garland, Chairman of the Select Committee, reported to Congress that they had ascertained that R. M. Whitney is the Agent of twenty deposit Banks, twelve of which pay him, together, an annual salary of $6,575.—There can hardly be a doubt that this man makes out of the Deposit Banks at least $15,000 a year. Several of the Banks refuse or failed to state what salary they paid him, and others declined telling whether he was their Agent.—16.

Major HENRY LEE died at Paris, on the 20th of January.

James N. Barker, Esq. has been re-appointed Collector of the port of Philadelphia. He, it will be recollected, was one of the gentlemen who was proscribed by the Democratic General Committee, who demanded of Mr. Van Buren that Mr. Ash, the late member of Congress, should be placed in the office in his stead. Metropolitan.

[Mr. Ash has, however, got an office, it seems. The Philadelphia papers state that he has been appointed Navy Agent in that city.]

The Collectorship of our Town.—We understand this office has been filled by the appointment of Col. Marshall of this place. Wilmington Adve.

Linnet is engaged with Hinda, to run for an inside stake of $10,000, on the turf mile day of the Natchez (Miss) Jockey Club, over the Pharos Course. The meeting was to have commenced on Wednesday last; but this, the taxed decision is decided, whether Louisiana or Mississippi bears away the palm, and tens of thousands of dollars have changed hands on the result. New York Times.

Rodolph and Hinda vs. The World!
If these two "ericks" are "all right" to day, a letter has been mailed for us at Natchez containing a challenge to run the four mile heats over the Pharos course, Natchez, or the Pelopoe course, New Orleans, against any two horses in the United States, for from $10,000 to $50,000. 16.

Indecent Public Lectures.—We understand that an attempt has been made by Mr. Graham to deliver a course of lectures, public to females only, on payment of 30 cents each for the course, on subjects and of a kind which cannot be listened to without a shock to that sense of decency which is one of the necessary safeguards of virtue. One or more of these lectures having been previously delivered, a large number of females assembled at Amory Hall yesterday afternoon to hear another lecture.
A large number of people also, besides the women who had purchased tickets, were assembled at the place, by a rumor of the kind of exhibition which was anticipated; and some party took place between the women within and the men without the hall. We have not learned particularly the course of proceedings, but Mr. Graham did not appear, and the lecture did not take place. The City Marshal was present for the preservation of order, had there been any disposition to violate it, and we do not learn that there was any act of violence committed, but whether the marshal attended with a force sufficient to prevent a breach of the peace, had any been threatened we are not informed. We are informed that the lecturer professes to address his instructors to married women, but that many unmarried women and girls were present. We would ask if there is no mode of repressing this outrage upon public decency and good morals but that of expression of the popular indignation, which operates by a summary appeal to the fears of the offender. Daily Advertiser.

According to a census of the population of Rome, taken in October last, that capital contains 153,688 souls, without comprising the Jews. In the above number there are 41 bishops, 1,468 secular priests, 2,023 monks, and 1,496 nuns.

ANOTHER WORK BY WRAXALL
Anecdotes of Foreign Courts
On Friday, March 18th, will be published in Waldie's Literary Omnibus, a third work by Sir N. W. Wraxall, entitled, "Memoirs and Private Anecdotes of the Courts of Berlin, Dresden, Warsaw, and Vienna." This work has never been reprinted in America.
From the London Monthly Review.
"The style is clear and polished, without other ornament than what naturally occurs. We shall only add that they abound throughout with enlightening anecdote, and that the reader's time and attention will be amply repaid, whether his search be for information, or amusement."

The whole of the early numbers of Waldie's Literary Omnibus being exhausted, an extra-edition will be commenced on the 18th inst., from which date new subscribers who give early notice will be supplied.
Price for a single copy for twelve months three dollars, two copies for five dollars, five copies for ten dollars. It is the cheapest periodical now printed in America, and the postage is that of a newspaper.

POSTSOLUS
We are gratified to have it in our power to state, that the conditional subscription in this Town, to the Stock of the Fayetteville and Western Railroad Company, has been made absolute, and we feel satisfied, that this enterprise so important to the Western portion of North Carolina, will now "go ahead."

UWHARIE
WILL make his last season in this County, at my stable in Lexington, N. C., ending on the 4th of July. The purity of his blood—his size—length—substance and power—his fine energetic action, I think will cross excellently well, with our common mares. He will be six years old this Spring.
In order to accommodate all the Farmers who are desirous to breed fine horses and at a rate within the means of all breeders, I am induced to put down the price of my season of Uwharie, lower than that of any horse in the Union of equal blood and character. He will make his present season at $10; insurance $20. In addition to the yearling filly and two colts that I sold in 1834 at $5,000, (out of Uwharie's dam) I refused last Fall for a yearling filly out of his dam and by imported Lubbrook $700, and for the old mare $1,000.

SARPEDON

(IMPORTED.)
THIS splendid English Race Horse & Stallion, imported in 1834, will cover mares the present season, (which has now commenced,) at my stable, Granville county, N. C. on the main road leading from Oxford to Baydon, Virginia, at $60 the season, payable before or on the first of July next, at which time it will expire, & $100 mares ok, which will be demanded as soon as the mare is ascertained to be in foal or transferred; with one dollar cash to the groom in every case. Care will be taken to prevent escapes or accidents, but I will not be responsible for any that may happen: Servants boarded gratis; good pasturage for mares, and when fed, 33¢ cents per day, which charge must be paid before the mare will be allowed to leave the plantation—at the discretion of the subscriber.
SARPEDON is a rich brown horse, 16 hands high, foaled in 1829, the property of General Gordon—is a horse of the greatest strength and power. His back and loins so remarkably strong, that he is thought to be master of 15 stone; and, as a race horse, he was equal, and generally superior, to most horses of his day, as is proved by reference to his memoir in detail, which may be seen in the July (1831) number of the "Turf Register"—He is the only one of the famous "Emulus," known to be imported. Emulus, it will be remembered, is the sire of Plenipotentiary, Setpou, Prim, Kiddleworth and many others, and covers at 50 g. a mare.
SARPEDON possesses more of the stout, Manbrino and Benningblood blood, than any other horse in America, and is a direct cross upon any of our native mares. His performance at three and four years old, (until he was injured,) sets off the 4-year character—bearing nearly all his competitors, giving some of them high odds in weight. (See Racing Calendar and Sporting Magazine, as above.)
N.B.—His stock (Colts) are remarkably large and racing-like.

PEDIGREE.
SARPEDON was got by that capital rocer and unrivalled Stallion "Emulus," by the great "Orville," who also covered at 50 g. and was perhaps the best son of Benningblood, out of a King Herod mare, &c.; his dam, Jeanie, by the Flyer, grand dam by Dick Andrews, equal to any mare of his day, both as a rocer and Stallion; May, by Benningblood—Primrose, by Manbrino—Crocket, by King Herod, the best Stallion of his day, & founder of the best stock in England—Supplejack Blank—Deer (Lord Leigh's) by Seaweed—Mr. Hanger's brown mare, by Stangan's Arabian, out of Gipsy by King William's Nougated Baro—Makrless, Royal Mare.
The Flyer was got by Vandike Junius—dam Azalia, by Benningblood—Gillflower, by Highflyer—Goldfinder, sister to Grasshopper, by Marke—Cullen Arabian—Regulus, &c., &c. The Flyer was a capital horse, and sire of "Wings," winner of the Oaks and other good runners.
Vandike Junius was got by Walton, dam Dabchick, by the Poika—Drab, by Highflyer—Hebe, by Chrysolite—Proserpine, sister to Eclipse.
