

POETRY.

From the New York Observer. THE STREAM OF DEATH. There is a stream whose narrow tide The known and unknown worlds divide, Where all must go ;

Its waveless waters, dark and deep, Mid sullen silence, downward sweep With moanless flow.

I saw where at that dreary flood, A smiling infant prattling stood, Whose hour was come :

Untaught of ill, it near'd the tide, Sunk, as to cradled rest, and died, Like going home.

Followed with languid eye anon, A youth, diseased, and pale, and wan; And there alone

He gazed upon the leaden stream, And fear'd to plonge-I heard a scream, And he was gone,

And then a form in manhood's strength Came bustling on, till there at length He saw life's bound ; He shrunk and raised the bitter prayer Too late-his shrick of wild despair The waters drown'd

Next stood upon that surgeless shore A being bow'd with many a score Of toilsome years,

Earth-bound and sad he left the bank, Back turn'd his dimming eye, and sank, Ah ! full of tears.

How bitter must thy watere be, Oh Death ! How hard a thing, ah me ! It is to die! I mused-when to that stream again, Another child of mortal men With smiles drew nigh.

'Tis the last pang,' he calmly said-'To me, O Death ! thou hast no dread-Saviour, I come! Spread but thine arms on yonder shore-

I see !--ye waters, bear me o'er ! There is my home!"

[From Nicholas Nickleby, by Boz] THE SCHOOLMASTER SCHOOLED. [" Smike," a poor, jaded, spiritless boy, is dragged into the school room, to be flogged for having attempted to run away from the croel oppressions to which he had been subjected Mr. Squeers, armed with "a strong supple, waxended, and new instrument of torture," inquires of the culorit if he has any thing to say for him-

" Nothing, I suppose ?" said Squeers, with a diabolical grin.

Smike glanced round, and his eye rested for an instant on Nicholas, as if he had expected him to intercede; but his look was rivetted on his desk.

Have you any thing to say?" demanded Squeers again, giving his right arm two or three flurishes, to try its power and suppleness. Stand a little out of the way Mrs Squeers, my dear; I've hardly got room enough.'

'Spare me, sir !' eried Smike. 'Oh! that's all, is it?' said Squeers. 'Yes I'll flog you within an inch of your life and spare you that.

'Ha, ha, ha!' laughed Mrs. Squeers, that's a good 'un.

'I was driven to it,' said Smike, faintly, and casting another imploring look about him. Driven to do it, were you? said Squeers-'Oh! it wasn't your fault; it was mine, I suppose -eh? 'A nasty, ungrateful, pig-headed, brutish obstinate, sneaking dog,' exclaimed Mrs Squeers, taking Smike's head under her arm, and adminislering a cuff at every epithet, 'what does he mean by that? "Stand aside, my dear,' replied Squeers. "We'll try and find out."

Mrs Squeers, being out of breath with her exertions, complied Squeers caught the boy firmly in his grip; one desperate cut had tallen on his body -he was wincing from the lash and ut. tering a scream of pain-it was raised again, and again about to fall-when Nicholas Nickleby suddenly starting up, cried 'Stop!' in a voice that made the rafters ring. 'Who cried stop?' said Squeers, turning sav-

'I,' said Nicholas, stepping forward. " This must not go on,'

'Must not go on!' cried Squeers, almost in a

'No!' thundered Nicholas. Aghast and stupified by the boldness of the interference, Squeers released his hold of Smike, and falling back a pace or two, gazed upon Nicholas with looks that were positively fright 'I say most not,' repeated Nicholas, nothing daunted; 'shall not. I will prevent it. Squeers continued to gaze upon him with hi eyes starting out of his head; but astonishment had actually for the moment, bereft him of speech.

'You have disregarded all my quiet interference in the miserable lad's behalf," said Nicholas ; 'returned no answer to the latter in which 4 begoed forgiveness for him, and offered to be responsible that he would remain quietly here. Dun't blame me for the public interference. You have brought it upon yourself; not l.'

'Sit down, beggar !' screamed Squeers, almost beside himself with rage, and seizing Smike as he spoke.

Wretch,' rejoined Nicholas, fiercely, touch him at your peril! I will stand by and see it done; my blood is up, and have the strength of ten such men as you. Look to yourself, for by Heaven, I will not spare you, if you drive me on?

Stand back? cried Squeers, brandishing his weapon.

·I have a long series of insults to avenge. said Nicholas, floshed with passion; and my indignation is aggravated by the dastardly cruelties practised on helpless infanev in this foul den. Have a care; for if you do raise the devil within me, the con-& quences shall fall beavily upon your head."

* Becoming tired of the noise and uproar, and feeling that his arm grew weak beside, he threw all his remaining strength into half a dozen finishing cuts, and flung Squeers from him, with all the force he could muster. The violence of his fall precipitated Mrs. Squeers completely over an adjacent form and Squeers, striking his head against it in his descent, lay at his full length on the ground, stunned and motion-

From the Western Messenger for June, 1837 INTERESTING INCIDENT in Kentucky History .- At the first meeting of the Kentucky Historical Society, the following anecdote of Indian generosity and magnanimity, was related by a gentleman distinguished in the annals of Kentucky, with whose permission we give it to the public through our paper.

About the year 1784 or 1785, Mr. Andrew Rowan embarked in a barge at the Fails of the Ohio, (where Louisville now stands.) with a party to descend the river. The best having stopped at the Yellow Banks, on the Indian side, some distance below, Mr Rowan, borrowing a rifle of one of the company, stepped on shore and strolled into the bottom, probably rather in our suit of amusement than game; for having always been of a feeble constitution and averse to action, he knew not how to use a rifle, and besides had with him but the single charge of ammunition which was in the gun. He unconsciously protracted his stay beyond what he intended; and returning to the spot where he had landed, saw nothing of the boat nor the company he had left. It being a time of hostility with the Indians, and suspicious of their approach having alarmed the party, they had put off, and made down the stream with all possible haste; not daring to linger for their companion on shere. Mr. R now found himself alone on the banks of the Ohio, a vast and trackless forest stretching around him, with but one charge of powder, and himself too unskilled in the use of the rifle to profit even by that, and liable at any moment to fall into the hands of the savages. The near est settlement of the whites was Vincennes, (now in Indiana) distant probably about I hundred miles. Shaping his course as nearly as he could calculate for this, he commenced his perilous and hopeless journey. Unaccustomed to travelling in the forest, he soon lost all reckoning of his way, and wandered about at venture .-Impelled by the gnawings of hunger, he discharged his rifle at a deer that happened to pass near him, but missed it. The third day found him still wandering, whether towards Vincen nes or from it, he knew not -exhausted, famished and despairing. Several times he had laid down, as he thought, to die. Roused by the sound of a gun not far distant, betokening, as he well knew, the presence of Indians, he proceeded, as a last hope of life, to surrender himself to those whose tender mercies he knew to be cruel Advancing a short distance he saw an Indian ap proaching, who, on discovering him-as the first impulse was on any alarm with both the whites and Indians on the frontiers in time of hostilities-drew up his rifle to his shoulder, in readiness to fire. Mr R. turned the butt of his & the Indian, with French politeness, turned the butt of his also. They approached each other. The lud an seeing his pale and emaciated ap pearance, and understanding the cause, took him to his wigwam, a few miles distant, where he cooked for him several days and treated him w the greatest hospitality. Then learning from him by signs that he wished to go to Vincennes. the Indian immediately left his hunting, took his rifle and a small stock of provisions, and conducted him in safety to that settlement, a distance from his cabin of about eighty miles. Having arrived there, and wishing to reward well the generous Indian to whom he owed his life, Mr R made arrangements with a merchant of the settlement, to whom he made himself known, to give him three hundred dollars. But the Indian would not receive a farthing When made to understand by Mr R. through an interpreter, that he could not be happy noless he would accept something, he replied, pointing to vicinity. TO THOSE SUFFERING WITH Cholera Morbus, Diarrhaa, Summer Complaints, Colies, Cramps, and Spasms. THE atility of R. S. BERNARD'S Reme dyfor Cholera has ceased to be a problem. Experience, the only sure foundation of Medicinal, as on all other kinds of knowledge, has effectually established what the judicious composition of the Remedy, its admirable adaptation to the various indications which occur in the course of those diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels usually designated as Cholera complaints, led the Proprietor to anticipate from the first of all experience, however, that of men competent to discriminate accurately and to decide justly upon the effects of a medicine, must be the best; and with such in its favor, even the most fastidious in these matters, must lay aside these pre-

The indications of cure are-to tranquilize the stomach and bowels : to relieve the excessive puking and purging; to allay the increased irri-tability of the intestines, giving rise to increased peristaltic motion ; to relieve that rheumatic state of the bowels which is often the attendant of chronic cases sometimes accompanied with inflamation and ulceration; to overcome the spasms; equalize the circulation, and testore warmth to the surface; remove congestion of the internal organs; and to relieve the morbid irritability of the brain and nervous system ;-all of which has been effected by the use of Bernard's Remedy for Cholera: certificates of which have been given at various times of the efficacy in cases widely different in their origin and progress of each other.

Luck to the certificates; they are the best evidence that can be given. The commendations which several liberal and ntelligent Physicians have bestowed upon the Remedy, have already been published, and the subscriber has now the gratification of adding the following from a most respectable practising physician of Somerton, Va.

R.S. BERNARD

Somerton, May 14, 1837.

Mr. R S Bernard. Dear Sir-This is to inform you I have tested the efficacy of your Remedy for the Cholera in several instances that have lately come under my care, and that its effect evince it to be a judicous preparation-one eminently servicable. I will say altogether competent to cure the diseases for which it is recommended. I feel no hesitation, therefore, in declaring that for the treatment of such disorders, I shall regularly dispense your Remedy from my office, and would mmend it to be kept in all families liable to

You may use this certificate as you will!! Yours, very respecially,

W. L. PARHAM This certificate was given to my agent, E. P. Nash, of Petersburg and for its importance, read

Mr. Nash's remarks; "As agent for Bernard's Cholera and Diarrhoe Medicine, I call the attention of the public to the certificate below from one of the most respectable gentlemen in the state; and I particularly call their attention to the one given by a gentleman in this town-and if it were necessary, I could produce a half dozen others from Petersburg, who have tried the medicine within two weeks

EDW. P. NASH Mr. Edward P. Nash, Agent for Bernard's Cholera Medicine. Dear Sir : I feel it a duty I owe to the proprietor of the above medicine, as well as the public generally, to inform you that the bottle of Chole ra mixture which I bought at your store a few evenings since, has entirely cured me of a severe Diarrhea. The cure was effected in taking only two doses, and as I had tried many other remedies without the least effect. I am fully of the opinion that the medicine here alluded to is every thing that it is said to be.

JAS. S. WALLACE, Petersburg, Va.

Who will neglect to supply themselves with Bernard's Remedy for Cholera, when it is so fuly proven to be efficacious in all the diseases for which it is recommended? In no case has it failed to cute the most obstinate attack of summer complaint made upon children. In one instance a permanent cure was effected upon a child in this place, after the summer complaint had put it (as thought by the doctors) beyond the power of medicine to relieve. It was such an aggravated case that the child had in the course of one day and night, sixty-three evacuations from the bowels. Yet one buttle proved a sov ereign remedy.
